Just another day.

7:14 am

Pulling into the East lot, Colby McGuire applies her black Nicole Miller eyeliner to the final touches of her look before walking into school; little preparations help to complete her overall look.

7:30

As Amanda Green slowly paces herself to first period with Mrs. Liz Yoke, she starts to ponder what flamboyant accessories and colorful outfit Mrs. Yoke will be wearing this morning.

8:25

While laying her pink and white Jansport backpack down and searching for the Algebra II homework from page 247 that is due, Cassie Bless begins to laugh with friends about their test grades. Struggling to control their laughter, Mrs. Bond begins to urge them to quite down as class begins.

9:20

Seventeen, Teen Prom, Cosmo Girl and Teen Vogue are scattered around Travis Gray while he listens to Megan Manion and Stephanie Weedling's opinions on each dress, literally. Throughout the talk of certain colors on skin tones, styles and hair do's they are usually discussing about events from the weekend.

10:29

Megan Manion strolls into the classroom to the first row, second to last seat preparing herself for what hysteric jokes Mr. Bosworth will tell this morning.

11:24

After finishing the play Macbeth the night before, Rhinda Shanklin plans to watch the reenactment of the play in her English class. While Corey Holesapple plays a witch his witch voice was quite comical.

12:49

Pacing herself into Mr. Bosworth's class with fellow cheerleader and friend, Marie Angermier, Courtney Demeter consults Marie about a cheerleading move they learned from the night before at practice.

1:44

With the TV screen full of PowerPoint notes and each student quietly mingling among themselves, Cheryl Volrath and Colby McGuire talk about the latest news in their lives.

2:34

Meeting in the South Gym for cheerleading practice, Rhinda Shanklin, Courtney Dementer, Colby McGuire and Cheryl Volrath all start stretching before they begin to go over their routines.

feel the moment, THINK THE YEAR

The moment walking through the front door is frightening, but the at the end of the year we think that was a great experience.

> Milada Masinova arrives on U.S. soil and looks in wonder at the new world around her. She is stunned at the enormity of the places that she sees.

> Milada is a foreign exchange student from Czech Republic, she arrived at the beginning of the year to study Mooresville High School.

> At age 17 Milada is enrolled as a senior this year at our school.

When she entered Door Number one on her first day of school, her eyes widened as her brain forced her to think," this place is huge. How am I ever going to find my classes?"

"I am so excited that I got to choose my classes, it is so neat how we get to experience different classes on a daily bases," Milada said.

"I attended the football game (homecoming) and was in shock. It's just a game with a ball that is very violent, but it was fun," Milada said.

"The people are very nice, and think that it is very cool that I am from a different country," Milada said.

Is that a Goldfish?

New Tradtions errupt In Mooresville High School but, how long will they last? By: Kayleigh Adcock

Fall homecoming this year could be described as anything but usual. The massive amounts of school sprit that faded into complaints about the traditions and the preconceived notion that the game would not go well. Numerous seniors were not happy with the reality of senior paddles not being returned and that all of the suggested replacements were being discarded, with a variety of reasons as to why.

A majority of seniors contemplated what new traditions to bring to the table; foam fingers, seat cushions, and bandannas were all alternative ideas. Senior Lindsey Faull joked during class about bringing gold fish as the senior tradition. The gold fish idea quickly spiraled into a new senior tradition, at least until teachers caught wind of it.

Proudly the guidance counselors stood at door 1 collecting the nicely decorated fish tanks and told students to pick them up at guidance at the end of the day.

"We [guidance] gave them a home for the day, we took care of them and let them see the coming and goings of guidance," Ms. Chris Urbanouskwi said. "We even made a sign that said 'fish in school'"

After guidance captured the senior goldfish, the administrators decided not to punish students with negative consequences but rather have fun with it.

"We [administrators] passed out the food goldfish, it was a fun effect to bringing in fish," Mr. VanWanzeele said.

Administrators enjoyed the senior's creativity, and seniors felt that they had accomplished something by bringing in a prohibited tradition.

The homecoming game was a well fought battle against rival Roncalli Rebels, the Pioneers were overpowered and the final score was 3-27.

"It was a tough game and we have some trouble pushing the ball down the field," junior Black Barkheimer said of the game.

Once the final score was posted, the bonfire extinguished, senior jeans hung back up and floats dismantled it became evident that not all traditions were gone.

Luckily, the traditions will live longer then the expected life span of a senior goldfish.

Although the guidance department collected the goldfish, a few people got away with keeping thier fish throughout the day.

1. Juniors Chris Woods and Corey Ramsey march through town for the homecoming parade.

2. A group of friends gather around the bombfire during the powder puff games to show their school spirit.

3. Senior Robby Petty receives goldfish from Principle Chuck Muston. Although, Mr. Muston was on crutches he still showed his school spirit by participating in the homecoming activities.

4. Freshman Kaylee Bolante puts black and pink war paint on friends to show that the Freshman class might be new to the school but, they will keep up tradition.

5. Seniors Shannon Polley and Heather Lashley look upon the memories of last year at the Yearbook booth during lunch.

Junior Crystal Carson Preps herself for the White Castle Sliders that she is about to swallow for the eating contest during the pep rally. The Seniors won the event with the underclassman stepping on there toes the whole way.

BIG IDEA...

Homecoming at MHS is full of traditions, old ones and new ones make their appearance throughout the homecoming week. The cheerleading squad decided upon the five spirit days western day, tie dye day , hat day cartoon day and blue and gold day Unfortunately the senior paddles did not make a come back this year and much to the seniors complaints about the paddle issue administration did not ease up on the matter. The pep rally was full of competition between the different classes, seniors dominated in every event. The tug o' war game is where the seniors fell to the administrators. Homecoming was a success this year even though the Pioneers fell to the Rebels, with a loss of 3-27.

The class of '06 wanted to leave their mark at MHS, so on the friday of the game seniors brought in "senior goldfish." Sadly, many were taken away before even making there apperance in the school. They were kept in guidance, the counselors took care of them and let them see the coming and goings of school. The goldfish idea was a creative one to say the least, but regrettably it went belly up just as the first hell rang feel the thrattle, THINK THE TRAIL AHEAD

The smell of gasoline, the sweet music of a thumper (four stroke engine) beating from behind, and the squeaking of gears set the scene as the preparation begins for the anticipation to exit the gate. Never ever be the last out of the gate, and don't be the first on the trail.

In a town where Friday nights are generally spent at the ball game or in movie theatres, many students find that the rest of the weekend is left to the imagination.

Many students at Mooresville High School find that dirt bike riding and four wheeling are a great past time, plus the biggest adrenaline rush that a student can experience in this small rural town of Mooresville, Indiana.

Football, basketball and most other high school sports appear more as two dimensional sports; but riding, as it is so often referred to, is a full-on three dimensional sport.

A new turn appears unexpectedly, a rut takes up the entire trial leaving only enough space for one tire to pass, a hill completely drops off on the other side, and a tree leans over into the trail, causing dodging to become a survival skill rather than skill that is fun to master.

When a rider jumps on the off-road vehicle, it is rider against machine. But as the trail progresses and the rider doe as well, the machine and rider become a one.

It takes a very brave soul to fight the random weather and the challenge of surviving with nothing but a machine and a trail surrounding a new found adrenaline rush.

aul Sawyer, Senior

"I feel free, no one can touch me when I am on my bike," senior Paul Sawyer said.

Sawyer has been riding since his dad bought him his first bike a Honda XR 75. Sawyer was six years old and has had a love for riding ever since that day. He now rides a Honda CR 250.

"I feel invisible. It's like being on the edge and if you go over the edge you loose control. I love that feeling it's a rush that can't be described."

A day of riding for Sawyer usually entails a long bit of riding and the usual crashes.

" I show up around 10 a.m. start riding around 10:30. I typically have my first wreck around 11:30, but I keep riding for the majority of the day. Then we (dad and riding buddies) hang out and have a fire and tell the usual stories."

Sawyer loves to ride at the biggest and most diverse off road park in the Midwest. The area is over 2,500 acres. That's right, 2,500 acres of nothing but trails, ridiculously steep grades, creeks and a whole lot of fun. There are even trails for Jeeps, Range Rovers, and other all-terrain vehicles.

"Land Between the Lakes has a lot of technical trails but some of the hardest riding. It's really big."

Sawyer feels that riding a quad as opposed to a bike is for the untalented.

"It's too easy to ride a quad, they have four wheels."

So according to Sawyer the best way to ride is on a bike preferably and a fast one at the well known LBL (Land between the Lakes).

Bhelsea Wenz, Sophomore

Sophomore Chelsea Wenz has been riding for almost a year, but has been involved with dirt bikes since the day she was born. "My dad has been riding since he was young... my parents could not afford a bike for me until last year and now my dad, cousins and my five year old brother love to ride every chance that we get, it's a family event."

On Wenz's sixteenth birthday, she got her own bike - a 2005 Honda CRF 230. She rides on weekends with her dad, brother, cousins, and life long family friends. She loves to ride with this particular group of people, > because she has watched all "the Guys" ride

... you're not riding hard enough if you don't fall...

> "My dad used to tell me you're not riding hard enough if you don't fall off the bike.

since she was very young.

and I have ridden with all I have, because I have spent a lot of time on the ground."

"It was my first time at Lawrence County, my favorite place to ride, I was putting along with my Uncle Ed and this mud hole was in front of us. I went through real slow and my bike just kind of fell over on top of me. My Uncle Ed came running over and was worried about the bike, so everyone was trying to get it up before it flooded. My Uncle was trying to lift up the bike up, my leg was on top of my muffler and every time that he lifted the bike it kept burning my leg, he kept asking me why I was screaming every time that he picked up the bike. I was laughing to hard to tell him that he was burning me. I had the biggest bruise ever and a burn on top of it. It hurt but, it was hilarious."

Right: Chelea Wenz and friend get ready to exit the gate a Lawrence County.

Wenz says the best part of riding is the never ending question of what can possibly be over that next hill.

"The best part of riding is the excitement that you get throughout the whole thing, the challenge and the feeling of accomplishment you get at the end of the ride."

Blake Hult, Junior

Junior Blake Hult has been riding since he was four years old. His dad had been racing since he was a teenager and was very excited to have a son to be able to teach him what he knew.

"My dad rode motorcycles for 20 years and he taught me, when I was really young."

Hult rides both bikes and quads but thinks that bikes are more fun."

"I ride both, but I prefer dirt bikes due to movability."

When Hult rides, he feels that he is untouchable and no one can touch him.

"I'm free, it's not stressful, I can go fast without being in trouble, I can relieve anger and stress."

"I've never wrecked, so no harm done."

Wagon Trails was a hit, even with all of the choas.

By: Kayleigh Adcock

While parents, friends and families filed into the auditorium with anticipation of the Wagon Trails Revue show, various amounts of emotions flew through the air backstage. Students ran around trying to find their instruments, yearbook members' mouthed lines to themselves, and choir members quietly rehearsed dance moves.

Wagon Trails Revue is a show that choirs, bands, color guard and numerous solo acts perform with skits in between from the yearbook staff. All of the proceeds go to help with the production of the yearbook.

The motivation behind having the Wagon Trails Revue show came about when the shortage of money to produce the yearbook became an enormous issue in the year of '72. Albert New, the yearbook sponsor during '72, decided to have a variety show equipped with a Miss Wagon Trails, solo acts and the music department with the funds going to help with their production.

During the 33rd annual Wagon Trails Revue show, the commotion behind the scenes ran full speed, many participants still felt the show was solid event. A first year finesse member recalls how things were moved and nerves were soaring.

"The stage crew pushed our dress change outfits off to the side, causing people to have to sort through them to find theirs," sophomore Kaylee Ransome said.

As well as things being moved, the show also had technical difficulties. Junior Chris Woods and senior Andrew Pehlem performed as a drum duo, with backlights as their only source of light.

"I had to play with only one of my black lights, because the other one did not turn on but it was a cool effect to our performance," Woods said.

The night could be described as an aurora of things; belongings were literally misplaced, people were gone astray from where they were needed, girls were looking for safety pins to fix a ripped dress, and one of the only two cordless microphones were missing in action. Through all of that mayhem the show was a huge success, and sold out on the first night.

1 Madrigals sang their hearts out during there a capella performance, the group had 25 members.

2 Natski lizuku, practically a prodigy, brought a new performance to the show by playing the piano, lizuku was also the fall homecoming princess.3 Courtney Demeter focused on the words of the song and made sure her last Wagon Trails Revue show was a success.

4 Senior Adam Lawson sang Unchained Melody at the show. This was Adams fourth year performing in the show.

5 Sophomore Chelsea Wenz practices before the curtain raises. Jazz band performed an array of songs such as Blue Skies.

6 Freshman Leslie Yegerliner performs for the Millennium choir. Leslie and her sister are both in choir.

BIG IDEA..

The Wagon Trails Revue was a huge success this year, the Friday night show was a sold out occasion. The show started out with a new twist, instead of an introduction straight into the show, senior Andrew Pelham and junior Chris Woods kicked off the show with a bang, literally. The two band members chose to do a drum duo outfitted with black lights so that the audience would only hear their drums. The yearbook staff added many comical moments to the show with their entertaining skits in between performances. All 17 members of the Wagon Trails staff performed a skit acting as if it were a yoga class set in the late '80s with junior Heather Woods pretending she was yearbook adviser, Miss Anderson. Spotlighters ended the show with a song entitled Rock this Town, Jump Jive and Wail.

Behind the blue curtain in the auditorium nayhem erupted when one of the two ordless mics were misplaced. The stage trew yearbook staff and Mrs. Elaine Mobeius frantically searched for the nissing mike. Ms. Eickhoff informed Miss Anderson over the head set of the situation hat had begun. The situation was solved he next night when the M.I.A. microphone was found, safe and sound underneath the niano. The show continued with only one nicrophone but the choir students made he best of the situation.

Right: Junior Chris Woods and senior Andrew Pellham brought a new performance to the show. They opened the show with a drum duo and a blacklight as their personal effect.

feel the agony THINK RENEWAL

A mother diagnosed with a serious illness. A father who loses his job. An elderly grandmother with heart problems. An innocent child born with a terminal illness. A childhood pet being put down. Living life without knowing your Dad's favorite color.

Even though that English paper is due shortly, it might need to be placed on the bottom of the priority list when these horrifying problems arise. We may never understand the serious challenges that students, teachers and staff members faced in their lives. However, for three strong and passionate individuals the tie that bonds them is their ability to feel agony and think of renewal.

English teacher Kelly Patel learned to heal and make herself happy through the loss of her four month old niece, Kenna.

Senior Cody Whitley and the Whitley family have faced his older brother, Brandon's, terrifying heart disease since his early childhood.

Junior Cody Clarkston has dealt without knowing his real father's favorite basketball team, and never will have that chance to find out.

From these three individuals, we learn a lesson of survival.

Although you might be surrounded by dark clouds right now, soon the sun will shine through.

RS. KELLY PATEL

In 1999, then an executive with Target stores, Kelly Carmichael watched her beautiful niece, Kenna be brought into the world. Kelly described her niece as a beautiful baby girl. "She was angelic," Kelly said.

Unfortunately, Kenna was diagnosed in February 2000 with a brain tumor at the tender age of two months. Throughout the next few weeks, Kelly feel in love with the feeling of being around her and seeing her beauty blossom, yet fade away.

Sadly, Kenna passed away at four months old. Her passing brought a new perspective to Kelly's life. She felt that her job wasn't satisfying enough, and she needed something more in her life. She soon resigned as executive with new motives put towards becoming a teacher. Already having a B.A. in Journalism from the University Of Mississippi, she pursued and received a teacher's license from Saint Mary-of-the Woods College. Kelly even married Mr. Samic Patel, and gave birth to a son, Sam.

Now 2006, currently an English teacher at Mooresville High School, Kelly Patel speaks sweetly of her niece and remembering her beauty.

Mrs. Patel is a firm believer that all tragedies happen for a reason; Kenna's reason was to bring a new perspective to her family members' lives. Mrs. Patel refers to Keena as an angel brought in their lives to put things in the right perspective.

"I would not be doing what I am today if it had not been for Kenna. I am so lucky to have learned from her what really is important in life," Patel said.

Dody Clarkston, Junior

Imagine drawing a stick-figured picture of your family without a dad being a part of it, having a little league baseball game but no dad there to watch, and no one to give a "#1 Dad" on Father's Day. Junior Cody Clarkston went through his childhood not knowing who his real father was. Clarkston went through 16 years of his life without seeing or speaking to his father.

"I never want to distance myself from my family." Clarkston said. In December, then working at the Waverly Inn with older sister A s h l e y , Clarkston's father contacted Ashley, through a co-worker at the Waverly Inn who he knew received his daughters cell phone number.

Ashley spoke to their father a few times and met him once.

Unfortunately, the Clarkstons' father passed away in January.

"My Dad's death helped me realize how much my stepdad cared when my Dad didn't.

He was around when my dad didn't want to be," Clarkston said.

"Really, family and friends are all you have when it comes down to it," Clarkston said realistically.

Gody Whitley, Senior Cody had the luxury of skipping study hall, eating Taco Bell in place of the repetitive French fries and attending the homecoming game without running out of breath, unlike his older brother.

Brandon Whitley, 2000 graduate of MHS, was diagnosed with a disease called Transposition of the Great Vessels.

Transposition of the great vessels is a hereditary heart defect in which the two major vessels that carry blood away from the heart, the aorta, and the pulmonary artery, are switched.

During Brandon's senior year, he pulled together from having two heart attacks to dance at the prom and receive his diploma.

Just a year after his graduation, the Whitley family watched as Brandon had to receive a defibrillator in place of his pacemaker, which he had since he was born.

Brandon's defibrillator malfunctioned in less then three months.

He was admitted to the hospital under serious condition, while the Whitley family stayed positive and strong.

He was automatically put on a ventilator and the transplant list. Cody and his family were informed that Brandon would not have much longer if he did not receive his transplant soon.

"We were all scared for my brother; he had already gone through so much and we didn't like seeing him in that state." Whitley said.

Luckily, Brandon received a heart on April 17, 2001.

"It was by far the best thing that could ever have happened to our family," Whitley said.

Brandon is now married and staying close to his family. However, Brandon was diagnosed with diabetes.

The doctors informed the Whitley family that Brandon's health is slowly declining again and he will need a second heart transplant in the near future.

"We all know that Brandon has the strength to make it through yet another obstacle in life," Whitley said.

Get the Ball Rolling Lack of spirit

In early October the vibrant colors of the leaves change, senior girls decorate their coveted senior jeans, and numerous amounts of spirit pour through the school. In mid-January the girls and boys varsity basketball teams prepare themselves for their homecoming game. However, this homecoming lacks in the mass amount of school spirit, the evident excitement of the game and crammed-packed bleachers.

The girls basketball team had amazing acomplishmentsthey beat Whiteland and Martinsville, two highly ranked teams.

" I do not think that people realize how good the girls team actually did- we beat two top ranked teams," sophomore Lindsey Stanedford said.

Winter homecoming held many activities to help get the student body in the spirit of winter homecoming. The school sponsored a studentfaculty basketball game.

" It wasn't a student vs. faculty game, it was a students vs. Tommy Dennis

In early October the game. We could have beat the ant colors of the leaves teachers," senior Danielle age, senior girls decorate Strohmeyer said.

> With luck on their side, the faculty team successfully beat the student team.

During the varsity girls' game the team played well together to get another win added to their record. They finished the season with a record of 19-4.

"It was a great game! We played really well together and won plus it was my birthday, so that was a bonus," senior Heather Harper said.

The final score of the girls game was 66-58.

Unfortunately, the boys were not able to pull off a win this game, but that isn't to say that they didn't play with their best effort.

"It was great to play my senior year. We knew it was our last year so we gave it our all," senior Adam Lawson said.

The boys varsity record was 7-14.

The varsity boys team fell to Plainfield with a score of 68-57.

BIG IDEA ...

BIGIDEA ... Winter Homecoming at Mooresville High School has never been really that big of a deal to most students. However, the Pep Rally is always a spirited event. The one tradition that has stuck around through the years is the faculty vs student basketball game that everyone seemed to enjoy. The staff always sit on the west end of the gym and the select few students join them to help cheer them on. On the East side of the gym filled with the student body who 'boo' and cheer on their classmates that bravely signed up to go up against their teachers. At halftime the cheerleaders show off their routine to get the gym roaring with spirit, and throw t-shirts out in the crowds. The winter teams prepare a speech and present it to the student body to bring awareness to the uncredited Winter Sports.

In Evansville Indiana, at least one tornado tore through southern Indiana, near Evansville, killing at minimum 22 people and injuring about 230.

While the current events seemed focused on negativity, it may appear that these issues started to affect the way some focused at school. While gas prices soared their way to record highs, students worked more to just to make it from place to place. It could became visible that all o these issues that were news related hav had a major impact in the lives of : simple high school student. Individual were are impacted in different ways by newsworthy events.

eith Sayer, Junior

Junior Keith Sayer didn't feel directly affected by the issues down south that resulted from Hurricane Katrina.

"I am able to remove myself from high emotion that is going on when it is necessary," Sayer said.

The gas prices effected everyone who owned a vehicle, and, for some, the price fluctuation made the gas companies seem unreliable and non-resentful to the needs that had been presented.

Since September 11, 2001 the gas prices had been a problem. Now, since the hurricanes and natural disasters placed a huge dent in the economy, prices jumped over the board more and more.

For most people they had gotten used to the issue that had been presented by the time that hurricane Katrina engulfed the southern coastal states. However, some new drivers didn't really quite understand the concept of the problem causing gas prices.

"...the fluctuating gas prices have affected me directly. I don't have any confidence in the industry...sometimes I just get caught up by the gas mans whim because I can't go without the hydro," Sayer said.

Some people felt that the issues down south were not as important as the issues here at home and that hearing about those issues just made the world that we live in seem worse than it was.

"The tragedies have simply served to perpetuate the gloominess of the world's status," Sayer concluded.

auren Hart, Sophomore

"I feel sad to know that all those animals were harmed and left without a home during the hurricane."

Junior Lauren Hart has a name that says it all, she has a very big heart. When it came to the tragedies that struck the United States, she felt as though she was helpless and could not do anything for the now homeless people.

"If I could take the time off of school and go down to help those who are suffering I would, I wish that I could take in all the animals that are roaming the streets a n d striving to survive." Hart a s W definitely remorseful for what happened to those h o W suffered. Hart could be seen during third period listening to t h e problems that go on the in world. "If there is something on

Channel One about everything, then I'll tune in," Hart said.

Hart can't do anything now about what happened except for hope that our economy can make it through all the issues that we have been presented with.

Ms. Joyce Gilly had all the answers for the questions that students asked about when the tragedies that had occurred happened during the year.

"It is often the topic of discussion, students have a lot of questions," Gilly said.

She answered the questions to the best of her knowledge.

"I simply explain the responsibilities of the different government agencies and respond to the arguments.

When it comes to the fluctuation in gas prices Gilly had a lot to say.

"Gas prices are always an issue. When diesel reached $3.85 a gallon I seriously was considering selling my car."

Gilly was blessed not to have anyone in her family directly hurt by the tragedies that hit the United States, but she did her part in helping.

"We have worked to organize care packages for Louisiana, we donated money to the salvation army, water and personal items to catholic sources (they sent trucks down)."

Gilly has a problem with not being able to help people. She helps everyone that crosses her path as much as she can.

"My son and I were ready to leave, to drive down labor day weekend. But ment that was the time that the government finally got organized, and FEMA and the soldiers start responding to the people in the convention center and the dome," she said.

Spring Break Horrors

In their minds the trip sounded wonderful. Whether it encompassed a trip to a sandy white beach, a cruise to a foreign country, a western trail or a national monument, spring break destinations were a place for entertainment, rest and relaxation. When April 10 quickly came and students were back into the realization of high school, the buzz covered who had the worse spring break story.

"We were supposed to get our hotel room at 3:30. However, the hotel overbooked and we didn't get ours until 7 p.m.," senior Ashley Purdue said. " We were homeless for four hours!"

Senior Jenna Cravens went to Puerto Vauarta, Mexico with her mom and a couple of friends. She lost her luggage on her way home.

"I realized I lost it when I got back to Indianapolis," Cravens said. The airport found her luggage buried in a back room, and it took five days to get it all back.

Stranded in Washington D.C., sophomore Megan Biggs and her older brother, senior Kyle Biggs, had only $7.00 and no parents. Their flight from Florida to Charlotte, North Carolina was delayed 55 minutes. They arrived at the Charlotte airport at the same time their flight was supposed to leave to go to the Indianapolis airport.

"They sold our tickets to standby people and told us we couldn't get on the plane," said sophomore Megan Biggs.

Megan and Kyle had to have four escorts to go to a hotel, that the airport paid for, because they were minors and had no where else to go. Megan and Kyle made it home safely on Monday morning.

"We had a man come up to us and said that there was a theatre up the street that was having a lot of celebrities and he didn't work for them, but he worked for the city. He then asked us for money," Mr. Savini said. He did not end up giving the man any money and he then walked away.

Let's just say that there were many interesting things that happened over spring break to the Mooresville community.

Comedy Hour Comical play gets a larger turnout than past.

Four weeks to study the lines for the part you want. Two days of meticulous auditions. One week to find out if you were successful at snatching your part. Three weeks to memorize all one-hundred and seven lines and cues. Five grueling weeks of repetitive practice.

All of these numbers add up to just two show nights of the Spring Play, "Glimpsed through the Sawdust," a melodrama comedic play set in the 1800s about a theater producer who swindles women.

"Even after seven weeks of practice the actors had such talent that I cracked up every time I watched it," assistant director Ms. Sharon Eickhoff said.

"This year's production produced a larger audience attendance then what we normally have," Mrs. Melanie Kassen said.

As the production ran smoothly both Friday and Saturday night, there were a few rather comical mishaps and hilarious ad-libs, which the audience had no idea of their existence.

"The cast had hilarious ad libs, the audience actually believed that they were there." Kassen said.

"Jake (Walls), sophomore, was supposed to tap me on the shoulder to give me a piece of paper; however, we started screaming and broke into song," junior Chris Wood's said.

In addition, there was a catastrophe with senior Danielle Strohmeyer and Wood's.

"I was supposed to gag her with the handkerchief instead I chocked her!" Wood's said.

"I thought the play was put together well," sophomore Logan Stoner said.

Overall, the production ran smoothly and was well-done.

4. Senior Casey Holtzclaw and his side kick Freshman Justin Moore from stage left at the beginning of the play.

5. Senior Amanda Heinsman and Sophomore Holly Matlock act with all that they have to fool the audience.

BIG IDEA...

The production staff included 22 cast members and 10 backstage crew members. The spring play had a larger audience attendance then normally expected. "We [the play production] had a nice sized crowd," Mrs. Melanie Kassen said. The play ran smoothly with only a few minor glitches. "We had some hilarious ad-libs added in throughout the night." Mrs. Kassen said. "Lenjoyed the play. It was put together well." sophomore Logan Stoner said. Overall, the play ran smoothly both nights and produced a larger audience attendance then what had normally been expected.

The reasoning behind the spring play money making boom could possibly be due to the fact that tickets prices were increased this year. "Ticket prices needed to be raised so that the drama department could have more things," Mrs. Kassen said.

Clownin' Around Spotlighters performed a new song about the circus.

Quiet whispers and nervous Demeter said. chatter floats around the atmosphere back stage. The Spotlighters wait patiently as the act in front of them finishes performing. As the group wraps up, the Spotlighters move toward the center of the stage. After a quick pep-talk, they all place their hands in and shout Go Spotlighters!

This was one of the many traditions of Mooresville choirs. Spring Spectacular was the final choir performance of the year. Genesis, Sound Image, Sensations, Millennium, Finesse, Madrigals, Verbal Essence, Insomniac, solo acts. and Spotlighters all took the stage for that final time of the school year.

Spring Spec. was an especially thrilling event for the seniors. Knowing that this would be the last time that they would step on stage brought mixed emotions.

"I was nervous: I didn't want to mess up. I was just really excited to perform for my last time in front of family and friends," senior Courtney

However, freshman Cory Shover felt differently. "I had mixed emotions. I was happy that I would be in a different choir next year than some people, which is good. But, I was also really sad that some of my friends didn't try out so I wouldn't see them again," Cory said.

For members of the upper choirs, the Saturday night performance can be tearful and emotional. "It made me really sad. I tried not to think about it," junior Kaylee Bush said.

One tradition is the Spotlighter girl's boochie-boo and the guy's use you big diction chants. "My favorite tradition is doing boochie-boo and shaking it before our performance," Demeter said.

After Spring Spec. was over, the list announcing next year's choir's was posted, and the year ended. Students then could look forward to a new year with new faces.

"I'm looking forward to not being a clown next year." junior Derek Gould said.

BIG IDEA...

The Show, "Spring Spectacular" served as one of the many traditions for Mooresville choirs. Spring Spectacular was the final choir performance of the year in the Auditorium, and following Spring Spec, as it is known, the only performance left for choir members was graduation. At the end of the performance, all of the choir members infiltrated the auditorium and the house area to sing one final song as one gigantic choir. The event proved to have lots of tears and promoted hugs from parents and friends to graduating seniors. The performance included all of the choirs, and even several solo acts, all surrounding the musical "Wicked," which Spotlighter, Finesse and Madrigal members watched during their trip to national competition in Chicago.

One of the strangest traditions for non-choir members to understand was choir members facial makeup. Spotlighter and Finesse senior pick out the make-up for that year. The make up is there to make sure the lights on the stage don't drown out facial features.

> Spotlighters dressed as clowns for their competition set. They performed the song "Join the Circus / Be a Clown" complete with acrobatic gymastics and bright costumes. The clown performance proved to be a crowd favorite when performed at Spring Spectacular in May.

> "Despite all of the drama revolving around my prom experience, I enjoyed it. I had a blast with all of my friends," junior Chris Baker said

BIG IDEA ...

To have prom at the Indianapolis Convention Center where traditionally it had been held, MHS had to agree to host prom on a riday. The school calendar only allotted for a half day for a Friday prom, in future years prom was scheduled for Friday night with the day of prom as a snow makeup day, making MHS history. Students then would have Sunday to rest from prom, post prom and King's Island. Which in terms meant that Monday would not be a day off school to rest. Many students were aggravated by this and many skipped school that Monday just to make a statement. The administration might have been upset about this and many received Friday detentions. However, it was worth it to attend prom to see nearly all of the juniors and seniors in the student body in one room for one fun filed night.

The dresses and the tuxes were all beautiful and everyone looked great. As the students checked out of the hight of the year that everyone emembered. Gift bags filled with key, chains, picture frames, booklets to fill in for memories, wine glasses and lot of tissue paper. After the students left he convention center they pulled out heir key chains and prepared to flash hem at the administration to enter bost prom.

Giddy up Wild Wild West ladies and gents.

Walking up to the north gymnasium, prom attendees in their matching t-shirts entered through a foe saloon and men pretending to be bar tenders back in the 'Wild, Wild, West.'

The inevitable sound of sighs after losing a hand of Texas Hold 'em or screams after falling from h t mechanical bull, something was going on in the 'Wild, Wild, West.'

Junior parents had countless meetings meticulously picking the theme for post prom 06', numerous weeks of building the props which added to the feel of the 'Wild, Wild, West.' theme

"I loved the mechanical bull!" junior Katie Hoover said, "and, those fruity popsicles were good too."

Not only did post prom include countless games directed toward the theme but food and prizes also. Prizes varied from a flat screen television to themed post prom t-shirts.

"We (Ashley and date senior, > prom has became a tradition at MHS that numerous students enjoyed participating in.

"This was my first year with the prom scene, I really enjoyed post prom. It was fun and enjoyable," junior Gibson Daniels said.

Some students might vouch to rest on Saturday while others managed to wake up relatively early from such a late night and attend King's Island.

"We got lost on the way to King's Island but we still had a memorable time," senior Saxon Chope said.

With prom over, seniors had only one thing left to look forward to: graduation.

"It was sad to know that my high school career was winding down. I liked hanging out with friends one last time prior to graduation," senior Whitney Wright said.

One of the most popular games at the event aside from Texas Hold 'em was riding the bull.

1. A Prom Committee parent shows the students how to ride the mechanical bull properly.

2. Senior Christen Johnson prepares herself to take out every single bottle on the fence.

3. Junior Paige Oswalt takes a picture of her date trying to lasso the bull.

BIG IDEA... Before the stroke of one o'clock, the crowed lined up waiting to enter into door 34 to gander at the festivities set up for the "Wild Wild West" theme for post prom.

As students entered, they had to show the required key chain to Mr Silver, Mrs. Ferguson and Mr. Van. After entry was gained, the students would walk in, be handed a bandana and immediately see the majo change in that hallway.

As they walked through the hallway, they were greeted by past characters that seemed too real to be played by parents.

The games set up around the North gym included: bull riding, karaoke, Texas Hold 'em and wheel barrel rolling to name a few.

feel the trickery

"...a rat caught on fire ... "

"Is that why we had to stand outside during a tornado watch?"

"Yep, I heard it from a police officer." "No way! I don't believe it!"

"Are you sure?"

"Well, you know what else I heard?" "What?"

"I heard that if you don't go to school on the day of prom then you aren't allowed in."

"You're kidding! Did Ms. Gilly's class soon became left in the hands of each start another rumor, like they did about the agendas?"

"No, seriously this one is true. I heard it from my boyfriend's younger sister, she is on the prom committee."

High school is the breading ground for rumors. Sometimes the rumor mill appeared completely correct; at others it was quickly discredited. The choice to decide between the trickery and legitimacy individual student.

Just a few of the rumors that traveled MHS hallways were the arrival of agendas, the reasoning behind an unexpected fire drill and the punishment if students did not attend school on career day, May 5. On that half day, prom was also scheduled in the afternoon., Were these rumors these rumors true? The investigation is under control.

Inbeknownst to numerous individuals within the school, a fire drill seemed somewhat preposterous during a tornado watch on that cold Monday morning during third period.

Rain sprinkled students and staff as they stood outside for most of the duration of third period. Mooresville Fire trucks parked in front of. Door 1 and Door 30 in response to a call caused by a censor in the equipment room.

However, as students began to walk in Officer Whitley took this as an opportunity to take advantage of his good mood and proclaim a ludicrous reason as to why there was a fire drill.

"I walked by and asked Officer Whitley what had happen," sophomore Samantha Jones, who was returning to her geometry class with Mr. Miller, said. "He told me that a rat caught on fire in an air vent."

Jones returned back to Miller's class and told everyone of the news that Officer Whitley had told her.

Quickly, the news spread like rapid wild fire within the minimal hours it took to spread, several people had heard of the supposed flammable rat.

"A lot of rumors go around but I just couldn't believe this one!" sophomore Devin Bryant, who is in Mr. Miller's geometry class with Jones, said.

"How would a rat catch on fire ... it is just trivial," Bryant said.

reports for Mr. Errett's class. Why one might assume that it contained school identification paper, this one was optional.

"The number of students that turn in prearranged absence forms the week before Spring Break is astronomical. It goes up higher and higher each year," Mrs. Bischoff said. The consequences of being marked unexcused on any day, you cannot make up any homework or tests that may be given.

"I am leaving three days early because the plane tickets were cheaper," senior Cassidy Wiser, who travelled to Ft. Myers, Florida, said.

"I just used a notebook that I bought to write down all of my assignments," sophomore Danielle Deaton said.

When agendas that were supposed to arrive "any" day continued to be delayed, many had to resort to creative ways to remember their homework assignments and other important information.

Amongst all of the repetitive complainants the administration reassured the student body that agendas would be in any day. Numerous students were under the impression that the teachers were withholding information, in all actuality teachers and students knew as much as one another.

"I thought that teachers were keeping things from us. It was just weird that we didn't have our agendas," junior Chelsea Groce said.

Ms. Joyce Gilly's seventh period sociology class decided to conduct its own sociological project. They would formulate a rumor establishing that agendas were never going to be delivered; students would have to merely depend on their memory.

"Students would use not having an agenda as an excuse to not remember homework and students were also complaining daily. I decided; since no one knew exactly, to make it but so that in the future it would not be an issue," Sociology teacher, Ms. Joyce Gilly said.

The students of Ms. Gilly's class started to tell their friends the rumor and students soon believed it.

The rumor quickly adapted into numerous miniature rumors; the agendas would be arriving in October. This rumor spread through the hallways like wildfire.

All of the commotion about the arrival of agendas was due to a major misprint from the plant that prints agendas, and the school had to send the agendas back to be reprinted.

Moving on and Moving out of High school.

"Why do they get to have a picnic when we have to pay for this slop?" junior Tyler Richardson said.

As a senior, many privileges arise, but the thought remains of the first days of freshman year were just four short years ago.

For many, the final days of high school brought an emotional roller coaster of joy and sadness. Leaving faces that had been seen since day one and every day after that, was sad and at the same time the thought of moving on was the most exciting thing ever.

As the seniors filed into the north gym for practice Mr. Muston called out, "ladies and gentleman please take your seats." He stated that there was a lot to accomplish in the next hour, finding the seats that were by height and then receiving the medallions that everyone of the seniors wore over royal blue robes.

"As the day comes to an end you can't help but think this is the last time that I will see all my classmates in one place except for on Saturday," senior Kendra Wissel said.

Saturday rolled around, and at 8 p.m. the seniors start filing in the doors for the last time.

The famous song "Pomp and Circumstance" played from the back of the gym while parents, family and friends looked eagerly for their loved one that is about to take the biggest steps in their lives across the stage to receive their diploma.

"Ladies and gentleman I present to you the 122nd class to graduate from Mooresville High School so, would the class of 2006 please rise and join me in the ceremonial turning of the tassel," senior Class President Kayla Smith said.

The 281 graduates stood to turn their tassels, and it was over.

Their days at MHS were over, and many broke out in tears; the rest jumped for joy.

All went their separate ways and maybe hopefully at the reunions seeing everyone again will bring back those wonderful memories of the days at MHS.

BIG IDEA ...

The ceremony comes to an end and the seniors were seen filing out of the gymnasium. the looks on their faces expressed that they were all to sad and excited to be leaving Mooresville High School. Graduation brought so many emotions to all the graduates soon to be Alumni. It showed many who their true friends were and how they would never see more than a handful of their friends from the past 18 years again. As each senior thought this to themselves and quickly reminisced in silence, their friends and family looked upon them from the bleachers and the floor that they shared with the 281 new alumni of Mooresville High School. The 122nd class of Mooresville High School, Ladies and Gentleman has graduated.

Each Senior early in May was informed that they needed to go get their tickets from the Auditorium hallway. As they all started making their way there, Ms. Eickhoff was heard yelling out "Check your envelopes for 13 blue tickets and 2 cream tickets!" Seniors begin to think how many people they would invite to the biggest parts of their adolescent lives.

The yearly photo causes us to recall the day that we awoke ready to take it and we think "those were the good days."

> As she left Algebra II and set her new destination to English, Desiree Cave seemed to be in a spunky mood. Today was the famous picture day, the day in which some hopelessly tried to fix that one hair that would not lay the correct way or where some dread over the fact that they might just blink. Those minor details did not cross Cave's mind- she was in a relatively good mood and not willing to let something as simplistic as school picture day interrupt that. Heading to the north gym where she was to take this annual photo, Cavee chose to let her good mood stand out in the photo. It entered her mind; a side ponytail with a big cheesy smile was it!

RIAN BLEVINS, SENIOR

Senior Brian Blevins is a wellrounded individual who wants nothing but success in life. Over his high school career, he has remained active in extracurricular activities and his studies.

"Never settle for less than the best. Always keep trying," Blevins said.

Throughout Blevins four years in high school, he worked hard in receiving particular awards. He was awarded multiple division one ratings at Solo and Ensemble contests, for both district and state levels). Four all for years of high school.

During his freshman year, he was awarded several division one rating at Solo Ensemble and contest, along with being in Marching band and various other band activities, including pep band symphonic and band. He was also in the All-Region Band Ensemble.

During Blevins Sophomore year, he still very was involved with band, and all other aspects of band. He was a member of the All-District Band Ensemble. During Blevins junior year, he joined the show choir band and jazz band. Blevins was also secretary of the band council.

"Many people don't know what it takes to be an active band member," Blevins said.

Finally, Blevins senior year, not only was he just in band and trying to concentrate on his school work, he was involved with Project Ignition, a PUSH group co-leader, a he was involved with National Honor Society. He also won division one awards at both levels, and went to All-District for the second year in a row.

Blevins is going to Indiana University to study Radiology. He will continue to be in a band when he goes to college.

"It (high school) was stressful, but I would do it again." Blevins said.

YLER JUGG. SENIOR

Senior Tyler Jugg was no stranger to success when it came to sports. As a junior linemen, Jugg was a part of the football team that went undefeated in the regular season. He received many awards and was named best linemen men in the west in all conference. In his senior year, Jugg served as captain of the varsity football team.

However, Jugg learned how to display persistence on and off the field. He tried out to be in Spotlighters and made it his senior year. In addition to his regular Never settle football practices for less than the Jugg practiced best. Always for choir twice a week and even more when there was a competition. He received an award at the choir's Southmont competition for being the choir's best performer.

Not only was Jugg in football and in Spotlighters, he was also in Project Ignition, Broadcast and in many different school plays. He attended a study session from 7:00 to 7:15 each school morning then stayed after for either choir practice or play practice. He usually didn't arrive home until 9:30 p.m. and at which time he hit the books.

"I made goals my freshman year, they were to graduate with a Core 40 diploma, be a good person all around, and be the football captain," Jugg said.

Jugg accomplished all of the goals that he set for himself.

IYSSA JEWELL. SENIUR

It has been no easy task for senior Alyssa Jewell. At the beginning of her freshman year Jewell made multiple goals for her high school career. Some of these goals included wanting to finish high school with a high GPA, be at the top of her class and do well academically.

Over the past four years, she tried to do well in all of her classes. As a result, she was able to become one of the top students in her class - Jewell Finished second in the senior class.

"Now that I have achieved it, it is an amazing feeling, one of relief and happiness. It is nice to have all my years of hard work to be recognized," Jewell said.

Jewell enjoyed being on the Pulse staff.

"Being on the Pulse staff has been an incredible experience. I love writing stories and designing page layouts in order to interest the student body," Jewell said.

Besides Jewell being in Pulse, she was also involved with Orchestra, SADD, PUSH. 4-H ambassador, Pioneer ambassador, National Honor Society and Project Ignition. Outside of school, she served as a group leader at Greenwood Presbyterian Church, Shepherd Community youth center volunteer, she played the piano and she was the worship band song leader.

She acted in school plays for two years, and she enjoyed it.

"It is so much fun to take on another personality and act out a story with others," Jewell said.

Many awards that Jewell has won were, USSMA for Orchestra, Piano, Key club awards, numerous different scholarships and High Honor Roll.

"Ten hours of traveling to campus and back each week was taking it's toll, especially for a full-time teacher with papers to grade, a family to raise, and a church to serve," said broadcast teacher Andy Marine.

Marine took several Ball State classes in order to receive certification to continue as broadcast adviser.

"I've enjoyed these classes. They related to the subject I lovejournalism."

What was Your Abost Menurable Moment This year?

"My most memorable moment this year was my youngest daughter's wedding in December."

-Liz Yoke

"As a new teacher both to the profession and Mooresville High School, my first day of school was memorable. I like to look back to that day, and compare how far and how much not only my students have grown, but also the growth and change in myself. The students have had a big impact in my life, and I am really enjoying teaching."

-Kelly Patel

"My most memorable moment from this year was throughout our girls' cross country season. We improved tremendously from meet to meet and our program is building from more girls participating. It's exciting and I can't wait until next season."

-Jeri Meyerholtz

"My most memoriable moment is becoming a grandmother for the first time on September 2, 2005."

As the game begins and the pain endures we have to ignore it an put in a good show for the supporting fans.

> Mrs. Liz Yoke wakes up in the morning, picks out her jewelry along with her outfit and heads for Mooresville High School. She arrives at approximately 5:30 a.m., hustles it to the Natatorium and goes through her morning exercises. She starts off with fifteen minutes of walking backwards and ends with her daily swimming routine with laps of the freestyle stroke. After she finishes her morning routine she hauls off to her classroom. As the first bell rings at 7:30 a.m. students poor through the door but, no one knows she has already spent one hour of her day in the famous natatorium.

Below: "I was not very good at playing golf, but all the girl made the season a lot of fun," sophomore Brittany Stromeyer said.

The girl's golf team grew from a minuscule four to a whopping twelve. Having a larger team brought potential for the team to have talent that is more diverse. This increase allowed the girls to help each other throughout the season. Novice members accompanied with the more seasoned players gave the MHS golf team a greater chance at winning.

"More experienced players were definitely a major plus to our rookies. The girls were very social so comments of motivation were always plentiful," sophomore Heather Warthen said.

Not only were the returning golfers able to motivate those new to high school golf but also teach the the ropes of the game.

The boy's soccer team played an extraordinary game against Ben Davis. They led off to a great start by shutting down Ben Davis' primary scorer, Tamba Samba.

They did this by using the method of shadowing, which is when a player guards his opponent closely, to prevent him from scoring any goals.

"The best play of the game was when we blocked Tamba Samba from scoring goals," junior Andy Fortner said. Although the team was not scoring any goals they continued to show superlative effort.

As the end of the game grew nearer, the team stepped up their performance, but this was not enough to win the game. Ben Davis ended the game winning 2-1.

"Even though we ended up losing, I think it was still a really great game," senior Tyler Ballard said.

Throughout the season, the girl's soccer team was plagued with numerous injuries. Junior Rachelle Rose, had two transverse processes in her spine broken during the Plainfield game.

"It was a 50-50 game and I had it. but the girl kept running and she fell on me! [It effected the team because] having a good keeper is important and there are not very many goalies on the team," Rose said.

Senior Sara Grubbs as well as junior Ashleigh Lybarger both had to have surgery during the season.

Sophomore Tabytha Waterman paces herself knowing that it is only the beginning of the race.

"The Rushville meet was one of my frist meets so I just tried to keep up with the group in front of me," freshman Kailyn Baker said. Baker got an award after the meet.

Sophomore Megan Gray sails smoothly in the first mile of her race at Rushville. Gray improved from meet to meet.

"I didn't really like the relays, because you couldn't pace yourself," freshman Raeann Heilman said. This was her first year running cross country.

Running day in and day out; being dehydrated; going through aches and pains; feeling accomplished after running six miles; finishing first in a race; getting first as a team in a meet; reaching a goal for a personal record; advancing past sectionals. All of this describes the girl's cross country team's season. Among all of this was a sense of victory and dedication.

As each member improved her capabilites, the team grew strong together, "We all got together a few times and made shirts for sectionals," sophomore Megan Gray said.

"Caitlin [Tinsley, freshman] and Raeann [Heliman, freshman] were the funniest on the team, they always made me laugh when they would show us their dances or when they would just goof around," junior Kelsie Kanouse said.

Their hardwork during summer trainging finally paid off in their first meet at Beech Grove when they received first place.

Towards the end of the season freshman Kailyn Baker showed her improvements by advancing out of sectionals into regionals, and then to semi-state.

Overall, the girls had a very good season and hope to advance to regionals next year.

"Vaya azul grande!" One might here this being chanted before the freshman volleyball games. A Spanish spin on a popular cheer, translated, it means "go big blue".

Along with practicing their school spirit, the team prays before each game. This helps them to get pumped up and ready for the game. During their last game of the season the girls battled hard, but were not victorious.

The team was sort of down in the dumps because they had lost. Freshman, Maci O'Neill decided to cheer them up by pouring water everywhere, including all over the team.

"Maci's mom also threw a water bottle, and started a water fight," freshman, Brooke Messer said.

This created a bit of a slippery surface, which caused Messer to fall, as well as everyone else.

"Whenever someone got hurt Brooke would always say "she said owe' so we all yelled it," freshman Dana Deaton said.

After all the commotion subsided, the team realized that they had a winning record for the season.

They began to forget about their loss and remembered all that they had gained.

"We did good and we had fun, thats what matters," Deaton said.

Season Frens Team Unity

By: Amber O'Dell

Suffering a great loss from last year to this year the MHS Football Team did a great job. With the loss of over 20 seniors, the underclassmen were left to carry out traditions held up by teams in the years past.

Traditions such as giving the students a reason to spend their Friday night in the stands, being the talk of Monday mornings to those students who had to work on Friday night, or leading the school from victory to victory.

It didn't come as a surprise to many students when the team pulled through with a record of 4-7.

"Our biggest loss of the season had to be sectionals against Whiteland because we had beaten them before, but also because it was the last game of the season," sophomore Clayton Smith said.

Sophomore Jared Jacobs agreed with Smith "If you lose you go home," said Jacobs.

The first time they played Whiteland the score was 59-14. The second time around the score was 28-35. As you can see there was a big difference in scores from the first game to second game.

"The underclassmen had a big spot to fill due to the loss of all the seniors, but in the end I think they did a great job," junior Jessica Clark said.

"I think our season was full of ups and downs, twist and turns, but in the end we had a lot of seniors that had a lot of heart and I'm going to miss them next year," sophomore Nick Bradford said.

From senior Tyler Jugg's point of view, the team taught him a lot this year.

"I was very proud of my brothers. They fought through the hard times, and I love all of them for who they have helped me become. Thank you all," Jugg said.

The MHS football team sticks together no matter what the situation is, and this year so did the MHS students.

"Students showed up to the games no matter what the weather was like or who they played. We had a lot of fans besides students including parents as well," senior Tyler Ballard said.

Season Frens Losing Streak

By: Amber O'Dell

The MHS Freshman Football team has been on a losing streak for the past two years, but this years team has broken that streak. The team had not won a single game in those two years. By the end of the season they had won three games.

"I think the team kept their heads straight and improved but there is still room for more," said freshman Brock Day. Some students do not think that they played as a team, but that most of them were playing for themselves instead.

"We didn't play as a team, there was more arguing then playing, and I think we needed to work on that," freshman Matt Kenney said. Although the arguing didn't help the season, students who weren't on the team in middle school think the season went well.

"With this being my first season on the team, I think we did a lot better then the years past. We didn't win any games our seventh grade year and we won one game our eighth grade year. So, for winning three games we did well," freshman leff Bonnewell said.

The players huddle on the side lines to watch the game.

The team runs off the field after one of the plays to get a drink off water.

Picture this ... standing on the track, your back to the game, staring into packed stands yelling GO BIG BLUE, and every upcoming touch down doing push-ups to show support.

That is just the part of cheerleading that the students see. They do not see the practices or the time involved. One obstacle this year was new coaches, and having to work independently sometimes.

"We've had a lot of fun this year, and have been able to adapt to new coaching styles," senior Lindsay Faull said.

The girls had to work with a partial coaching staff during some of the games and practices, but overcame those difficulties.

"After overcoming the obstacles the cheerleaders know how to make it hard core fun," sophomore Katie Jo Jennings said.

It isn't just about the problems with the squads and their coaches either but also the fans.

"It's amazing because the whole town of Mooresville comes to the games and cheers along, it is also fun to be outside all the time," senior Marie Angermeier said.

There are many necessities that are needed to have a good traditions such as: playing team. It takes: hard work, determination, team unity, love for the sport, support from loved ones and last but not definitely not least ... fun.

It was shown by this year's wrestling team that you can have your cake and eat it too.

Seniors Josh Allison, Randy Pryor and Alex Warren were looked at as leaders by many on the team and contributed their skills to the team.

"If someone needed help, they would take time to help them out. They brought a lot of team unity," junior Abe Wathen said.

The team had many fun nintendo, singing songs and joking around.

"I really enjoyed playing contra before weigh-ins and singing Queen songs afterwards," sophomore Jimmy Bothwell said.

"I remember after the season was over. I went to a team party. We played nintendo, sang karaoke and I put on a magic show," senior Randy Prvor said.

Swimming is one of the hardest sports to be in, it involves using the entire body. Unlike basketball, football, track or baseball, one must use more than one designated area to work.

To be in any sport, an athlete has to have some type of support. Having support from teammates, the ones closest to him/her on a day to day basis, is the best type of support.

Whether they had a great year or not it's safe to say that they were both tightly packed teams.

"Everyone was a late bloomer and started to act more as a team at the end of the year," senior Alex Brunk said. Brunk made it into the finals of sectionals for one of the two events he expected to advance in. "There were many memorable moments. Most of them included times with the girls. We all had a lot of fun and will always remember the inside jokes. Coach Davis was also pretty cool," said senior Marie Angermeier. Angermeier was well liked by many of the girls and viewed as a team leader in many aspects.

Season Frens Mid State Championship

By: Ashley Piner

To many members of the freshmen basketball team, the Mid-State Conference Championship against Whiteland was the highlight of their season.

This was an important game for the team, because they had lost against Whiteland during the season and their coach had never won the Conference Championship before.

During the first half of the game Mooresville came out strong with the referees against them.

"I would say they [Whiteland] had the advantage playing in their own school,

There is always going to be a winner and a loser. In sports, as long as you did your best sometimes that's all that matters. One of the toughest games, according to sophomore Danielle Rusie, was the game against Martinsville.

"We only scored 11 points in the first half, and it never got much better after that. We came in a little intimidated, so we played scared," Rusie said.

Coach Ball said that the team's main strength was speed, but that shooting and staying focused for the game gave them some difficulties.

From an audience perspective, Freshman Ashley Antic agrees that the Martinsville game was a rough one.

"They weren't really playing as a team and they acted a little scared. I think they learned a lot from that game though," Antic said.

Overall the team had a good season. They were able to improve on rebounding from the previous year and also finished the season with a winning record of 11-3.

Cheerleading isn't all about the ribbons and smiles you see on the sidelines. The Varsity and Junior Varsity squad had to deal with several issues this year, but they were able to put those aside and come onto the court full of spirit and with a happy face.

"We had a lot of obstacles to get around this season, but overall it was a fun group of girls and we had a good time," sophomore Stacie VanDyke said.

After former coach Kathy Bothwell stepped out of the position, one of the biggest obstacles the cheerleaders had to overcome was the arrival of new coaches. Bothwell had coached the squad for seven years until she decided that she wanted to explore other opportunities.

"Overall it was a fun year because it was my senior year," senior Heather Wilson said, "We had new coaches so we had some things to adjust to. I never realized how much Coach Bothwell did 'behind the scenes'. It was fun while it lasted though, and I'll miss it."

One might say that unity is a vital part of being a team. It is especially important for a cheerleading squad, considering that sometimes the other cheerleaders are the only thing stopping you from falling to the ground.

"This year, the Varsity squad was like oil and water. Unlike the years before, we never really came together as one," senior Rhianda Shanklin said, "My senior year was an eye-opening experience. Throughout both seasons we had our ups and downs, but the good outweighed the bad."

Frens Mid State Conference

By: Ashley Piner

The Mid-State Conference was filled with great competition. Mooresville placed fourth out of four, but everyone on the team did a great job and most improved on their times.

The 4x400 meter relay team consisted of Kayla Smith, Lauren Bobst, Jessica Walton, and Lauren Kenney was named the highlight of the meet by Coach Geri Meyerholtz.

They finished first at Mid-State, broke an eighteen year old record time of 4:11, and brought down their team by 8.5 seconds. At State Finals, they broke their own record with a time of 4:07.58. Participants in the field events performed exceptionally as well at Mid-State. Shotput and discuss throwers are the unseen heroes of track. They are not out there on the track running for everyone to see them, but they are just as important as the ones running. Once their event ends they stay out on the field cheering on the rest of their team.

"At Mid-State the entire team was lined up by the track cheering on the runners, which is very encouraging. It gets you really pumped up to hear everyone cheering for you," junior Jessica Walton said.

The boys track team as a whole had a good year. There were some individuals whose contributions were vital to the team's success.

The boys placed second in the mid-state conference and in the county meet. For the mid-state conference, the boys team predicted to lose by 10 points but in the end, only lost by four points.

"In the 4 x 400 meter relay we broke records," senior Chris Hawkins said.

Hawkins led the team by example in competition and in meets.

The boys had a great program this year and hope to continue through next year with their young team.

"We didn't have many wins as a team but we had a lot of individual accomplishments," junior Dean Rothenberger said.

FORCE eason Frens Traditions

By: Heather Woods

With every team comes a set of traditions. For the softball teams these traditions were more like everyday routine.

After every game, win or loss, the teams would go out into their selected area of the outfield to talk about the game and how things should've been or what the girls needed to work on. The varsity team usually gathered in center field, as for junior varsity, they met in right field for away games and in left field for home games.

With traditions that have continued throughout the years, upper classmen are needed for guidance to show the way.

"I made sure I talked to the lower classmen and I let them know what was going on," senior Ginger Bush said.

"This season was more fun [compared to middle school] especially playing with the older girls, we were a lot better then when we were younger," freshman Krista Robinson said.

As traditions continued, a stronger team grew together, learned together and became more like a family then a team.

"Our JV team had a lot of fun together, we all got along really well and had a great season," sophomore Ayreka Deaton said.

With bonds continuing to grow and leaders coming into their place, both softball teams can be expected to have great seasons.

Homerun placke BUNT Frend Varsity baseball

By: Ashley Piner

Twenty-eight games, weeks worth of practices, and 14 very talented players to get it all done. What other team is better to do this than the Boy's Varsity Baseball team. These boys aren't just on the team because their parents make them; they are on it because they enjoy playing baseball.

"I love baseball because it is such a relaxing game. I've played for as long as I can remember. It's the only sport I have stuck with, which makes it y favorite. I have quit all other sports just so I could play baseball. Plus I'm pretty good, which is the reason I am going to college. I love baseball," senior Marc Roberts said. Whether baseball is played because it is a relaxing or exciting game, it is certain that the Mooresville Varsity Baseball team members were dedicated to the game and their teammates.

"I love to play baseball, because it is an exciting game. You never know when the ball is coming to, and it's anyone's game. Just because they have a good player doesn't mean they are the best team," junior Denton Hopwood said.

"Baseball is one of the few sports where it takes the effort of the entire team to succeed," senior Thad Miller said.

BAT SINGLE PITCHER Season Frens Learning

Sometimes what makes the season a good experience is how much you learn along the way. Overall the members of the Boys Junior Varsity baseball team agree that the season was positive because of this.

"[The season] started off bad, but in the end i think its going to be pretty good," sophomore Devin Bryant said.

According to Sophomore Dale Luttrell, who pitches for the team, another positive aspect of the season was being together as a team, getting along as a team, and winning as a team.

Junior Chelsy Gott, who plays #2 singles, follows through with a forehand. "We improved as a team this year. Our record is much better than last years. We just keep getting better each year," Gott said.

After returning a serve, freshman Sarah Vaughn runs towards the net. "I had a lot of fun playing with everyone on the team. I am planning on playing again as a sophomore," Vaughn said.

Senior Danielle Strohmeyer slams the ball in a volley. "We had a blast with each other and managed to win half of our matches. That's a great season if you ask me," Strohmeyer said.

Towards the beginning of the season the girls were not very close and it took some getting use to each other to become a team instead of individuals.

"We've done a lot better as a whole, but it took some time to get use to working together. I think all of us will miss the seniors," sophomore Stephanie Nerding said.

Season Frens' advancing from Sectionals

As his palms grip the steering wheel, his foot presses the brake, with a nervous feeling in the pit of his stomach he turns the bus into the parking lot of the Heartland Crossing Golf Course. The boy's golf team focus was to advance from the sectionals and to try their best.

"We did well but they are disappointed," coach Jeff Franklin said. Advancing from the sectionals depended upon the level of their experience where some of the teammates agree that they needed to work in that area.

"I thought we had trouble playing to our potential, we didn't always all play well at the same time," sophomore Kevin Schneider said.

"We aren't very deep as a team, but our top four individuals are good golfers," senior Nick Schubert said.

Brian Livingston, a senior, shot a 38-38-76 and advanced into regional competition over the summer at Hickory Stick Golf Club. There, the Mooresville valedictorian shot a 43-47-90 under chilly and breezy conditions.

"To focus on advancing from the sectionals a good golf coach has to be a manager because most of the golf team has other sources of help, like personal coaches. As a golf coach I can't substitute, call time outs, or say play better defense. Sometimes we as a team joke around that I'm just the glorified bus driver. During the match I just ask them their state of mind and make sure they're comfortable," coach Franklin said.

What is the difference between a player and an athlete? A player simply goes through the motions day in and day out. However, it takes passion, skill and a "got to want it" attitude to be considered an athlete.

No matter what sport or season it is, there is bound to be what some would call an "all star" of each sport. Others, may call them the cream of the crop, the Michael Jordan of his/ her sport, the epitome of athleticism or even an M.V.P.

Whatever the title may be, those select few are viewed as leaders and role models by people in or outside of their sport.

Whether they are running a long race on a hot autumn day with sweat dripping down their face, pitching the game of their life under the blazing sun in spring, or wrestling in the State Championship final match with a spotlight shining directly down on them, these athletes are a force to be reckoned with and should be recognized.

Granted, most athletes do try their hardest to excel, these stars seem to shine a bit brighter.

These elite athletes push themselves to the limit and beyond, going where few have dreamed of.

avson Dowden, junior

In 1871 baseball, now known as America's favorite past time" was officially created. For junior Jayson Dowden, it began 12 years ago, when he was just five telling himself to years old.

Since then, his passion has grown and he is now the starting pitcher for the Junior Varsity and Varsity baseball team. When not pitching, Dowden usually plays shortstop.

"Besides pitcher and catcher, I think being sick and shortstop is the most important position missing school from on the field. That's why I've tried to work to earn that position," Dowden said.

One of Dowden's greatest missing accomplishments was pitching a perfect practices as well, game.

"I wouldn't mind if I had only one phase him during perfect game because one is good enough for me," Dowden said.

To gain composure before each game, try and destroy my Dowden stretches a lot, collects his opponents as much thoughts and prays.

Outside of the season regular plays Dowden summer ball for the school and then fall ball at Noblesville.

As for the upcoming season, Dowden plans on trying to become a better player, teammate and for his team to advance past the first round of sectionals.

lex Warren, senior

" My dad said I should let loose a little, because if I won, I earned that time to shine." senior Alex Warren said, who wasn't known to celebrate his victories, but, "everyone celebrates state championships," Warren said.

Alex Warren had been preparing for this moment since the third grade, training year round, lifting four to five times per week and wrestling six days per week. Then when summer vacation arrives, while others are hanging by the pool, Warren goes to a camp, where he endures eight long weeks of intense threea-day-practice matches with some of the best wrestlers in the nation.

"There was a lot of mixed emotions. I was completely drained and fatigued. I thinking, kept maybe I couldn't win being like this," Warren said.

Warren kept be positive and to keep his composure because he had trained harder than his competition. The thought of the previous week, not to mention vital did not seem to the match.

"I usually like to as possible, but coach

... one is good enough for me...

told me to conserve energy, a win is a win even if it is only by a couple, and you only need one point to win," Warren said.

Warren started the match out strong by getting an early take down, giving him confidence, taking the match point by point, and staying in good position. Warren coasted through the rest of the match forcing himself to stay focused and blocking everything out, waiting until the end to soak everything up.

"There were about 10-12,000 people there, all watching just you, so no mistakes," Warren said.

As one might imagine winning the state championship would be an amazing feeling, for Warren it was almost indescribable.

"When the buzzer sounded and I won, I stretched out the 'M' symbol on my singlet to represent my school/community. I gave a good flex and yell to let everything that was built up out. Tired or not, I found the energy, and found it really quick," Warren said.

35 seconds, Kailyn Baker quickly gained notoriety, becoming the third fastest runner in Mooresville's history for girl's cross country. As a freshman, Baker finished first in two of her meets and also advanced to semi-state.

While teams were still conditioning, in the beginning of the season, Baker had one choice ... soccer or cross country. Luckily, for the girls' cross country team, Baker chose the latter.

"I thought that [cross country] would be easier to be more competitive and I would be able to accomplish more. It seemed that in cross country the girls were a lot closer," Baker said.

With all the support behind her, Baker improved her time throughout the season by an astonishing one minute and eleven seconds.

"The thing I like about cross country are the people you get to meet, you can make really good friends. I also love the competition and the excitement," Baker said.

With the potential to be one of the greats, this freshman plans to take things step by step: third place, second place, then hopefully, first place.

"My goals for next year would be to try to beat my time and hopefully get to be second in Mooresville's history," Baker said.

Serior athletes lead by example

Leadership is a process of getting things done through people. There are no rules for leadership, but a good leader does what comes naturally to him or her as the rest of the team follows. Every successful team must have a good leader or maybe more. The leader or leaders of that team are the ones that the team looks up to when they need help or do not fully understand their own position.

"We kept the younger kids on their feet and kept them from falling behind during practices and games. We also stepped up to different challenges that were present by the coaches and the other teams that we played," senior Steven Watkins said.

Most seniors interviewed said that being a senior makes them feel like they have a leadership position.

"I was looked on as the older kid; there was not anybody for me to look up to for leadership this year. I found strength in my teammates and my coaches. My junior year I could rely on the seniors to make the 'Big Plays', as long as I did my job," senior Justin Dunn said.

"We really had to step it up to the plate this year and take on more responsibility. In years past, we really didn't have a say in anything, so we just went along with what the other seniors decided, but this year it was our turn," senior Amanda Jones said.

MHS Students Take Steps to Healthier Bodies.

By: Chelsea Tooley

If there is one concern that Americans have, it's healthy lifestyles. According to "The Weight Watchers Diet Manual 2006," more than 30 billion dollars are spent on diet related products. Americans in 2006 were definitely a society with diets on our minds. Several classes helped students learn about healthy lifestyles including health and boys and girls APC and gym.

ll sophomores are required to take health class. In that class students learned about the body's parts and emotions.

"Girls tend to do more little things (for their grade) and the look ahead to the future," said health teacher Mr. Whitaker. Mr. Whitaker worked with sophomores all day. girls in MHS's APC and gym classes.

lealthful Habits

Girl's gym did many activities. They even swam every two weeks. The girls APC classes lift and run along with many other activities. They even have quirky ways to keep them motivated. "Every time we start to slack off Mrs. Thompson reminds us that spring break is just a few weeks away," said junior Colby McGuire.

C very day, in those testosterone filled Eweight rooms and gyms, you can find boys playing kickball or lifting weights. Many of the guys here at MHS take advantage of the physical education classes. While gym is a required course many people end up taking APC later in their high school vear. "I'm taking APC all year to stay in shape," senior Cody Burnette said.

With so much talk of diets in 2006 it is nice to know that so many students at MHS nnie Oakley would be proud of the are taking advantage of physically healthy classes.

Different Aspects of Agriculture

By: Jade Biggerstaff

Planting flowers, studying plant and animal life and learning about the different parts of nature are just some of the many aspects of Mrs. Weiss' agriculture classes. "In animal science we usually study different parts of animals like cows and pigs," senior Shawn Foye said.

Students in Mrs. Weiss' horticulture classes learned about plants and how they grow. They also got to plant flowers and learn how to take care of them. "I love horticulture class. I like to watch the plants grow having the satisfaction of knowing that I helped them grow," senior Cody Burnette said.

Perhaps one downfall of having a class in the agriculture building is having to walk outside in the inclement weather of Indiana. "I don't mind walking outside in the cold. I look better outside. Its worth it." Foye said.

Students take Area 31 program in order to gain hands-on experience.

by: Brianna Franks

"What am I going to do with my life?" This is a common question among many students, but for students in the Area 31 program, the answer to this question is already decided.

"I knew I wanted to be a nurse so this class helped me experience what it will really be like," senior Amy Wilson said.

The Area 31 program offers classes for students who know what they want to be in the future, really experience their career firsthand. The class also provides help for students who are undecided about a career field, chose what they will be in the future.

"I didn't really know what I wanted to do exactly so this class helped me choose what I will be doing," junior Jim Call said. The program offers many hands-on classes for the students. Among the programs are: automotive mechanics, building trades, culinary arts, early childhood education, health occupations, heating and air conditioning, preoccupations, and printing.

The class prepares sophomores, juniors, and seniors for life outside high school. It teaches them special job trades, business ethics, and also people skills. The teachers work with the students to make their career experiences something that they will take with them once they leave the Area 31 program.

"This class is a good opportunity to get experience and skills to succeed after high school," guidance counselor Debra Page said.

Students Make Their Way Into the Future in Business Classes.

by: Brianna Franks

Many students choose to take businesss education classes so they can fill up spaces on their schedules. Whether it is the Keyboarding class, the Business Math Personal Finance class, all students have their own personal reasons as to why they are taking these classes.

"I am taking a business class so I can keep from falling asleep in some of my classes," sophomore Steve Hakes said.

However, many students choose to take a business class to help them prepare for a future in the business world.

"I am taking keyboarding because I need this class in order to be a really good typist," freshman Taylor Wittell said. Some of the available business classes are: Business Math Personal Finance, Accounting I and Accounting II, Business Personal Law, Computer Applications, Keyboarding, and Marketing.

"It's important to be a good typer when you get out into the business world," Wittell said.

Also, in order for many students in this school to get their Core 40 diplomas, they have to take a business class.

"I have to take this class because it's something that I have to do in order to graduate," sophomore Devin Bryant said.

American Studies students spend time in Brown County

By: Chelsea Tooley

"I went to the woods, because I wished to live deliberately...and suck out all the marrow of life." (Thoreau) This quote is the reason that the American Studies class took a field trip to Brown County, Indiana.

They went to discover for themselves the beauty of nature and the ideas of transcendalism. Prior to the field trip the students had studied the works of Ralph Waldo Emerson and Henry David Thoreau. "I loved studing Thoreau because his quotes were so deep," junior Bryce Newton said.

Students read quotes from Emerson or Thoreau as soon as they got there. "My quote was 'immitation is suicide'," junior Keith Sayer said.

Students listened to Mr. Eagleman, a park speaker, talk about nature and Thoreau's ideas of it.

"Mr. Eagleman was a really cool speaker, and I learned a lot from him," junior Dean Rothenberger said. Mr. Eagleman spoke on Throreau's ideas and observations of nature.

After their speaker and some snacks, students went to explore nature like Thoreau did at Waldon Pond. "Being at Brown County was amazing a day without schedules and of observation it was the best," junior Nicole Eckstein said.

"American Studies is just one of those classes that you can't help but love. Even though it's a lot of hard work trips like Brown County make it all worth while," junior Lisa Clayton said.

The Brown County trip was really a great time for all of us to bond together," Rothenberger said.

"My favorite part of Brown County was tackling Kristin Hilligoss while we played football in our spare time. Brown County was the coolest field trip I've ever taken I hope I get to go back sometime soon," junior Jase Munn said.

Memorable Moments

"Everyday is memorable. Everyday is a new adventure and every day is something new, "staff member Justin Pelley said.

"The most memorable part was writing short stories, because it was really fun. It was nice to be able to have another creative outlet for a while," Holly Johnston said.

"I think that English on a whole has been memorable this year. Mrs. Eickhoff has taught me a lot. Thank you for a wonderful year," senior Tyler Jugg said.

An in depth look into what really matters

Family and Consumer science - just what is taught in that little classroom diagonal from Mrs. Zook's room?

One tiny classroom holds so many subjects, taught by Mrs. Jarvis and Mrs. Dickerson: Child Development, Adult Roles, Nutrition and Wellness, Housing, ADV Nutrition, and Interior design.

"I love the interpersonal relationship's open discussions, because they let me discuss my opinions and hear other people's opinions," junior Katie Phillips said.

Junior Amber Harless took Nutrition and Wellness during sixth period. "I love Nutrition and Wellness because it teaches things that are useful," junior Amber Harless said."

Mrs. Jarvis taught many classes, but her favorite one was Housing and Interior Design.

"I just have a passion for older homes and the history of homes, and I enjoyed drawing floor plans," Jarvis said.

On top of all that students learned about relationships and how to live an overall better life style. Students learned how to take care of a baby or take better care of themselves. Students at MHS learned healthy habits and useful skills of the adult world

"I will always remember what was taught to me in that room, and continue to use those skills for the rest of my life," said Phillips.

Hampton said.

"I'm taking a nutrition class because I'm a wrestler and I want to know what foods are lean and what foods aren't," Donavan Black said.

"I chose this class because I really needed to learn how to cook," Tyler Harris said.

The French and Spanish Classes Go On An Excursion to Europe.

By: Brianna Franks

Imagine looking up at the astonishing Eiffel Tower, walking inside of the glass pyramid at the Louvre, or even being able to experience the controversial La Sagrada Familia (The Church of the Holy Family).

Students belonging to the French or Spanish classes are not only imagining, they will also be living these sights. Several students will be taking a trip across the Atlantic to visit the bright lights of Paris, relive the history of Provence, and they will experience the rich royalty of Barcelona.

"I'm looking forward to going to Paris, and I'm also looking forward to visiting Versailles very much," sophomore Teresa Wright said. Mrs. Elizabeth Breidinger and Mrs. Maureen Wehmeier will be guiding roughly twenty students on several spread out tour throughout Europe.

These students will be spending about eight to ten days traveling around Paris, Provence, and Barcelona.

The highlights will be: The Eiffel Tower, Champs-Elysees, The Notre Dame Cathedral, The Louvre, The TGV Train, The Palais des Papes, The Aries Amphitheater, The Roman Theater, Atalier de Cezanne, La Sagrada Familia, Las Ramblas, Parque Guell, The Barcelona Cathedral, Barrio Gotico, and the Picasso Museum.

Students will come back from the trip not only having gained more cultural background, but they will also have gained memories with their friends that will last them a lifetime.

Students learn about history year after year

By: Jade Biggerstaff

One class that every student at MHS must take is a history class. Most freshmen and sophomores started by taking a world history and geography class. Students could take one semester of each class or take one class for the whole year.

U.S. History was a year long class required for all juniors. However, some juniors were enrolled in the History

American Studies class. It combined history and English classes and was taught by Mrs. Joyce Gilly and Mrs. Ann Phillips. "I like American Studies and the way we learn the material," junior Bea Bailey said. "I like the question and answer time. We get to ask Mrs. Gilly anything and talk about what we learn," junior Amber Bigham said.

Lights, camera, action! The broadcast students heard those words every single day. MHS students have many opportunities, but one class that MHS students chose was Communications. The communications classes consist of: Broadcast, Journalism I, and Journalism II.

Broadcast has two classes available. Students chose either Wake-up MHS or Fast Break. Many students wondered about some things like the older man featured several times on Wake-up MHS or the woman and the baby featured as well.

"That old guy really cracked me up everyday. It was so funny and random I just couldn't help but laugh," junior Nicole Watson said.

Each day at 9:31 or at 2:30 students tuned in to watch the announcements that the broadcast students produced. From birthdays, to agenda codes, to lunch choices students tuned in to watch. Even with all of the great segments, each broadcast student had a favorite part.

"My favorite part as a producer of broadcast is being able to put stuff together," senior Katie Swisher said.

"I like broadcast, because of all the friendly faces," junior Joey Thomas said.

But with every subject there are struggles and trials.

"The hardest thing about broadcast is having to follow all of the guidelines and making sure everything is politically correct," senior Ashley Yegerleaner said.

Some students even wish to choose careers in broadcast. Junior Joey Thomas plans on being a film technician and attending Ball State University.

"Broadcast gives me a great opportunity because I'm doing the same things I'll be doing in college," Thomas said.

"Broadcast is rewarding and even though it can be stressful I wouldn't change a single moment for anything," junior Ricky White said.

"Communication is a really fun subject with lots to do. It's nice to be able to express yourself with out fear of judgement or criticism. A look into Preforming Art at MHS.

By: Chelsea Tooley

The lights on stage, the smell of green grass during marching band, or the pounding of a heart before a performance - these are some of the things that students in performing arts might experience.

Whether in choir, band, orchestra, drama, or speech - each of these academic classes require strenuous, difficult activities, and requirements.

M HS Choir has one of the most recognized and acknowledged music departments in Indiana; including a second place nationals trophy to the MHS choir department's name. MHS offers 7 choirs for students and they are; Genesis, Sensations, Sound Image, Millennium, Finesse, Madrigals, and Spotlighters. Although some of the show choirs cost a lot of money most of the students feel that it's worth it.

"Despite all of the money stepping out in the spotlight for that first performance is totally worth it," junior Paige Oswalt said.

This year the band won several awards and had a very productive season. Their awards this year include: second at the pride of Columbus, outstanding general effect at Westfeild, and many more.

"Sometimes when I hear the whole band playing together it makes me feel in tune with not only myself but the other people in the band too," freshman Cory Shover said. The band members, like with members of any other club or sport, made close friendships and inside jokes as the year goes on. "My best friend Cory Shover and I always joke about our idol Neil Part from Rush," freshman Royce Redmond said.

The Orchestra had many achievements, trials, and accomplishments. They had several members that won a 1st division gold metal at ISSMA. "Performing in orchestra teaches you responsibility and friendship. Solo and Ensemble was just another learning experience.

MHS offers many classes for students. Some students chose to take speech or drama last year. Students in the advanced speech classes make "I was there speeches". Which actually put students into the events that they were talking about.

So many students take advantage of performing arts classes. They learned not only about performing arts but about responsibility as well as many other things. "Being in performing arts is something I have a passion for, and even though it requires a little more dedication I could imagine being anywhere else," sophomore Stacie VanDyke said.

outine Preforming

"My favorite part of speech/Preforming arts is being able to express myself. I get to pick the topics that I like and I get to inform people about them. It is the nicest feeling in the world to make other people care about what I have a passion for," senior Christin Ward said.

Integrated Chemisty Physics: A New Future

By: Chelsea Tooley

For those of us that hear the word chemistry and want to pull our hair out, ICP is our new salvation.

ICP stands for Intergrated Chemistry Physics. It's a new class offered at MHS this year.

ICP is intended for those of us who didn't do so well in Algebra or simply don't want to take chemisty.

However, some students have different reasons for taking ICP.

"I like to figure things out. That is the best part," sophmore Heather McCauley said.

Some students have less noble reasons for taking it. "I took ICP because I thought it would be easier than taking chemistry, but I was wrong," junior Derek Brown said.

ICP turned out to be a lot harder than most expected.

"The lab reports are really hard and you have to make them a certain length," sophmore Zach Poland said.

Others still disagree, "I don't think it is very hard because Mr. Graves is really good at explaining it," sophmore Caitlin Skeens said.

Some even take it for convience. "I took it because you get to learn two subject as fast as possible," Poland said.

ICP is a saving grace for those of us who would rather not take chemistry, and a class of convience for those of us who like to get things done quickly. While the class is still new, the oulook for the future of this class is bright.

Sophomore Ezra Davis closely pays attention to Dale Graves while he gives a lecture to the Class. "ICP is important to me, because it is easier than chemistry. I would take ICP over Chemistry any day," Davis said.

Freshman Algebra Classes

By: Chelsea Tooley

There have been many changes made at Mooresville High School. But, for freshmen one of the most dramatic has been the all-freshman Algebra classes.

Some freshman say these all freshman clases are a good thing. "When you work together you can look at the problem from two different percepctives. This helps you solve the problem faster," freshman Ryan Skora said.

Other freshman have different reasons why they feel the all freshman algebra classes are good.

"I think it is less imtimidating with out all of the upper classmen in there," freshman Bailey Tri said.

Still others feel that the all freshman classes are not such a good idea. "The hardest part of the class is paying attention with all of my friends in the same class," freshman Blake Loudermilk said.

Some freshman even feel Algebra is hard all together.

"I don't think it matters who is in the classes, it's still pretty difficult. I don't like graphing, it's a challenge, but overall I'm learning," freshman James Stapert said.

"I think it's hard just keeping organized," said freshman Lindsay Perdue.

grations

With every situation there are of course advantages and disadvantages, but it seems to be pretty even in this situation. Just as many freshman are for it as they are against it.

Some freshman feel indiffently on the situation.

"I guess it doesn't matter who's in the class. I still have to learn the material and do the homerwork," freshman Beth Bremeir said.

But how do the teachers feel about teaching a class full of the at times squirmy freshman. "I think it is wonderful that you do not have the difference in age," Mrs. Manion said.

Either way change is inevitible and freshman will all have to deal with it.

"I guess I don't get much of an opinion, but I'm fine with it," freshman Natalicia Honderuous said.

In the end, it's all up to the percpective of the persons affected. Some feel that all feshman classes are helpful and some feel that they are harmful. While some are altogether indifferent.

"My favorite part of art class so far has been working with the sketchbooks," freshman Jenny Vincent said.

"The best part of art is working with the printing press," freshman Cory Quin said.

The many art classes offered are: 2-D art, 3-D art, drawing, painting, jewelry, ceramics, sculpture, media arts, and fiber arts. The art students had their own personal project favorites, but the students also expressed their favored art classes.

"My favorite art class is 3-D art, because I really love to draw. I learn a lot in that class and Mr. Ferrand rocks," junior Darci Kelley said.

"I really enjoyed taking 3-D art. It taught me to be a better artist," junior Michael Carroll said.

As part of teaching an art class, teachers Mr. Brinton Ferrand and Mr. Denny Amrhein get to experience the thrill of their students becoming professional artists.

"I love teaching the more advanced art classes because it's really rewarding to see the advanced students go on to college to become professional artists," Mr. Ferrand said.

Art class not only taught students to be artists, but it also taught students valuable skills that they could use in the real world.

"I'm not sure if I will be a professional artist, but I will most likely be drawing on the side. I will be taking what I learned with me for a long time," Carroll said.

Band Students express themselves at Solo and Ensemble Contest

by: Brianna Franks

Work and preparation were the two favorite words for members of concert and symphonic band. The students involved spent the months from November to February preparing for the district and state wide, Solo and Ensemble Contest.

"I practiced everyday 'til the Solo and Ensemble Contest," sophomore Lauren George said.

Students could choose between a solo performance and an ensemble performance. Mastering a perfect performance technique was one of the main priorities of the contest.

"I spent hours trying to perfect my technique before the contest," sophomore Teresa Wright said.

In order for the students to really prepare for the contest, some went through private practice sessions, some spent many hours after school with band director Jerry Weber, and some would have rather practiced in the privacy of their own homes.

"I spent most of my time at home practicing for the contest," George said.

Many students entered the contest as a way to really express themselves. The students could pick their own songs to play, and they could play them the way that they wanted to.

"Any music I play is individual expression. The contest just gave me a chance to get my expression heard," Wright said.

"At the contest I enjoyed getting to play with the emotions of the people that were listening to me. That was the best part of the contest. Also getting to show my creativity at the contest great," George said.

feel the stess THINK OF THE FUTURE AHEAD

High school could be known as a time of stress and fun. Students every day were given a choice to make: friends or homework. As many teachers walked up and down the overly filled hallways, they commonly heard students say the phrase, "I didn't have time to finish my homework!" This led many teachers to wonder what students were spending their time on friends, or homework? Many could categorize the student body into two kinds of students: The kind of students who do their homework, and the kind of students who do not do their homework.

However, many teachers did find students who spend more time on their homework than they did with friends.

Junior Cheryl Vollrath and senior Callie

Smith were two students who really showed the two different catagories of students. Callie Smith was a determined senior who spent a great deal of time on her homework, and Cheryll Vollrath was a peppy junior who enjoyed having fun with her friends and liked to enjoy every minute of high school. Which one of these students could you relate yourself to?

UNIOR Cheryll Vollrath

As junior Cheryl Vollrath walked into her sixth period English class or her 1st period Geometry class she often knew that she didn't have the homework done due to spending time with her friends

"I'm always nervous and I always regret that I didn't do my homework," Vollrath said.

"I probably only spend about one to two hours on homework a week, but I spend about 10 hours a week with my friends," Vollrath said.

Vollrath sat in her room and crams every Thursday for her quizzes and exams on Friday.

"I basically do all of my school work during my Thursday night cram sessions or during school," Vollrath said. She only had seven words to sav about her academic lifestyle.

"I'm organized when I have to be."

Although she spent a lot of time with her friends she still had some forms of organization.

"I used agendas, post-it notes, and calendars to stay organized," Vollrath said.

"I think high school should be fun. You only get one chance here and you should enjoy every minute of it with your friends," Vollrath said.

Vollrath spent about four hours a day on the phone with various people, mostly her boyfriend.

"Since I have a boyfriend in Texas, yes I do spend a lot of time on the phone talking with him," Vollrath said.

" I would never give up all of the memories and good times with my friends. Those are the memories and things that I will have with me for my whole life." Vollrath said.

Homework had a very large impact on Smith's everyday life. On a scale of one to-ten, she rated the impact that homework had on her life as an eight.

Smith's life became very busy and stressful due to all of the homework and school activities that being a senior gave her, but in the long run, her hard work paid off.

"Working so hard on my school work has greatly helped me achieve my goal of getting into my first choice college," Smith said.

Being involved in several extracurricular activities took away from some of her homework time. Therefore, Smith spent two of her busiest nights each week, Wednesday and Thursday, catching up on the homework that she could not do while spending some of her time at after-school activities.

"Homework usually takes up most of my time, but being a member of all those groups sometimes takes away from that time." Smith said.

Being accepted into her first choice college, Crossroads Bible College, was one of Smith's biggest accomplishments so far.

Her story was one that could teach other members of her class that hard work and determination were two very important skills that were essential for a student to accomplish their goals and Academics: Feature dreams.

Being a member of a club meant more then just signing your name on a piece of paper, wearing a shirt or listening to speeches. It meant planning food drives, collecting money for hurricane victims and organizing a way to create a positive learning environment while learning something new. Students in clubs did everything from gathering the Mooresville community to promote safe driving skills. raising money for the hurricane victims to teaching elementary students the harms of drugs. Mooresville High School has helped to form numerous young philanthropists.

STUDENT COUNCIL Making a BIG Diffrence By: Leslie Carlton

Mooresville High School's student council was quite possibly one of the most important organizations in the school. Not only did the members represent their grade level, they represented the entire school.

This group did one thing that made them stand out above other student councils. They made a difference. These students weren't just in student council to hold a leadership position. They really cared.

The various activities that they did proved that they care. Every year, student council tries to convey school spirit by planning spirit week with a different theme everyday. The theme days were Western Day, Cartoon Character Day, Tye-Dye/Afro Day, Powderpuff Day, and Blue and Gold Day. "My favorite spirit day this year was Western Day," junior Priscilla Rozzel said. By organizing these spirit days, it got the students involved and it was a fun way to dress up and support the school.

Another way they made a difference in the local schools was by collecting new and gently used books to take to Newby Elementary School to read and donate to the students.

"I think that's my favorite part, getting to go read to the students and participating in 'Read Across America'," sophomore Kalee Forrester said.

Student Council didn't just help in the schools. They were constantly doing things to help the community. Twice a year Student Council sponsored a blood drive that almost every eligible student participated in. Everyone knew how much it helped and were willing to donate. They also participated in a fund-raiser to help raise money for Riley Hospital for Children.

Some newer aspects of Student Council were District 9 and Adopt-A-Highway. District 9 was basically described as the area Mooresville is located in along with Johnson, Jackson, and Monroe counties. Many of the student councils were invited to come together and work on leadership training. Most of the members thought that this was the best part of student council, getting to meet other schools and exchange ideas. Adopt-A-highway was where members volunteered to clean up the stretch of highway adopted by the organization and was done twice a year

By branching out and sharing experiences with other schools and spreading their message onto other schools as well as throughout their own school, student council definitely made a big difference.

Wirking Aard By: Leslie Carlton

It's no secret that both the newspaper staff, The Pulse, and the yearbook staff, Wagon Trails, are always under a lot of pressure.

It's not like any other class where an assignment is due and it doesn't have to be your best work, because once you're finished with it, you never have to see it again. Imagine your work being published in a newspaper for the whole school to read, or a story about a sports team being saved in a yearbook that your classmates will still pull out and read every once in a while. You want it to be good. That's one of the big reasons why the Pulse staff and Wagon Trails staff work so hard to meet their deadlines. They stay after school and work on it and even come down to Mrs. Ada Clark's room during study hall to put finishing touches on their layout.

It is also no secret that both staffs help each other out. Whenever a Wagon Trails member can't be at a certain event , a Pulse staffer will go for them. Wagon Trails helps Pulse also, by helping them stuff the newspapers with ads and delivering them to the classrooms. These groups put a lot of hard work into everything they do and it pays off in the end.

Playing Hard By: Leslie Carlton

With all the hard work that the Pulse and Wagon Trails staff members have to do, it's healthy to let loose and have fun. When asked "What was your favorite fun memory from Yearbook this year?" Senior, Amber O'Dell, recalled when the entire staff went out to Firehouse Pizza the last night after Wagon Trails. Senior editor, Kayleigh Adcock's favorite memory was "sitting behind the curtain listening to Emma Prosser cry at Wagon Trails because of something as trivial as a song." Senior editor, Emma Prosser says in reply, "Arguing with Kayleigh Adcock over menial issues!"

The Pulse has to let loose occasionally too, every once in a while when an issue that the staff worked especially hard on came out, the staff decided to have a pizza party for lunch, because their class happens to be during fifth period. They also participate in various functions together, like the gift exchange for the holiday. Both staffs worked hard on everything they did and deserved to play hard a little too. Ever been to the Halloween Hike or the Victorian Christmas? Have you ever been given a crush can on Valentine's Day? These along with many other activities throughout the school and the community were organized and carried out by Unity.

To be involved in Unity a student applied in the spring and if accepted attended Indiana Teen Institute (ITI) during the summer. If a student do not attend ITI, they could not be involved in Unity. Unity was very active in promoting awareness to teenagers. Unity was not just about informing the youth about drug and alcohol abuse, it was also about issues in the community.

For many years, Unity had been sponsored by Mr. Emerson. However, Emerson retired early second semester, leaving the fate of Unity in the hands of Mr. Allen and Mrs. Cook, who had attended ITI in the summer of '05.

The future of Unity for next year was unknown. It was possible that they will not be able to participate in as many activities outside of school as they had in the past. Emerson had many connections to the community. This had enabled Unity to be as involved in society as they were. When asked, "What hopes do you have for Unity next year?" Sophomore Heather Warthen said, "I am hoping we can get more accomplished and be more involved."

When Mr. Allen and Mrs. Cook took over sponsorship of Unity, they overcame challenges to keep Unity as it always has been. They helped sponsor a pre-prom convocation, and hosted a "Drop Dead Day." Both sponsors also felt optimistic for the outlook of next year. Mr. Allen says, "I'm excited to have a more hands on approach with Unity and I look forward to ending the year strong."

Despite all this, the group still participated in many things and has a great passion for the club. Mr. Allen and Mrs. Cook were not worried about next year, but just in case Mr. Allen said, "Remember if all else fails....squirrel, sparkle, monkey dust!"

P.U.S.H. involved a group of students who helped kids get informed about drugs and alcohol at young ages. It stands for Prevention Using Student Help. They participated in many activities with younger children to show them the harmful effects of making the wrong decisions.

"My favorite thing about P.U.S.H. was getting involved with the kids, with games, and candy. Making it fun, yet at the same time, serious." sophomore, Megan Biggs said. The students in PUSH felt a strong desire to show kids and teenagers that life is too short to experiment with drugs and alcohol. They didn't want to see a generation of kids hurting because of harmful decisions.

"I really think the games and activities that are done help bring the problems the community faces into view." senior, Jon Eickman said. Certain times during the month they had different P.U.S.H. groups and Ashley Vance, stand travel to several different schools to teach the younger children the harmful effects of the drugs and alcohol in today's society.

S.A.D.D. stands for Students Against Destructive Decisions. The students who belonged to S.A.D.D. devoted their time to make a difference by getting out the message of "Don't Drink and Drive."

The members of S.A.D.D. were very passionate about showing the consequences of drinking and driving. They wanted everyone to see how it has affected other people's lives and even maybe as well as their lives.

S.A.D.D. put on various activities such as the S.A.D.D. Turkey contest. That contest gave the students a chance to express themselves by decorating a turkey. S.A.D.D. members use safe, fun activities to show everyone the reality and dangers of drinking and driving.

Striving to make a difference in the school

By: Elizabeth Coon

It's 7:10 a.m. and students in Won By One stand together and say a prayer before school. While most students were not even at school yet, these students dedicated themselves by getting up every morning to come and pray at school. Won By One was a student led group that met every morning on Wednesday mornings in the library.

They conducted Bible studies and each student had an opportunity to go up in front of the other students to teach a Bible lesson, share their experiences with each other, and to deepen their faith with one another.

Won By One students got to have the experience in volunteering at many organizations. "During the holidays we liked to help out organizations such as Wheeler Mission," senior Nichelle Sturm said. This gave the students the greatest feeling in the world knowing that they are giving to people who do not have a whole lot of things such as food, shelter, or clothing. The students in Won By One desired to show love and compassion to a world that is hurting. "It is the greatest feeling in the world to know that we had helped someone out who does not have a whole lot," junior Amber Aldridge said.

"Prayer is a big thing we do because we know a true relationship with God helps us in our day to day struggles. We encourage anyone to come, no one will force anyone to do a lesson. We just want people to see the amazing One who has changed our lives," junior Bryce Newton said.

Students who wished to participate in academic teams joined a team that they believe they will do best in whether it's English, Social Studies, Math, Science or Fine Arts.

These groups practiced trivia questions for the competitions. Once there, each group performed on their own against other schools and then "...the captains of each team form an interdisciplinary team where there is a mix of questions from all five categories," senior Melissa Grubbs said.

Each team is then ranked individually. The groups participated in two competitions, according to senior Brian Livingston. "Greenwood and Whiteland, and our Whiteland meet was mid-state," he said.

Millennium show choir brought together a delightful mix of singing and dancing to add up to an amazing performance.

This choir sang mainly newer and more contemporary songs that could relate to an audience of high school students. The lyrics were put to dance steps that dazzle the fans and got the audience moving.

Along with Madrigals, this choir packed auditoriums for a number of reasons including contemporary song choices and powerhouse performances.

At Mooresville High School, we have two choirs that demand attention, although they are very different in many ways. Those two choirs are Madrigals and Millennium.

Madrigals sang "...mainly a Capella, but as far as style we do anything from classical to gospel, and we also sing contemporary music," senior Dustin Paugh said.

"Mads" as they were known, also grabbed attention by their costume choices. They didn't wear the traditional flashy show choir outfits, instead they dressed in robes of bright colors to reflect the music as being traditional and expressing the feel of classical music and classical time.

They performed at a number of events throughout the year, including Wagon Trails Revue and the Madrigals Dinner.

Altogether, this choir drew attention from the entire school for many reasons including their colorful wardrobe and powerful songs. Below: Freshmen Katrina Polikoff sang "Dancing on the Ceiling" with other members of Millennium.

When you think of choir here at MHS, what comes to mind? Many would think big hair, fancy costumes and hours and hours of hard work.

While this is true for the show choirs, the nonshow choirs were just as equal. Although these three choirs were not as well recognized for their efforts as the show choirs, they earned the same recognition as the show choirs did from audiences.

Genesis was a freshmen choir. It was a beginner choir. It consisted of both boys and girls, and was directed by Mr. Damron.

Another choir directed by Mrs. Moebius was Sound Image. Sound Image was an intermediate choir. It was a mixed choir consisting of sophomores, juniors, and seniors.

These three choirs served as the preparation ground for more advanced choirs, and students often learned skills to help them become better performers.

Many students in advanced choirs learned their skills in Genesis, Sensations or Sound Image as underclassmen.

Even though Mr. Damron and Mrs. Moebius were extremely busy with Spotlighters, Finesse, and Madrigals, they did the best that they can to make these choirs be able to perform just as well the show choirs do.

"Mrs. Moebius and Mr. Damron are both really great teachers, and they deserve a lot of respect. I have had Mrs. Moebius since I was a freshman, and I could not have asked for a better choir teacher," junior Emily Stonebraker said.

One of the top choirs at MHS was Finesse. Finesse was composed of 42 girls.

The Show was all about love including the pieces "L.O.V.E" from Ashlee Simpson and "Hero" from Shreck II.

However, not everything was sunshine and daisies. Finesse had their fair share of struggles.

"I think our biggest struggle is fights. We have overcome so many differences in personalities this year," senior Katy Harris said.

Even still, many girls thought that Finesse kept up with their love theme which formed lasting friendships.

"Anytime any of us have a problem we can go to each other. We're just like sisters. We even fight like them too. Even though we fight we always hug and we still love each other," junior Kalee Bush said.

Finesse had a very successful year, even placing eleventh in state. Even though there were personality differences all of the girls were able to produce an amazing show.

As the students in Spotlighters went through their fall show with anticipation for the competition show, they never would have thought of the one word they would hear. . . clowns! "The first time I heard about the competition show I was in complete shock, I was frightened and the rest I can't say out loud," senior Manda Koerner said.

Despite original doubts Spotlighters had a pretty successful season. Placing ninth at State and sixth at North Central.

"It wasn't as bad as I thought it was going to be, and we definitely got into it more than I thought we would. It also really helped us bond," senior Melissa Hacker said.

Many Spotlighters formed lasting bonds and friendships throughout the year.

"Sometimes I spend more time with Spots then I do my family. Thad is the sister I never wanted and Manda and Melissa are the sisters I always wanted," senior Zac Overton said.

Despite all of the doubts and trials at the beginning the Spotlighters still managed to pull through, making new friends and forming new bonds along the way.

Spotlighters performed ecstatically during their swing song called "Rock this Town/ Jump Jive and Wail."

French Club gave students a chance to learn a different language besides English. The club went in depth to learn more about French culture along with everyday French and Cajun life. The students in French club had the chance to go places that helped them learn more about the French culture.

They also had the chance to cook authentic foods of the French and cajun culture. During certain holidays the students got to take field trips to restaurants that offer various kinds of french and cajun foods. "We go to Zydeco's every year for Mardi Gras and play games." junior Stephanie Smith said.

The meetings for French club usually consisted of a wide area of learning about this interesting culture. "The meetings are usually fun and we try to meet every week," junior Amber Smith said.

Spanish club was a club that dealt mainly with the Spanish culture and its surroundings. It helped the students go more in depth with the Spanish environment then they would in a regular classroom. They got to host various events such as a meeting where you could go and learn to salsa dance. That gave the students a chance to learn something new and the lessons were open to anybody who wanted to take them.

A Spanish meeting consisted of various activities that dealt with Spanish culture. "Spanish club meets almost every week after school," freshman Jenny Egler said. Another exciting thing the students would get to do was cook Mexican foods. They would bring them in so that everyone could have a taste of the Spanish food.

Spanish is not a very easy language to learn but the students belonging to the Spanish club seem to have an understanding in Speaking Spanish.

So many letters! They all stand for something, as well as the people in the club. These four groups all help serve the community and the school in different ways.

Teacher's Students Lead America (TSLA) helps by, "...we also did service learning projects during the year, like adopting a family for Christmas," junior Lisa Clayton said.

Future Farmers of America (FFA) helped out the school by involving themselves in various activities including, the homecoming parade, a petting zoo, and FFA week. FFA week served as a spin off of spirit week, with different types of days, for instance, cowboy hat and boots day.

Fellowship of Christian Athletes (FCA) was a group of athletes who meet at Coach Hillgoss's house periodically to get together and read scripture and talk about things that were bothering them or stressing them out. It was a great way to bring a group of students together for a cause that they believe in.

Last but certainly not least, there's National Honor Society (NHS). This group was filled with honor students who became role models to the school due to their outstanding scholastic performances. They helped raise money for various community projects and scholarship funds throughout the year in various ways, including selling suckers for fifty cents in the hallway.

All of these groups had a cause or intention that involve the school and help in one way or another, and students and teachers found themselves spouting out acronyms and learning "letter lingo."

Mat Tech was a club that helped out with the wrestling team. One of the things that Mat Techs did was help score the wrestling games. Another fun thing that the club did was put together scrapbooks for the wrestlers to show how well they did during the season.

Mat Techs also got to see and know what all the points meant in a wrestling match. "My favorite thing about it was just being able to know what is actually going on, and knowing what all the points and stuff mean," sophomore, Brittany Franks said Knowing what all these points mean was fairly difficult but fun to learn.

"Being in Mat Techs has been a fun experience," freshman, Rhonda Pryor said. Though things got stressful during matches, Mat Techs pulled through and did a wonderful job. In the end, being in Mat Techs was a fun thing to do.

Prom Committee was a club that did all of the behind the scene work for the prom. Prom committee got the chance to brainstorm and think of great ideas for the prom theme. The theme for prom was "Castle of Dreams."

They got the choice to decide on themes, music, and just about everything that made prom enjoyable. They worked real hard to make prom the best that it could have been. "My favorite thing was setting it up and seeing it finished," junior Bryce Newton said.

Although when it got down to crunch time before prom, the committee pulled through and prom was an amazing night. "The best thing about all this was seeing the work that we put into this and how much people had fun," junior, Lindsay Beckman said. Many people think that putting time after to participate in a choir is enough, but there are a same few that just have a passion for singing. For these people who have that passion, Mr. Damron arranged two groups for them.

These two groups met once a week and all they did was sing. They only had one performance this year at Spring Spectacular One of them was for girls, Verbalessence, and one was for guys, Insomniac. Insomniac and Verbalessence sing all their songs a capella.

First to even be considered for these two groups, one must first be selected to be in either Spotlighters, Finesse or Madrigals. Then from there Mr. Damron selects a group of people based on their effort, skill, and commitment. Mr. Damron then selects them to join if they are interested.

Verbalessance met every Tuesday, and Insomniac met every Wednesday. Because of the difficulty of the songs they sang, they worked on only the songs that they performed for Spring Spectacular. Each song along with a Capella voice accompaniment has a vocal percussion part.

If students at Mooresville High School think that there is no way to possibly stand the tests, homework, teachers, and hallways filled with students anymore, and that there is no way they could ever pass high school in this environment, they had a big decision to make.

Would they be better students and focus more on the schoolwork at the Education Opportunity Center. (E.O.C) E.O.C. had two classes a day, an a.m. class from 8:15 to 11:15, and a p.m. class from 12:00 to 3:00.

Students in these classes felt that they function better because the school day was significantly shorter and there were no changing of classes. Students could learn from each other and help each other when they need it.

Project Ignition's second year proved to be filled with plenty of events to help students become aware of the dangers of unsafe driving habits. The group's logo and motto was 'In a Flash' meaning that a person's life could change in a flash. At most M.P.I. events, the team wore their custom made shirts to convey this message.

Some of the events held were community day, the homecoming parade, school forum, boxing match, games in the cafeteria, Project Drive, a trip for seven to Philadelphia, and countless speaking engagements. "The thing that I most remember about Project Ignition this year was Project Drive because some of my friends were entered into it," senior Sara Getman said.

This club members puts in much time and effort into everything they did. They all do this for one reason, they believe that a person's life could change in a flash and tried to do whatever it took to educate the community on the dangers of unsafe driving.

On top of the 40 hours spent at school, possibly two hours of homework per night and countless hours spent perfecting the routine, numerous students fill the rest of their time becoming passionate about other things; dance, karate, poetry or devoting time to a religious aspect in their lives.

While there were many activities offered here at MHS, some of these activities were not just enough for some people.

These people participate in many different activities outside school. Many students juggle their many hours of school work with other activities to fill out the rest of the day.

CRESHMAN KRISTIN BOWLBY

Freshman Kristin Bowlby just got home from spending eight hours at school. She barely has time to relax before she is out the door again and on her way to karate classes.

Bolwby has been in karate at Indiana Martial Arts for four and a half years. She had always wanted to be in karate, but her parents did not want to drive to Plainfield for the classes. Then one day Bowlby and her parents were walking by, and they saw a sign for karate classes. So, they signed her up. In those years she has went from a white belt to a first degree black belt, working her way to the highest degree, a tenth degree black belt.

Bowlby's most memorable is getting her black belt. For Bowlby to get her first degree black belt she had to prove to her instructors that she was ready. She had to perform for her instructors, which took her about three and half hours, without resting at all. She had to perform all the katas, self-defense classes, and use their weapons properly.

Some of the weapons that she uses include the bo-staff, swords, sais, and num chucks. Her favorite weapon is the bostaff, a long stick-like weapon.

Not only does Bowlby take classes at Indiana Martial Arts, but she also works there teaching classes to other groups. She spends about five hours at Indiana Martial Arts a week: about two and half hours teaching classes, an hour and a half taking classes, and about three hours on Saturdays practicing for the competition team.

While Bowlby juggles school and homework, she worries about mastering her katas and routine for their competition.

Katas are routines that they do at their practices. There are about 20 different katas, pinan four is her favorite. They start with short and simple hand gestures that progress into longer and more difficult ones.

"To get the highest degree in karate you must be determined, because it takes many years to get there, Bowlby said.

UNIOR KYLE JONES

For Junior Kyle Jones, it is no easy task to balance school, work, homework, friends, and hobbies.

But somehow with all these things going on in his life, he finds a way to attend pottery classes at M o n r o v i a Mudworks in Mooresville.

At these classes he learns how to prepare the clay for use, make pieces on the pottery wheel and how to make them freehand.

...playing in the band is my favorite thing to do ...

He explained that the pieces have to dry out for a day or so depending on how big the piece is, until it feels cold and bone-like, or in pottery terms, "Bone-Dry."

The piece is then put into a big oven called a kiln to become completely dry and ready to be painted. It can be painted with all kinds of paint, but mainly acrylic paints are used. "With the other kinds of paint you aren't always sure what color it's going to turn out because the year and goes once a week for between two and three hours.

He also helps Monrovia Mudworks out whenever they need it. As most people in Mooresville know, Mudworks has been one of the stops during Victorian Christmas. They premake Christmas ornaments like, snowmen, candy canes, and stockings. Jones and the staff there then let children paint and dry these ornaments and take them home.

"It's a good way to help them out, and I have fun helping the kids," Jones said.

Top right: Besides being involved in her band, senior Lindsay Faull was also a cheerleader and editor of The Pulse newspaper.

SENIOR LINDSAY FAULL

Its hard for Senior Lindsay Faull to find time between school work and a crazy schedule to practice with her band of two and a half years, "The Brent Miles Experience."

The band got its name from a very inspirational man that they know. The band consists of Lindsay and her brother Austin Faull, Patrick Keller, Casey Fisher, Danny Bradley, and Gareth Shields.

"The Brent Miles Experience" performs for retreats and camps, and it also leads worship for youth group at the Church at Mt. Gilead. "It is very rewarding to lead worship and I just love playing music."

Faule said that music is in every aspect of her life.

"Playing with the band is my favorite thing to do. It means more to me than any club or activity that I have ever been involved with," Faull said.

She and the members are very close and hope that "The Brent Miles Experiences" stay together for years to come.

feel the small tomm, THINK toom, THINK THE DAYS SPENT THERE The days spent in the small town of Mooresville are far and few for some but long and happy for others.

In this small town, many businesses were around years before the class of 2006 was even thought about.

Now, that the years progressed many of these old fashioned businesses faded into the history books and new modernized stores took their places.

Bob and Dons on Indiana Street has been around since the sixties and with the recent death of one of the original founders the name changed to Allen and Sons. Five points market had been called that for decades and with updating technology and conveniences the store is now called Taylor's Market and offers a variety of different newer products than it used to.

Many of these stores were passed down to younger generations in the family while a lot of them were just sold out from under because the new chain stores are taking over this town.

The alterations to the town and the supply in which we receive have changed drastically in the past five years and Mooresville the small little home town is now becoming a thriving area for the economy and the state.

Who you are is God's gift to you. What you make of yourself is your gift to God.

Amber O'Dell

It's so hard to believe you are graduating and turning into a beautiful young lady. We are so very proud of you. Always remember, you are still and will always be our "Sneezy -Weezy", monkey, pumpkin. Love, Dad, Mom and Andree'

Todd Breedlove

No longer the baby, you're now a young man. Smile at the future and follow his plan. We love you, Colossians 3:17 Love, Mom and Dad

Sarah Grubbs

You have made us so proud. Any goalis within your reach. We love you very much.

Mom and Dad

Chris Gore

What's goin' on everybody? To all my friends! Stick with it! You'll be glad you did. Don't get arrested for stupid stuff, don't attempt to do anything I did, and if you do, shame on you. Oh yeah, don't do drugs, to everyone else!

Corey Himes

Words cannot begin to tell you all of our dreams for you. You are a truly unique young woman. We are so proud of you and all of your accomplishments. May life give you all of the happiness and success you deserve.

Love always,

Dad, Mom, Tyler, Mama, Papa, Grandma, and Grandpa.

Suzanne Imhoff

Dear Suz,

I am so proud of you. You are a continuing blessing for me. Love you more, Mom 3:5-6

Trust in the LORD with all thine heart; and learn not unto thine own understanding. In all thy ways acknowledge him, and he shall direct thy paths.

Heather Wilson

Heather,

You have brought so much joy to our lives. We thank God every day for our baby girl.

You have become such a strong young lady. Continue to love the Lord with all of your heart, soul, and mind.

We wish you the best in all you do Sis!!!

> Love, Mom and Dad

Ashley Romans

Congratulations! We are so proud of you. Good luck at Purdue. Love, Mom and Dad

Ashley Yegerlehner

We are so proud of you. You have grown into a beautiful woman inside and out. We will miss you so much, but we know we must let you go. You can do anything you want to in life.

Love always, Mom and Dad

Zachary Page

My brother - My friend Congratulations Zach. Hove you, Maggie

Zach Page

Your life options are endless. Whatever you "ASIDE", we're sure you'll be a success. Never lose your zest for life. Love, Mom and Dad Wishes Zach Page and the Class of 2006 Congratulations!

Joshua Allison

Congratulations! You can be anything you want to be. We are extremely proud of the young man that you've become. Follow your heart. Love, Dad, Mom, and Sis feel the end, THINK THE FRIENDSHIPS

The 2006 Wagon Trails Yearbook, Volume 61, was created by a student staff and printed by Herff Jones Publishing Company at their printing facility at 2525 Midpoint Drive in Edwardsville Kansas.

The plant opened in the fall of 2005, this is the first Mooresville yearbook printed out of that facility. The publishing consultant was Cathy Wines, and the customer service representative was Debbie Thomas.

Indiana School Pictures took all underclass photos, club photos and sports team photos. Senior photos were taken by Studio One, a subsidiary of Indiana School Pictures, with David Coy as the account representative.

The book was printed using 11 PCs using Adobe PageMaker 6.5, Microsoft Word and Photoshop 6.0.

Most candid shots were taken using a new Digital Nikon D50, which was purchased with yearbook funds in August of 2005 for $891.54.

The base price of book cost $45, and students had the option to purchase several add-ons. A one-line nameplate cost $5, a two-line nameplate cost $10, and a photo sticker for the cover cost $5. The press run was 650 books, and yearbooks were slated for distribution during fall homecoming, 2006.

Also deserving thanks are those who assisted with book sales and distribution: Peggy Gorman, Becky Bischoff, and the office staff.

The yearbook staff would also like to thank the following individuals for their contributions to this product: Cathy Wines, Debbie Thomas, David Coy, Sharon Eickhoff, Erica Olson, Chuck Muston, Trisha Ferguson, Tim VanWanzeele and all those who assisted with the production of our annual variety show, Wagon Trails Revue.

etter from the editors: Kayleigh Adcock and Emma Prosser

Through creating the "fel small THINK BG" Wagon Trails for the students at MHS, the yearbook staff quickly became an important part of our lives.

Throughout the year, there were numerous times where we felt the need to just give up. There were many trials and tribulations, but the Wagon Trails staff pulled through to get their job done. Each person contributed countless hours of work and effort.

We all have had many fond memories of room 120; attempting to succeed at group bonding games, learning yearbook yoga for the first time and wondering why exactly we could never get the computers to work just days before our deadlines.

We can honestly say that we had a blast. If we said we did not enjoy our staff, it would be a blatant lie. Every single girl on staff quickly learned that they could push themselves beyond unbelievable stress and aggravation.

Sometimes getting passes out of other classes just to finish a deadline, but we can also say that everyone put in the time and dedication it takes to complete an amazing yearbook, even if missing a class or being late for work was an issue.

The Wagon Trails Yearbook staff was advised by Mrs. Ada Clark and consisted of 17 girls; Kayleigh Adcock (editor), Jade Biggerstaff (academics), Leslie Carlton (clubs), Lacey Chastain (sports), Elizabeth Coon (clubs), Beverly Dowell (ads/index), Kourtney Forrester (senior album), Brianna Franks (academics), Caitlin Just (underclass album), Ashley Nuetzman (senior album), Amber O'Dell (sports), Ashley Piner (sports), Emma Prosser (editor), Alicia Skirvin (Clubs), Erica Skirivin (underclass album), Chelsea Tooley (academics) and Heather Woods (sports).

The theme "ful and! THINK BIG" came to life at the Ball State summer workshop in 2005. After throwing out countless themes and become aggrivated, we came to the conclusion that we all feel small, however we think big.

As editors, we would like to wish luck to the staff of the 2006-2007 yearbook. Just a few words of advice; if you start to feel stress then it is perfect timing for yearbook yoga, group bonding games weren't meant to have you bond but to help us laugh, and head shots are horrid!

"For two girls who disagree so much, they sure get a lot of work done." Sarah Nichols, a Ball State Summer Journalism Workshops' instructor said. discussing her pupils Kayleigh Adcock and Emma Prosser.

I smiled, because I knew she was right. And I knew that Kayleigh and Emma produced quality best in pairs.

As perfectionists, they wouldn't settle for mediocrity.

With Kayleigh's words and Emma's photos, together they talked through every design, every headline and every story angle. Nothing came unplanned, and every final product became the result of compromise.

When Emma and Kayleigh started school and led 15 other classmates, it became clear that this would truly become a student publication. As their adviser, I watched the staff grow and worry. Then, I watched them meet every deadline.

I also watched my students work behind the scenes, everyday. Since they served as the storytellers, nobody remained to tell their stories.

At the same time they focused on feature pages, album sections, sports designs and theme development, many of them endured emotional roller coasters that would have made grown adults give up. It would be harsh to describe details, but the pressures they faced were heartbreaking yet inspiring, because I was able to watch them overcome them.

They fought together, they wrote together, they barnstormed together, and, sometimes, they cried together. To them, this is not "just a yearbook." This book is their vision, their time away from loved ones, and, most importantly the legacy of 17 girls who thought big even though external situations made them feel small.

reveral people deserve thanks for their role in the production of the 2006 Wagon Trails Yearbook. The following people submitted photos that were used in this book: Dr. Phil Wright (Choir and Wagon Trails Revue Photos 10-11 and throughout book), Chuck Scott (Winter Sports Photos 102-115), Kelly Patel (Feature spread photos 12-13), Cody Clarkson (Feature spread photos 12-13), Cody Whitley (Feature spread photos 12-13), Gary Rothenberger (Cross Country photos 88-91), Laura Brown (Spring Break photos 14-15), Meagan Biggs (Spring Break photos 14-15), Jacquie Bantley (Golf photos 128-129), Megan McQueen (Golf photos 128-129), Tonya Weiss (FFA photos 196-197), Mrs. Ann Phillips (TSLA photos 196-197), Cheryl Volrath (Academic feature 170-171), Valerie Faull (Cheerleading photos114-115), Kristin Cook (Science photos 160-161) and Maureen Wehmeier (Won by One photos 182-183).

We greatly appreciate everyone who contributed to the success of this yearbook, thanks to teachers for letting us take pictures during your classes, thanks to the students who filled out surveys and to anyone who took time out of their hectic schedules who let a yearbook member interview them. We hope you enjoy the 2006 yearbook.

Just another day ...

7:14 am

Turning into the blue parking lot of St. Francis, senior Amanda Deboy realized that this was her final day participating as a nursing aid through an internship. "I have spent this whole year waking up late and rushing to St. Francis, it is almost upsetting to know that it is coming to an end," Deboy said.

7:30

Sprinting past Mrs. Wehmeier's Spanish class, senior Ashley Purdue made it to Mr. Bosworth's economics class before the Pledge of Allegiance began. She gladly passed forward her chapter 11 vocabulary assignment, the last vocabulary assignment of the year.

8:25

"Yes, thought Montag, that's the one I'll save for noon. For noon ... When we reach the city" closing her "Fahrenheit 411" book by Ray Bradbury, junior Katie Hoover smiled to herself. Hoover successfully completed her last English assignment for Mrs. Liz Yoke's class; next year, it will be a 12 page research paper for English instead.

9:20

The year winds down to its last few weeks. Sitting uncomfortably in her desk in Mrs. Ann Phillips English honors class, senior Megan Couch listened as her classmates seriously discussed their college plans with Mrs. Phillips.

10:29

Opening his Algebra book and tearing out a piece of lined paper he wrote, "Ryan Parmerlle, Pg. 624 1-7 & 9, 11, 13" in tiny all capital letters. "This was my last assignment for Crawford's class, thank God. It was really hard," Parmerlle said.

12:10

As they watched the arrow land on $200, senior Tyler Jugg's review group for the final picked "M" from the multicolored sentence on the chalk board "MATH IS SUPER!" They then proceeded to answer the question correctly, tying the review game.

12:49

Finally, after a month of looking through countless baby books, lining up pictures in numerical order and deciding on a song, senior Ryan Owen watched his multimedia senior video with fellow classmates.

1:44

At the end of her day, Mrs. Marcia Ward reminisced about how she would soon see the seniors lining up in their caps and gown as opposed to seeing them in long lines in the guidance office.

2:34

Outside door number four, seniors Robert Taft, Dustin Russell, Thad Miller and Zac Overton passed around a football as they waited for the parking lot to clear.
