1. Students do the roller coaster at the homecoming game. "It is always a tradition to do the roller coaster during half time of the game. It looks really tight, and it is a way to get all the students involved," senior Ashtyn Fisher said. 2. Senior Quang Nguyen drew a Snooki inspired painting for his art class. 3. The girls basketball team won sectionals defeating Plainfield in a long hard fight. "It was the best comeback I have been a part of. Beating Plainfield is always the best way to win a sectional," junior Amber Viles said. 4. Freshman Cory Sims worked on a test outside his class. "I like taking tests outside the classroom, because it gives you a chance to escape from noise," Sims said. 5. Senior Jonathan Wennen celebrated homecoming by dressing up in his '80s attire. "You've gotta love the tight jeans, rock n roll, and Joe dirt hair styles. That's the '80s for ya," Wennen said. 6. Senior Drew Justus walked through the brand new doors. "The new doors were a shock when we came back from Christmas break, but now we are just used to them," Justus said. 7. The senior powderpuff team shut down the competition and went undefeated for all four years. "Winning the powderpuff game for four years in a row is a really good accomplishment. It added an extra thrill to my senior year," senior Courtney Casteel said.

It's like a roller coaster

"Change is positive, with change comes improvement," Mrs. Lisa Gobel said.

The Mooresville High School students needed to celebrate the change of the school year. The students needed to make the school year a year to remember. They celebrated their birthdays, homecoming, spring break, and prom. They didn't dwell on the changes, they celebrated them.

"I celebrate my year by getting involved with different activities like having themes for the Friday night games and pulling pranks with my friends, like saran wrapping cars. Hanging out with friends and family are really important to me," senior Lindsey Bantley said.

The 2010-2011 school year needed a lot of motivating from the students. Some of the students were motivated to just pass a class, or others were motivated to get straight As.

"I set mini goals throughout the year for myself and students. I like to celebrate whenever we accomplish one of these small goals," Mrs. Cindy Bond said.

The year began with a lot of collaboration from the clubs and performing arts. All the students made sure they gave back to the community. They performing arts had to work together and collaborate to make that one perfect show.

The student athletes had to intimidate other teams. They needed to make sure they showed no fear. If they could intimidate, they could potentially change the outlook of the game.

As the students of Mooresville High School, individuating themselves happened on a daily basis. Students would change the way others saw them.

So, when coming up with the theme, the yearbook staff wanted to celebrate the change. Motivate others to be the change, collaborate with each other to support the change, Intimidate others to accept the change, and help other students individuate by changing the way others see them.

Celebrate; Enjoy the Changes

The celebrations began the first day of school when everyone was reunited. The seniors walked in with their old friends, juniors and sophomores found some old and met some new, while the freshman felt nervous because it was their first day.

Everyone knew it was going to be a great year while they celebrated the new changes. The year started out with the football season, a new coach, and a new team. It was a big change, but students were still ready to celebrate.

"After football games we all get together and go to BW3's," junior Katelyn Sanders said. Student life was always a huge part of the building and will continue to be for many years. Traditions had been passed down and everyone was ready for the new changes they had coming for them.

"I participate by going to games with my friends, going to choir performances, plays, and I always help out as much as I can," junior Jasmine Kirkham said. MHS offered a large number of extracurricular activities, and students were engaged. Whether it was helping out with floats for a football game or having a bake sale for a fundraiser, many were involved and loved to help celebrate.

"I enjoy all the extracurricular activities Mooresville offers. It promotes a good social life and helps make high school more enjoyable," freshman Kayla Harpold said. "I enjoy just being involved in a lot of things, it keeps me busy and I know that what I'm doing makes a difference."

As basketball season rolled around, the students became anxious. They were ready to show school spirit and celebrate with fellow students. Senior Blake Gill described how he celebrated with others to participate in student life.

"Hanging out, dressing up, and making posters out of popcorn boxes to make fun of other teams is what I do," Gill said.

Athletics, clubs, and any other extracurricular activities seemed to be the biggest parts of school that students enjoyed to celebrate.

"My favorite thing we do here involving student life is all the different types of athletics we have, and that many of the teachers are willing to stay after and help the students that need it," freshman Shyla Harless said. Celebrations continued throughout the year, as teachers and students had a great time.

1. Students stand in the cheer section at Decatur Central High School during the football game. 2. Seniors pose on Homecoming Day during the football pep rally. "It was a very good day to be outside during the pep rally, unlike last year when it rained," senior Kayla Carroll said. 3. Freshmen Kayla Harpold and her escort Nick Schmutte ride along in the Fall Homecoming parade while throwing candy. "I was very excited. I got to be in the parade my freshman year," Harpold said. 4. Senior Lauren Rink reads her new yearbook on distribution day. "I was very anxious to see what it looked like," Rink said. 5. Seniors Aric Bigham, Joey Juliano, Brandon Grider, and Steven Lawrence wait in the hallway before the Fall Homecoming pep rally. 6. Juniors Hannah Jones and Adam Schmutte get pumped up for the eating contest during the pep rally before they had to eat Big Macs.

Students adjust to new policies for cell phones, ID cards

Much changed as the pages of the calendar flipped from month to month. Some changes were for the freedom of and the security of students, and others were for some of the faculty and their new job positions.

In order to improve identification of visitors, the administration required identification cards to be worn on every student. All students were required to display the IDs during the school day.

"The new IDs make it a safer place, but I don't really like them," Lucio Medina said.

The school IDs made the security system and the tardy system more efficient. They helped let the school know who students were and who shouldn't be in the building. They also helped in attendance with Mrs. Becky Bischoff. Students swiped their cards under a scanner attached to a printer. The printer created a pass, the students would be on their way to class.

"I believe that the IDs and lanyards provide a means for all students and staff to provide information verifying their presence during school," Principal Mr. Chuck Muston said.

Students and staff both loved to use their cell phones, and the cell phone policy also changed. Students got to use their cell phones during passing periods and lunch. Most people liked this change, including staff.

"I think that the policy has been successful. Students seem respectful and appreciative of the fact that they can use their phones. By following the rules we can look at allowing other electronic devices," Dean Mrs. Jennifer Perkins said.

There were many important job positions that needed to be filled with the right people. Mooresville did a fabulous job at doing that. Mrs. Perkins used to be a U.S. History teacher before she got the promotion to being the Dean of Students. "My favorite part is the interaction with the students. My day is never the same twice," Mrs. Perkins said.

1. Senior Glen Hall said he doesn't use his phone during class anymore because of the new policy. "I think that it was a good change, because people don't use their phones during class as much because you can use them during passing periods," Glen Hall said.

2. Freshman Devan Smith wore his ID at school everyday, even though the ID was at first difficult to remember to bring to school.

3. Mrs. Perkins had new duties as the Dean of Students. Being present and keeping students under control during students lunch hours was one of the jobs Mrs. Perkins performed on a daily basis.

4. Senior Zach Taylor ate lunch and sent text messages. "I love that I can use my phone during lunch, I like seeing people's afternoon Facebook status," Taylor said.

5. Allison Fulton and Brittany Colman text and Facebook their friends on their cell phones during lunch.

6. Ryne Lane took advantage of the new cell phone policy and talked on his cell phone during passing period.

"Kickin It Old School"

Tonight's gonna be a good night

The Mooresville Pioneers were "Kickin It Old School" during Fall Homecoming 2010. With KISS makeup on or teased up hair and some crazy clothes, the MHS students and many Mooresville residents were ready to cheer on their football team.

For cheerleaders, Homecoming was a great deal of work. They had to decorate the lockers for the football players, and they got everyone excited for the game. "Homecoming is fun for us, because we get to decorate the school and make it look really cool," junior varsity cheerleader Nikki Schoonover said.

The theme "Kickin It Old School" was chosen by Student Council with the help of the student body. They picked it, because they thought everyone would get really into it and dress up. "It was one of those ideas that was brainstormed outside of Mrs. Perkins old room one day last spring," Student Council co-sponsor Barb Goddard said.

The pep rally was yet another opportunity to let everyone get involved. There was a sack race, BigMac eating contest, tug-of-war, punt-pass-kick contest, corn-hole tournament, and a water balloon toss. Most of the games were played out on the field. Winners of these games got to walk away with the prize of pride, and bragging rights for the next year.

Fall Homecoming was an important part of Mooresville's history, because it also got the community involved. The parade before Homecoming was a way that people in the town could see just how much the students love Mooresville. Whether it was building a float or just showing up the game, many students got involved.

"I loved theme this year. Everyone was really into it and it was a lot of fun!" junior Ellie Ciasto said.

Even though the football team lost in a hard game against Whiteland, Mooresville fans had a blast!

BY ALLIE McLAUGHLIN

1. Float building was always a big competition to see which grade won. "I helped build the float, because it looked like a lot of fun!" freshman Rachel Wathen said. 2. Senior Janna Sharp was crowned Fall Homecoming Queen during halftime of the varsity football game. "I wasn't planning on even being nominated, but it was a nice surprise," Sharp said. 3. The eating contest was the most interesting contest by far at the Homecoming pep rally. "It was the grossest experience in my life. I had only had one BigMac before that, and I am definitely not a fan," senior Ben Schuck said. 4. Senior jeans were a tradition for many many years. "It was a lot of fun looking back on old memories and making them with my friends," senior Ashtyn Fisher said. 5. Speeches from the seniors during the pep rally were always a fun way for the seniors to get the school pumped up for their game. "I sang 'Tonight's Gonna Be a Good Night' because I really thought that we were going to have a good night," senior Blaine Gardener said. 6. For the first time in years, MHS Student Council held a Homecoming Dance after the Homecoming game. "I was movin' and groovin' till they made me leave," junior Hannah Jones said. 7. The powderpuff game was a way for the girls to have a little fun and battle each other. "I played, because I like football and I wanted to be with my friends. Whooping up on the freshman was nice too," sophomore Samantha Duncan said. 8. With an '80s theme, there was a lot to look at. "I found inspiration in Gene Simmons," senior Brad Cox said. "and I wanted to go all out since it was my last Fall Homecoming." 9. The student fan section was a place for MHS students to huddle together and get rowdy during the game. "Leading my peers in 'The Roller Coaster' was definitely my favorite part!" senior Alicia Spivey said. 10. Senior Max Goodin's senior speech was based on the movie "The Hangover." "I did this speech, because the team is like a wolfpack, and Coach Hutchins was the newest member. I was a little disappointed when I couldn't cut my hand, but Coach said no," Goodin said. 11. Many students, both boys and girls got into the theme and really dressed up. "I dressed up to show school spirit, and who wouldn't want to look like Madonna for a day?" junior Taylor Smith said. 12. In a hard fought game, the junior girls lose to the four time winning senior girls. "I gave the game all my blood, sweat, and tears but in the end it just wasn't enough. 13. Homecoming is not only for the football team but it's hard work for the cheerleaders too. "I love Homecoming because I get to cheer at the pep rally and get the school pumped up," varsity cheerleader Haleigh Richardson said.

Winter Homecoming:

1. Since the theme was "Whiteout Whiteland," baby powder looked perfect for the game. But the baby powder idea was more than just a one-time thing. "We did it the week before at Plainfield for the Jersey Shore theme." 2. Erica Antic and Alex Redelman both had fun winning Homecoming Queen and King. "My favorite part about being Homecoming Queen was Mrs. Perkins jamming a crown on my head," Erica Antic said. Redelman had different thoughts about winning Homecoming King. "You know I don't really care about winning the Homecoming King, but you know who does? The ladies," Redelman said. 3. The Top Band played its music at the pep rally to get everyone pumped for the game. "Everyone came out to support and the crowd was electric," Ricky Francis said. 4. Students from moorville watch their teammates compete against the teachers during the student faculty game. 5. Jane Sharp got knocked down from Whiteland during the girls' game, but laughs it off as her teammates help her up. 6. Scooter races were one of the favorite games during the pep rally. Many yelled for the team that they wanted to win. "Watching Josh Reed on that scooter and getting help from the crowd was really fun," Morgan Nelson said. 7. There was something about the score for the student versus faculty game during the pep rally, the teachers said that they won fair and square but the students on the team said otherwise. "The score for the faculty mysteriously kept going up without them scoring," Denny Biggerstaff said. 8. All of Mooresville High School's students found seats for the pep rally. 9. The Students who were on Homecoming Court posed for a newspaper picture after the girls' game. 10. Both the students and the faculty teams enjoyed playing against each other. But there was only one winner at the end of the day, the faculty team won by 12 points. 11. The Students team had fun during the game even though the faculty team won. 12. Blake Swisher and Mr. Jason Dunron both went up get the basketball. 13. The student section is where the students show their school spirit. The student section always had fun chants to yell to show their pride. "I like it when we did the roller coaster, the funny part was that Whiteland's student section tried it, but they were not as good as we were," Jarred Addair said. 14. The free throw contest during the pep rally was a lot of fun for the students. 15. Gavin Griffin played Josh Reed in the scooter race, even though they came in last, they had fun. 16. Mr. Clint Swafford played in the student versus faculty game. 17. The student team had a hard time blocking the faculty. 18. One of the favorite pep rally games was the eating contest, everyone got messy blue faces because of the icing on the cupcakes. "The cupcakes were good, my favorite part was winning," Taylor Chitwood said. 19. Mrs. Amy Fulkerson's class came to the pep rally to support Mooresville basketball teams.

Let the Games Begin...

Student faculty game, scooter races, dizzy bat, eating contests and the basketball games was what Winter Homecoming was all about. All of these activities showed how Mooresville collaborated together and celebrated our school pride.

Winter Homecoming started out with a pep rally; during the pep rally there was the traditional student vs. faculty game where about twelve seniors played their teachers. Unfortunately, the seniors lost and the faculty took the victory.

"The best thing about Winter Homecoming is the student faculty game," junior Gracie Daniels said. There were also the dizzy bats, eating contests and the scooter races, but a slight problem occurred - no freshman and sophomores signed up for these games! But everything turned out ok because the spots were filled by juniors and seniors.

"The eating contest was my favorite, because some of my friends won it for our class. Their blue stained lips just made it better, thanks Taylor and Zane," Bram Wood said.

There were a few changes during halftime. Usually the Homecoming Court was announced during the boys' halftime, but that time it was during the girls'. Homecoming Queen and King were Alex Redelman and Erica Antic.

"I am king, but a humble king," Redelman said.

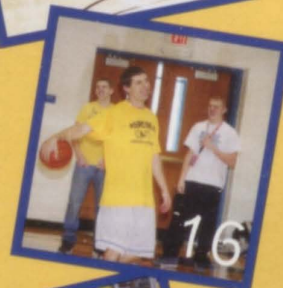

"I love my friends because they all voted for me," Erica Antic said.

During the boys' game there was a ceremony for 50 years of wrestling at Mooresville High School, where men who were on the first wrestling team were recognized.

The theme of Mooresville's Winter Homecoming was White Out Whiteland. At the beginning of the game when the starting line up was being announced, Devin Harris decided to do something different, after he threw a shirt to the crowd, Harris ran over to the student section, grabbed baby powder and clapped his hands together like LeBron James did. The student section threw the powder up into the air with Devin, the whole top of the gym was covered in a white, smoky cloud. This really got the team and crowd pumped for the boys' game.

"I was in the student section and also threw up the baby powder, it was contributing to the theme of the game White Out Whiteland; it was like an intimidation thing," Jarred Addair said.

1. Junior Hannah Britton singing "Airplane" by the Local Natives on the piano for a solo act at Wagon Trails Revue. "Singing a solo is different, because in Spots, you have to match your voice to everyone else, but with a solo you get to sing how you want," Britton said.

2. Sophomore Lonna Morrow performs with Finesse. "Finesse is so much different than Sensations, because there is a lot more dancing," Morrow said. "My favorite part was performing 'Chain,' because of the choreography and everyone liked it."

3. The orchestra performs at Wagon Trails Revue. "I liked playing the bass in orchestra, because the music was great and I helped keep the tempo," freshman Jacob Tooley said.

4. Freshman in Millennium sing and perform for Wagon Trails Revue. Millennium went on stage thirteenth and sang "Reach for the Light" and "Higher Ground".

5. Sophomore Kayla Story performs in Madrigals for Wagon Trails Revue. Story had also performed in the orchestra as well. "I was a lot more busy, but it was an exciting first year to be in Spots and in Mads," Story said.

6. Senior Michael Wilchor, sophomore Becca Ford, senior Kyle Goodman, and junior Evan Downy sing in a quartet for the Spotlighters opening song. "Having a solo was nothing out of the ordinary, but my favorite song to sing was 'Step into the Bad Side,' because it's a sweet song with a lot of swag in it," Goodman said.

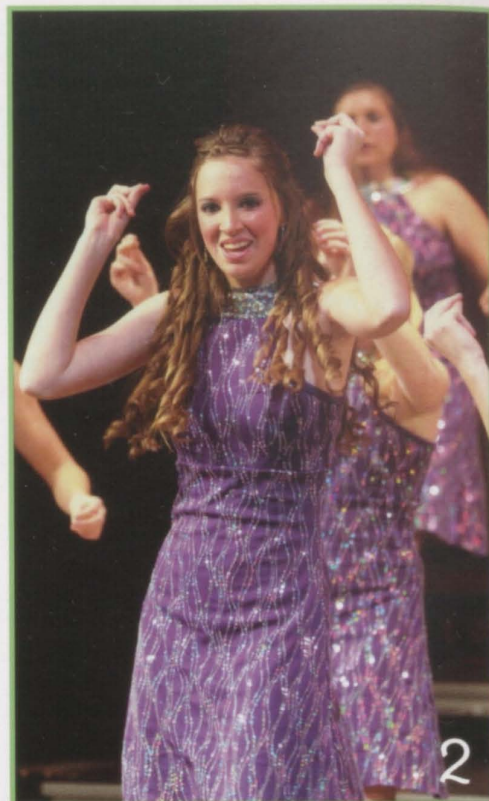

7. Senior Tina Majors performs a solo act. She sang "Song in my Head" by Miranda Lambert. Majors was also in Spotlighters and Madrigals.

8. Senior Courtney Overton plays the role of Rapunzel in a Yearbook skit for Wagon Trails Review.

9. Madrigals performing in Wagon Trails Revue. Madrigals were the fifth group to perform throughout the night, and they sang "O Magnum Mysterium," "A Welsh Lullaby," and "Calypso Carol."

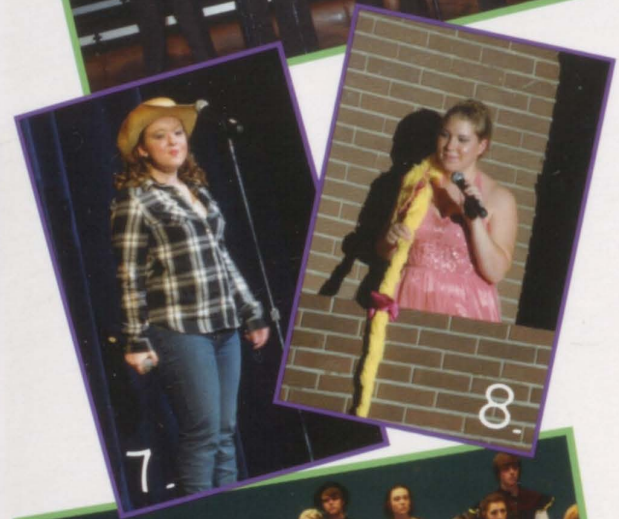

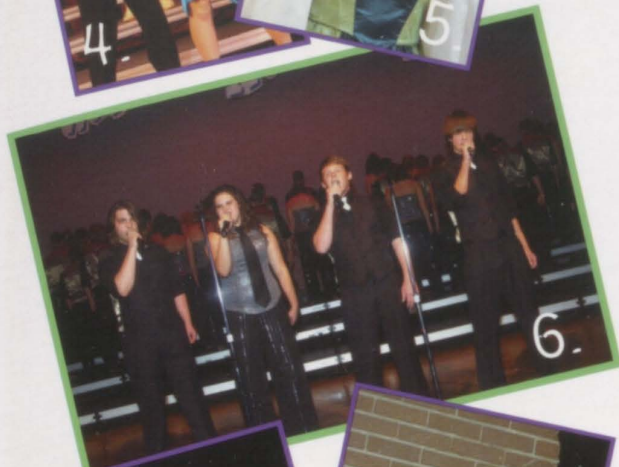

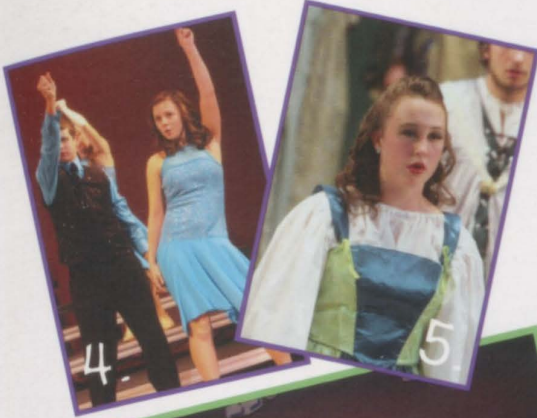

10. Jazz ensemble performing for Wagon Trails Revue. The other bands that performed included symphonic band, marching band, and behind the scenes, show choir band. The show choir band performs the music for Spotlighters, and all the other choirs.

11. Sensations perform for Wagon Trails Revue. Sensations sang "Don't Stop Believing," and "May it Be."

Wagon Trails Revue

Disney takes over the stage

MHS's annual Variety show, Wagon trails Revue, had many amazing talents involved in the show and our favorite, lovable Disney characters introduced each act.

The theme "Fairy Tales" for Wagon Trails Revue included special appearances from Nemo, Marlin, Dory, Crush, Dumbo, Little Red Riding Hood, Shrek, Fiona, Donkey, Boots, Aladdin, Pinocchio, the Three Blind Mice, the Three Little Pigs, the Seven Dwarfs, and the princesses Jasmine, Belle, Aurora, Rapunzel, Snow White, and Prince Charming.

"One of the songs performed by orchestra was from "Aladdin," and it was my favorite song to hear them perform," Mrs. Sheryl Fyffe said. "Aladdin was fun for the kids to perform as well, because it contained the snappy, jazzy music of "A Friend Like Me," but also contained "A Whole New World" as the ballad."

All the choirs, bands, and the orchestra deserved a round of applause from making it through the weekend with the new lighting and sound equipment. One of the solo acts, junior Dani Phillips, had to be postponed on the opening night of the show because of technical difficulties.

"I sang God Bless the U.S.A. by Lee Greenwood, and was going to dedicate it to my cousin who just became a Marine officer," Phillips said. "My dad came to see me the first night, and when the technical difficulties happened I was scared, and upset that the surprise had been ruined."

Due to Wagon Trails Revue, the yearbook staff could sell the yearbook at a cheaper rate than most area schools. Wagon Trails Revue traditionally began with a slide show and the singing of "Yesterday Once More." Then, the marching band opened the show, and Spotlighters ended Wagon Trails Revue. After the Spotlighters finished on the second day, seniors said goodbye to Wagon Trails Revue.

"It's really exciting, and humbling, to get up on stage and perform. Everyone involved in Wagon Trails Revue did a wonderful job, and it was a great last performance. All good things must come to an end, but this was a good ending for my last Wagon Trails Revue," senior Amy Anderson said.

Anderson was involved in Marching band, playing the clarinet. She was also involved in many of the other bands as well. To go out with a bang, Anderson decided to join Madrigals, where she had a solo, and she also joined Spotlighters. Anderson was just one of the many students involved in more than one aspect of Wagon Trails Revue.

Spring Break

Fun in the sun

Whether students left the state, country, or just the school for a week, spring break always caused a huge excitement for students and teachers.

Panama City, Mexico, and cruises to tropical islands were only some of the places Mooresville High School students spent their 2011 spring break.

"I went on a cruise to St. Thomas, St. Maarten, and Nassau with all of my friends. We had a blast spending our senior spring break touring the tropical islands, laying on the beach, and shopping," senior Lindsey Bantley said.

Yearbook editor Samantha Perry witnessed a horrifying experience while on Atlantis Beach. Below is her story.

Waking up, senior Courtney Casteel thought it could be a day filled with fun and excitement, but little did she know she would be fighting for her life against the Nassau waves.

Walking off the cruise ship the smell of salt filled the air. Courtney followed closely behind her group, cramming as many people possible onto a ferry boat to travel to Atlantis.

Along the beach front natives asked Courtney to try their drinks, buy their shirts, and use their chairs, but what they didn't tell her was how dangerous the beach really was.

The waves splashed high and crashed into the sand hard. Crowded with adults and kids, the beach allowed for a fun time. The waves filled the beach scooting everyone back to keep their belongings dry.

Unknown to Courtney, lifeguards patrolled the area as they told one part of the beach to stay out of the ocean because of the life threatening waves. Courtney set out to have a fun experience. She and a friend walked down to the waves.

The first wave came and knocked Courtney off her feet; she laughed. Before she could get on her feet, the next wave knocked her face first in the sand. Wave after wave hit Courtney, sucking her back into the ocean. The fun and laughter stopped. Her friends and family saw that she was in trouble and needed help.

With no lifeguard in sight, Brian Bantley went to help as he saw her gasping for air. Grabbing onto her hand Brian, held on trying to pull her out of the waves, but they ended up pulling him into the water. Brian, beginning to drown, had to let go of Courtney.

Seeing Brian now let go and Courtney scream for help, Brent Perry ran down the beach into the waves straight to help. Brent grabbed onto Courtney holding her as she tried to hold on, gasping for air. With absolutely no fight left in her, Courtney held on and hoped he could pull her to safety.

With the waves crashing into Brent and Courtney, there was no way he can get her up to safety by himself. He then yelled for anyone to come help get Courtney to safety. Just down the beach, a man saw what was happening and ran to help. With four men now holding onto Courtney, they finally pulled her to safety.

"Jumping in to save Courtney was the only thing on my mind. She is like my daughter and when I saw her in trouble I didn't think twice but to go in and save her. The waves were hard and I wasn't about to let her go back into the water if I had to drag her out myself," Brent Perry said.

Courtney sat on the beach chair, bawling. Scared from the life threatening waves, Courtney regained her breath learning of a death that occurred the day before. After swallowing what seemed to be a gallon of saltwater, she took a cold water bottle and chugged the fresh water in order to get the salt taste out of her mouth.

She recalled her experience with a local who said this was the worst the waves had been in a while.

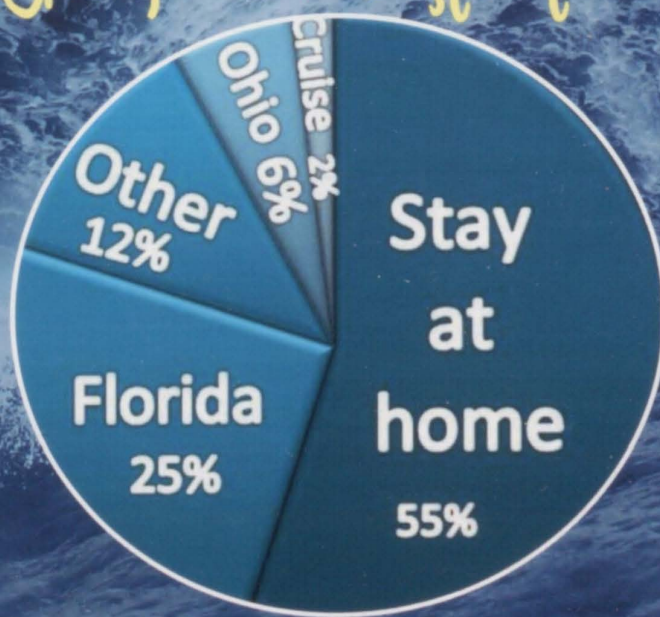

"The waves looked fun, there were kids and adults in the waves just down the beach from me so when I went in I didn't think anything of it," Casteel said. "All I saw was water, I couldn't catch my breath because the waves were so strong. I really didn't think I was going to make it."

Terrified from the event that occurred Courtney later looked back and recalled her chilling experience.

Spring Break Destination

1. Senior Amy Mills had a blast with Kim Addair and Kayla Williams. "Panama City Beach was fun and exciting. It was great to lay out all day and soak up as much sun as possible," Mills said. 2. Senior Courtney Casteel laughing with friends before her horrifying experience. "The first wave knocked me down and before I knew it I was being dragged out of the water by four men who saved my life," Casteel said. 3. "Our Condo was right on the beach, so we had an amazing view of the ocean. Everything was in walking distance so we had freedom to go wherever we wanted," senior Mikinzie O'Neal said. 4. "I got to hang out with my friends and see different parts of the world. It was an amazing spring break," senior Kelsey Even said. 5. "Panama was fun, I even got stung by a jelly fish," senior Joey Juliano said. 6. Sophomore Kasey Luzar and Jessica Stinger went to Paris Tennessee for their fun spring break. "It was pretty cool to see a miniature Eiffel Tower," Luzar said.

It was rare that Mooresville received a two hour delay or even a snow day. When students heard of a bad winter storm rolling in, they sat with anticipation hoping for a delay.

On January 30, 2011 a winter ice storm began in Mooresville. That night, there was a blanket of ice over most of central Indiana.

"When I woke up, I saw everything frozen, my parents' cars looked like giant ice cube," freshmen Sarah Beardsley said.

The next morning there was an outstanding amount of school closings including Mooresville. Nobody could leave their houses, because the roads were caked with ice on them. Most students watched movies, played video games, or slept.

"I made a fort of pillows and blankets in my living room using all the furniture and watched continuous reruns of Lizzie McGuire," sophomore Bailey McNalley said.

The roads were so bad that week, many schools, including Mooresville, received four snow days. At first it was exciting, and then it became boring. When kids finally got to leave their homes, some ended up in a ditch from sliding off the roads.

"I slid sideways down a steep hill, and fishtailed into a farmer's fence. The police had to come find me, and they had me slide down the hill to them," senior Shelby Pierson said.

The roads were very dangerous and so was just getting out of the house. Thankfully, that weekend it snowed, and the ice began to thaw, so it wasn't as slippery.

What's the Big Deal?

Keeping it up to date

Principal of the Year 2010

On November 21, 2010 principal Chuck Muston received an award from the Indiana Association of School Principals for being the Principal of the Year for the State of Indiana.

"I feel honored, privileged and also blessed. There are a lot of people that deserve to be thanked for helping me achieve this," Muston said. Mr. Muston had been the principal of Mooresville High School for 10 years and in order to receive this award Muston and the entire staff did a great job in obtaining it.

"When a need arises we put up to the challenge," Muston said. "I also feel like I have hired wonderful people." In becoming the principal of the year it's not all put into the principal's hands, it's the students and staff as well. Now that Mooresville had received this, they continued to perfect and achieve more.

"There are absolutely more things to perfect to what we have already done. I don't let my highs get too high and my lows get too low," Muston said. In September of 2011 Muston was scheduled to travel to Washington D.C. to compete at the national level for Principal of the Year.

Stetson University

With breaking the all women's basketball scoring record along with many others for 2010, senior Jama Sharp signed with Stetson in the fall of 2010.

In making this decision Sharp said, "They were the right fit for me. They have great academics, coaching staff, team, and location."

When deciding for making a college choice Stetson wasn't the only college on her mind. "Stetson wasn't my first choice, but after getting to visit and be familiar with the college and staff it was number one on the list and the best choice for me," Sharp said. With going to Stetson, Sharp hoped to continue her career in basketball.

"I hope to play as long as I can, but if not I plan to have a career that has to do with basketball," Sharp said.

DC Royalty

Mooresville High School rivaled with Decatur Central for many years, and there were controversies between students from both schools. Senior Alex Redelman, aka "A-RED", decided to take it to the next level by making Decatur famous by writing the hit single "DC Royalty." With catchy lyrics, the song poked fun at Decatur, and some thought it portrayed Decatur in a negative light.

After the song came out, Redelman received threats from Decatur students who did not take the parody lightly. Anti-Mooresville videos also appeared onto YouTube. On the day of the game, Mr. Muston spoke live during sixth period to remind students to behave appropriately at the game.

"It was just a joke, but every joke has some truth behind it, and that is why Decatur got mad," Redelman said.

For the boys basketball game against Decatur, Redelman was not allowed to attend, but two weeks later when the Lady Pioneers played them, Redelman dressed up as an Avatar.

"They knew right after the game that it was me, and during the game some took pictures with me," Redelman said.

Redelman's hit single "DC Royalty" was available on iTunes for 99 cents.

Receiving the papers, senior Jama Sharp signs to Stetson University while her parents watch. "They were the right fit for me," Sharp said.

PROM 2011

City of lights

It was Prom day. Everyone was anxious and they all wanted to make sure everything was perfect. Girls got up in the morning to get their hair done and guys were making sure their tuxes fit well. They all waited for the time everybody was ready to take pictures and get on their way to the Hyatt for Prom.

It might have taken a lot to get ready, especially for the girls, but it was definitely worth getting all dressed up for.

"My Prom day consisted of a lot of driving and waiting on the girls," senior Dylan Hines said.

Prom was very successful, with City of Lights as the theme, everyone had a great time and the Sponsors Kim Zook, Brent Olivier and the Prom Committee did a great job decorating. There was a lot of dancing and fun everywhere.

"My favorite part of Prom was the disco lights and neon glow necklaces. I also liked all the dudes breaking it down when everyone got in a circle so they could do their dance," senior Haley Colbert said.

Everyone had a different story to tell when we came back to school on Monday. Senior Cheyanne Murdock's boyfriend Michael Gulley proposed to her in the middle of the dance floor. She said yes.

"My most memorable moment was when the first slow song came on - Michael got on his knee and asked me if I would marry him. I remember everyone in a circle around us," Murdock said.

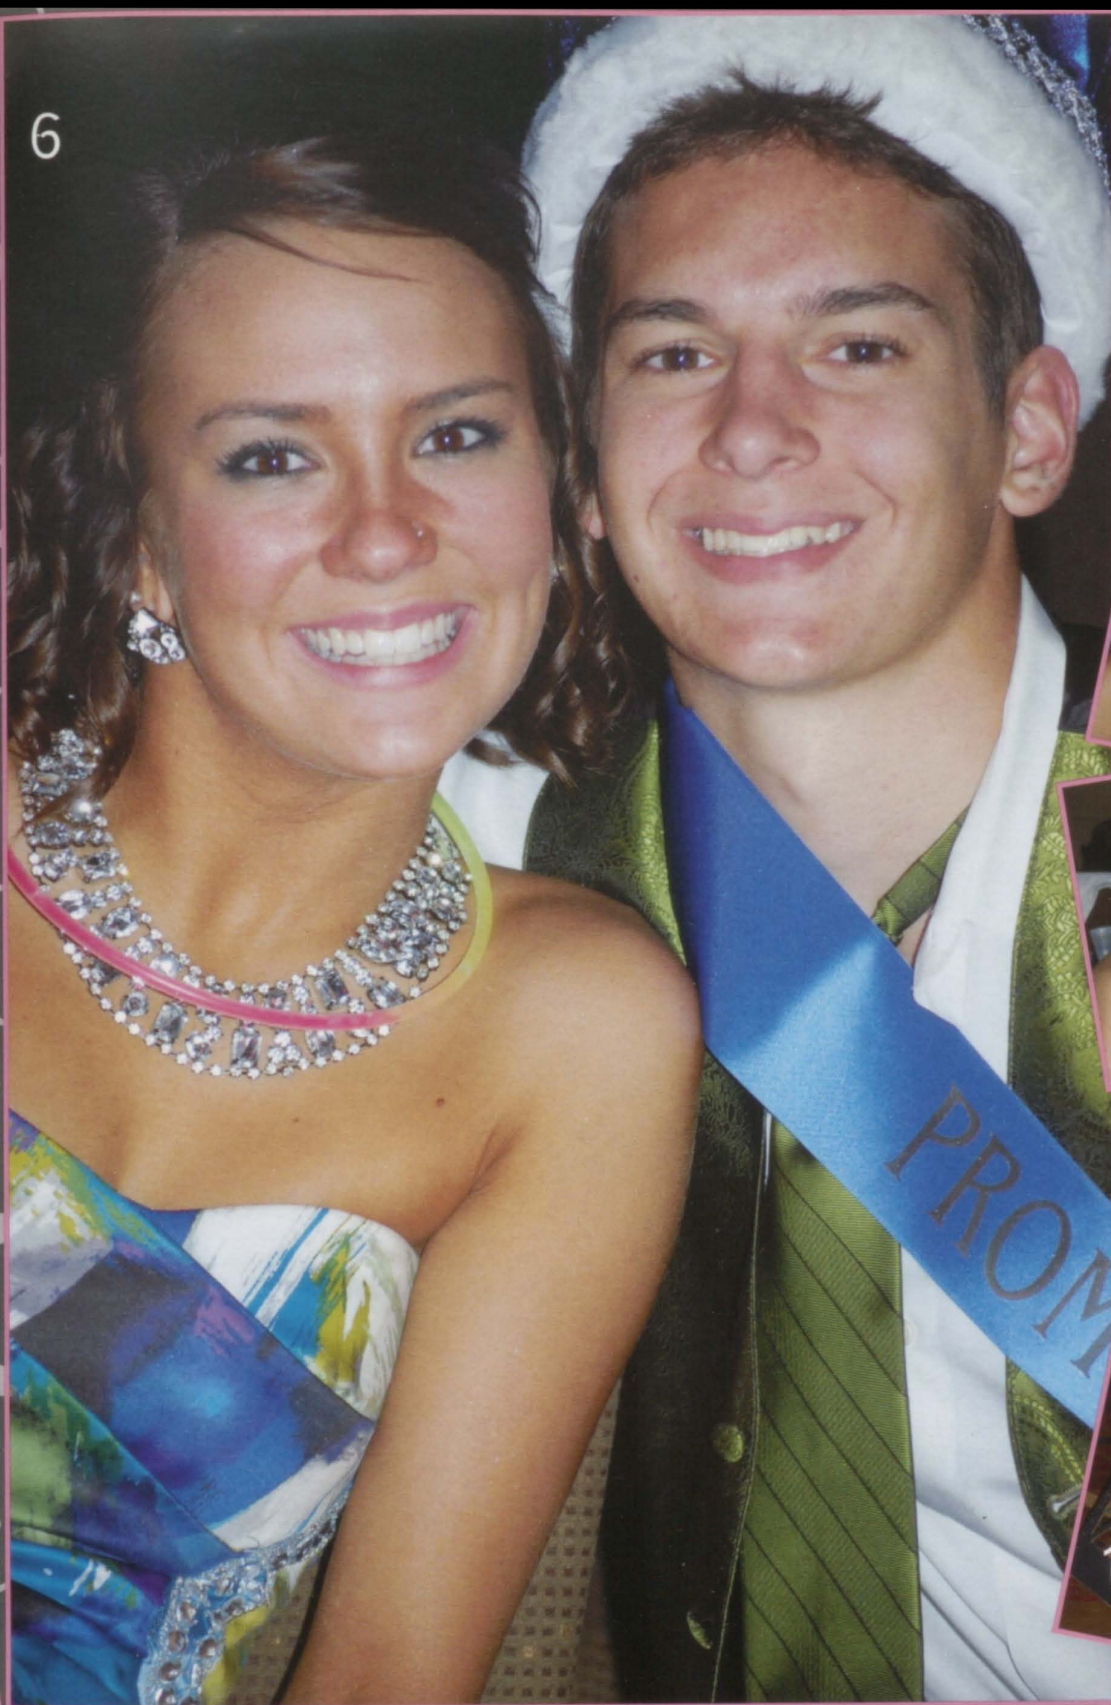

Senior Justine Henley had so much fun at Prom that she fell under the Eiffel Tower that was set up in the front. She said she is glad she can remember her Senior Prom with the nine stitches she received and making a trip to the hospital instead of going to Post Prom or Kings Island the next day.

"Have fun and don't trip!" Hensley said.

Can you believe...

The events of 2011

Children who were young, elementary school students when the World Trade Center fell, and the Pentagon burned, have matured into high school or college students. When the news came that Bin Laden was found, it was those same students who felt relieved, on that Monday morning, in May.

"When they announced that they had found Bin Laden, I felt a sense of relief knowing that justice was served," senior Joey Swisher said.

One normal Friday afternoon during seventh period, the fire alarm sounded. Many thought it was only a drill, until fire trucks and police came in from every direction. There was a "burning" odor near the construction rooms.

"I left all my stuff in my class, then the fire trucks arrived, and I knew it was serious. The thought of not seeing my lucky lunch box again frightened me," freshman Brent Walker said.

Students began to get frustrated when they were standing outside and rain drops were dropping on their heads. Firefighters searched the building and discovered a haze beginning to form, the situation was corrected, and students were allowed back into the building. The students were required to stay in the building until administration released them. They were held about 15 minutes after school.

The Friday before spring break, while students finished up their last minute homework and test, Mooresville was notified of a shooting. Just outside Mooresville, a student of West Middle School in Martinsville shot another student in the stomach, twice. The victim, who was identified by police as a 15-year-old boy, was taken by LifeLine helicopter to Methodist Hospital for treatment, where he underwent surgery. At MHS, students operated under a Code Yellow, which meant they were on alert.

"I was freaking out man, I mean the whole school was freaking out. I took cover when the code yellow went into effect," sophomore Jessica Juliano said.

The suspect was found shortly after and taken into custody. All Morgan County schools were on a code yellow lock down for the rest of the day. When students returned from spring break, a "high alert" remained in effect for about a week.

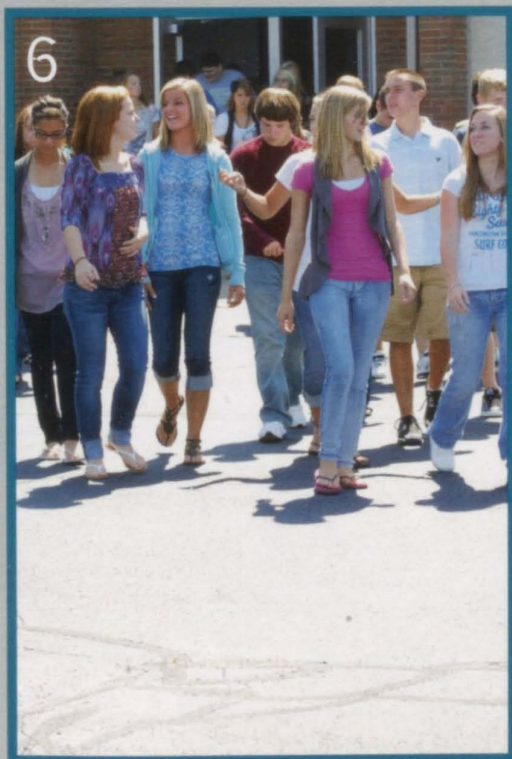

On March 11, 2011 a devastating earthquake struck the nation of Japan. The epicenter was located 45 miles off the coast of the Oshika Peninsula, and 232 miles from Tokyo, Japan's capital.

"The best way to be prepared for an earthquake is to be educated about them," Q-crew sponsor Mr. Jim Lindsey said. "With education we can develop better engineering for buildings and other structures."

As a result of the earthquake, a major tsunami destroyed the Pacific coastline of Japan's northern islands and caused the loss of thousands of lives and the destruction of towns.

6. "Everyone thought it was a drill, so people were taking their time and talking with friends," sophomore Tori Hoffman said.

8. Teachers and students dressed up as if they were Mr. Muston or Mrs. Gilly for "Are you smarter than a Fifth grader." "I just can't get over the fact that I missed a history question," Mrs. Gilly said.

9. "I love giving blood, it's an easy way to help someone in need," senior Tabitha White said. The American Red Cross came to the school a couple times throughout the year to give students the opportunity to give blood.

Graduation

The Journey has just begun

On Saturday, May 28 the seniors all gathered in the North Gym, checking in and anxiously awaiting their final walk as the Class of 2011.

For the past four years they had made memories and made a lasting impression on so many individuals throughout the years. Their lives would now go in different directions that follow their education and goals they set for themselves, but their memories would last a life time.

The Class of 2011 graduated with 278 classmates. The valedictorian was Maggie Page, salutatorian Sterling Brooks and class president Ashtyn Fisher. Christa Whitehurst welcomed the ceremony with the Pledge of Allegiance and then said a prayer.

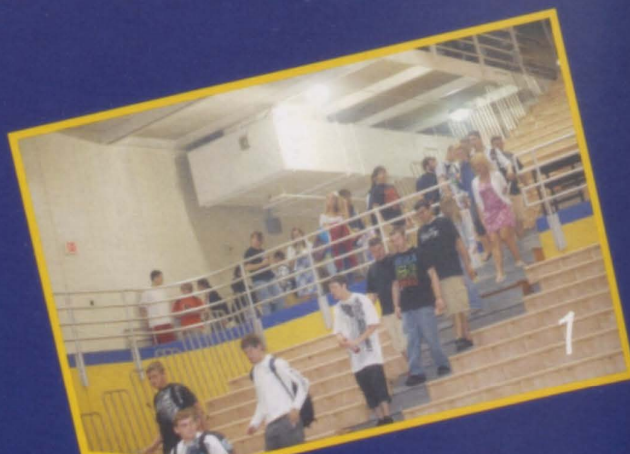

"I was worried and nervous about giving my speech to so many people, but I prayed, took a deep breath, and went for it. I felt honored to have this opportunity to reflect on all our achievements as well as glimpse at what the future will hold," said Maggie Page.

Graduation was an exciting yet bittersweet time for not only the graduates but their parents and family members. The ones that had taken a part in watching them grow hollered and applauded for the seniors who could now say, "We did it!" It took the Class of 2011 13 long hard years to receive their diploma but luckily for the senior sponsors Mr. Adam Allen and Ms. Kristin Robinson it did not take them nearly as long.

"The best part about graduation was that we were able to maintain the formalness of the occasion and at the same time enjoy the slide show of the seniors' baby pictures set to songs sung by our choir - all within an hour-and-a-half for the whole ceremony," senior class sponsor Ms. Robinson said.

As the seniors turned their tassels, they were turning the next page in their journey of life, leaving Mooresville High School with their legacy behind. It was the end of high school but just the beginning of the rest of their lives filled with new adventures and new friendships along the way.

1. The seniors start entering the South gym after having their senior picnic on the balcony due to all the rain that week. The seniors practiced twice before the big day on May 28 at 11 a.m. 2. The students with the last names A through B start filling up the rows and once their row has everyone then they are able to be seated. Some students were reading the Commencement program that was placed in their seats for them to have. 3. Senior and Valedictorian Maggie Page reads her speech she has written to her fellow classmates and to the honored guests that filled the bleachers early Saturday morning. 4. Seniors LeeDa Allen and Joey Juliano walk side by side on their way to their seats like they rehearsed. "Walking in the gym, the only thing I was thinking was, 'This is the last time I will ever be in this school as a student or our whole class will be together and that it may be the last time I ever see some of my classmates ever again,'" said senior LeeDa Allen. 5. Senior class president Ashtyn Fisher tells her classmates to rise, turns the tassels from right to left and then as the newest alumni to sing the Alma Mater. 6. The Class of 2011 sit as the rest of their classmates fill in their seats behind them eagerly anticipating the day the graduate from Mooresville High School. "It was neat to look out at all my classmates and watch them turn their tassels at once," said senior Ashtyn Fisher.

Freshman Cameron Meadows individuates by excelling in school. "Many people will discourage you but you just have to keep your head up and work towards your goals," Meadows said.

Individuate

Getting Noticed

Junior Morgan Fisher individuates by racing gokarts. "I love being around friends and family at the track, going fast, and just competing," Fisher said.

Sophomore Miranda Schiff individuates by dancing. "I have been dancing for 13 years, because it challenges me and there is never a dull moment," Schiff said.

In a crowded school full of teenagers, standing out was a bit of a challenge. Dressing differently or changing up hair styles were a few ways kids individuated themselves.

When it came to school photos, everyone looked similar. With only a couple different background colors and the shirt worn to change it up, the chances of one standing out in the class album were slim to none.

Many seniors got professional senior pictures taken as a way to remember who they really were in high school.

"I got senior pictures because my senior year is a big deal and it's nice to have cute pictures to send out to family and my friends," senior Maggie Page said.

There were a few well known photographers in the Mooresville area that were used: Marci Ralph Photography, Photos by Lou, and Suni Danielle Photography.

But standing out was not for just the seniors, everyone was trying to be different.

"I wear vintage clothes to individuate," junior Lauren Graham said, "because I try not to like things that other people like."

Along with a difference in clothing taste, Loren often wore her hair in unique styles that were not typically seen.

Being unique was often on student's minds.

"I often think about what to wear the night before so that I can put together a really cute outfit and not look like a bum," junior Trisha Mason said.

Individuating oneself was not just about being the class clown or being Prom king, it was about making a reputation for yourself that in years to come will follow you.

Welcome to America...

Foreign Exchange Students

For several years Mooresville High School has participated in exchange that gave students from all across the world the opportunity to come and live in Mooresville with a host family and attend Mooresville High School. MHS had three foreign exchange students. Their ages ranged from 15 to 17. The youngest exchange student was Anastasia Strelnicova from Moldova.

"I think it is interesting to get to know another culture. Furthermore, I wanted to improve my English and have better job chances after an exchange year," Orell Garten said.

Foreign exchange students had to adjust to American culture. New classes, new rules and new experiences. They could be nervous or scared to open up to meet or try different foods and sports. The more open they are, the more fun and new things they were introduced to.

"After being here, there is no really least part, I was glad to experience all sides of being a high school student, to have fun with friends, playing sports, it's also doing homework, study, and doing really painful projects," Julia Kleinet said.

Everyday things that Mooresville students took for granted, were where the exchange students found themselves in a culture unlike their own. They said they had not had the privileges of going to Friday night sports games or being apart of a team. They also enjoyed having Homecoming and themes throughout that week to show school spirit. They also experienced chatter about Spring Break and Prom, which was something new and exciting for foreign exchange students.

In the end, students experienced a year filled with new memories and new friendships that no matter how many miles apart they are from each other, with technology, they could stay in touch.

What's Different?

"What's different from MHS from my school in Moldova, we don't change classrooms. We stay in the same room all the time with some people of one grade," Anastasia Strelnicova said.

"The biggest difference between schools in Germany and MHS is the schedule and the relationship between teacher and student. In Germany we have a schedule for a week, so we get different classes everyday and we have to take 15 classes. Furthermore, the relationship between teacher and student is not so close," Orell Garten said.

"American high schools, like MHS, are bigger in general with more students. (In my country) the teacher's desk is in the front of the room and they don't have their own computers. Regulations like, drug tests, hall passes, Student Council, Student of the Month, TA's...I've never heard of before," Julia Kleinert said.

Hunting The days away

What you may not know about your fellow classmates is they were not just serious in school; when it came to hunting there was nothing more serious than being on the hunting field.

"I've hunted turkey, squirrel, deer, geese, and coyotes," Justin Stockoff said.

During the early fall I scout, set up trail cameras, and set my tree stands before the season. My favorite story is when I shot my first deer or the time I saw a squirrel fall out of a tree," Zach McKibben said.

Prom Committee

Pushes for success

It was juniors who worked very hard to make Prom the best. They were proud of their hard work and dedication.

"It was really fun picking out the decorations for Prom," Chanea Lambton said.

"It took a lot of time and effort to make this Prom one to remember," Kelsey Strohmeyer said.

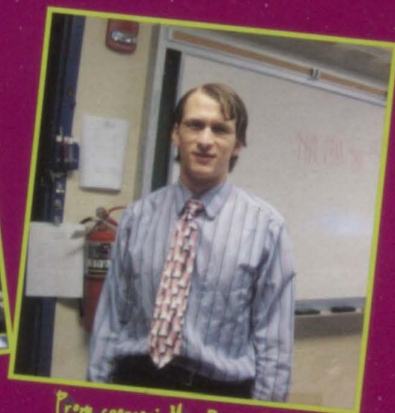

Prom Committee

Prom sponsor: Mrs. Kim Zook

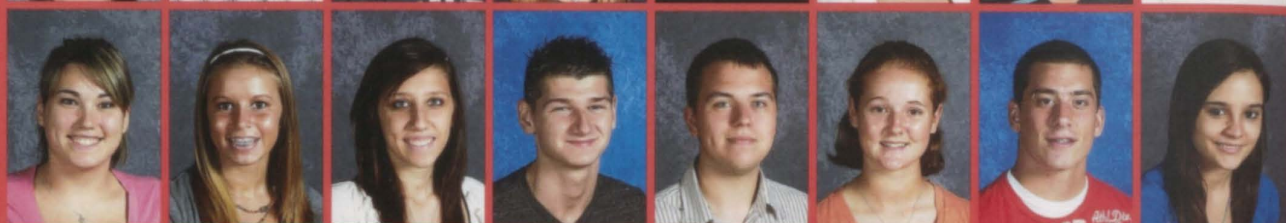

Prom sponsor: Mr. Brent Olivier

"This is my first year working on the Prom Committee and so I am not very sure what I got myself into, but so far I think we're doing pretty well," Mrs. Zook said.

That's Unusual... Strange habits

"If there is a new superhero movie coming out, I will go see it the first day it comes out no matter what. I'll plan months ahead so I don't miss it," Chelsie Bingham said.

"I wear shorts all year round. I get hot really easy, so there are only a couple days in a year that I wear pants. I have a lot of different color shorts," Joshua Kirk said.

"I wear unmatched socks everyday," Jacob Vance said.

"I chew on my straws after I finish my drink, until they're almost completely gone," Haley Cooper said.

What were we thinking?

Sophomores' Most Unforgettable Trends

"In sixth grade, I spent my birthday money on a pair of orange and lime-green crocs. I always talked about how ugly crocs were so I don't know why I spent my money on them," sophomore Alison Wilson said.

"Those chunky rubber bands with words on them from fifth grade were the ugliest things I've ever seen. I can't believe I used to wear them," sophomore Codie Andrews said.

"Silly bands because they are silly," sophomore Jessica Juliano said.

"I used to take those thin headbands that everybody had and put them on my teeth. I thought it was cool to pretend I had braces," sophomore Kar'lea Scott said.

First Day Freshman

Memories

"On my first day, it was really relaxing to come into high school and be accepted by the upperclassmen and teachers," Jesse Cordray said.

"I can remember feeling like a lost puppy. Everybody knew what they were doing, but it seems like I was really confused," Abbey Prilliman said.

"I felt intimidated as I walked through the hallways. I saw people I knew, but I wasn't sure if they knew me," Alivia Duerlinger said.

I had a big cast on and everyone kept pushing me. Other than that, I remember feeling lost, but the teachers were helpful," Kayla Harpold said.

"I was just glad I had older friends that were in high school, because they helped me out a lot. Some were in my classes which made things easier," Zachary Bengé said.

Sleep Study: Do you sleep at school?

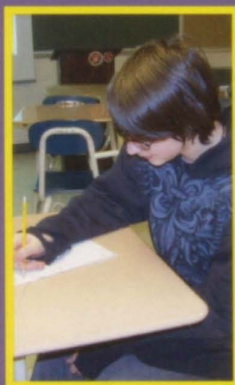

Editors Note: When yearbook staff members went out looking for students sleeping during first period, they could only find one student. All the pictures on this page are photo illustrations, except for one. Can you guess who was really sleeping?

"I sleep in Construction Systems, because I get all my work done, then I get bored," freshman Dalton Perry said.

"After lunch, my belly is full and I just fall asleep," freshman Bailey Pryor said.

"The only sleep I get is in class, but I had Pop-Tarts today (January 20, 2011) so I'm awake for Mr. Swalls, Algebra 1 class," freshman Tyler Eggers said.

"Math is my favorite class to sleep in," freshman Alex Teders said

"I usually only sleep in class when I don't feel good," freshman Amber Pedigo said.

1. Junior Taylor Moore pushes through the Greenwood Woodmen to gain yards for the Pioneers. "They would never know it was coming; they always thought the ball was going to go to Arie Bigham," Moore said. 2. Freshman Cory Sims passes through the opponent to go for a goal. 3. Senior Janna Sharp intimidates the Martinsville Artesians with her unstoppable three pointers. "When I am open I just shoot the ball. I never look to see where I am. I just hope it goes in," Sharp said. 4. Junior Bri Smith warms up with her drills to get ready for the game ahead. 5. Sophomore Jordan Allen pumps up the crowd to help the Lady Pioneers pull off a win. "It's fun to help the teams when they're down. Cheering allows for the team to still know that we believe in them," Allen said. 6. Senior Wes Fluke signed to the University of Saint Francis to continue his football career. "I got a full tuition scholarship. I had to work really hard for this opportunity, and it takes a lot of hard work to get where I needed to be," Fluke said. 7. Senior Ashley McQueen signed to Marian University to play on the women's golf team. "I was very excited for this opportunity," McQueen said. 8. Senior LeeDa Allen worked hard for her spot on the Goshen Maple Leafs softball team.

Intimidate

The love of the game

Intimidate had been the word on all of the Mooresville High School athletes and fans minds.

"It doesn't always matter how good you are; it matters how hard you try. If you intimidate the opponent it could give you a little advantage to help with the outcome," senior Ashtyn Fisher said.

The Mooresville High School girls' soccer team intimidated their opponent, the Plainfield lady Quakers, to gain the title as sectional champions.

"Just beating Center Grove was an accomplishment for the team, but when we went on to win sectionals it made the year even better," sophomore Adele Hunter-Shields said.

The fans and band helped add to the positive atmosphere. They ultimately contributed to the team by helping them win with all of the support.

The intimidation factor worked well for the Girls Basketball team by obtaining their three time sectional championship.

"The Pep Band helped pump up our team. When we were down they motivated us to keep trying especially in the sectional championship against Plainfield," junior Amber Viles said.

Being successful in a sport can lead to an opportunity to continue that success in college. It takes intimidation and the love of the game to impress a college coach.

It is a lot of hard work and showing an interest to continue a career in college. Its more than being talented in the sport it is showing the love of the game.

Mooreville Varsity Football

New Coach, New Ways

Ahhh! First Down! Mooreville Pioneers did well during the season, under new head coach Kevin Hutchins. Hutchins had a lot of adjusting to do, as well as the team.

"The techniques used in our offense were not traditional, so it took time to learn new things. Defensively our schemes had not changed from past years," Coach Hutchins said.

"It was different learning an offense that doesn't really pass the ball," senior captain Eric Bigham said, "but it was good for my part, because that meant I would get the ball a lot."

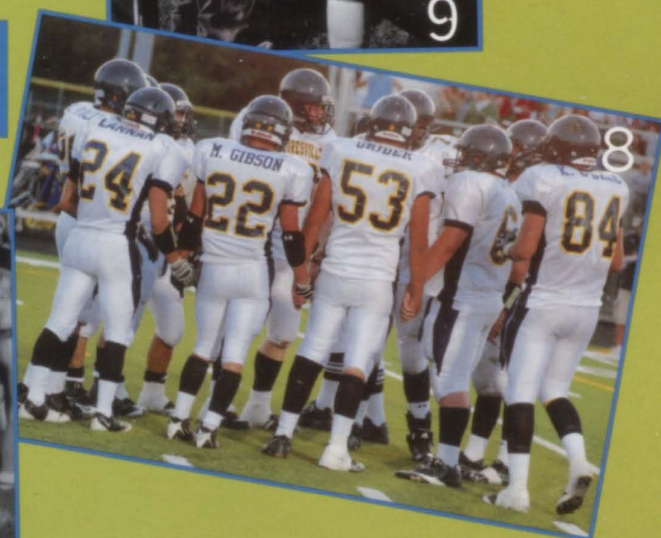

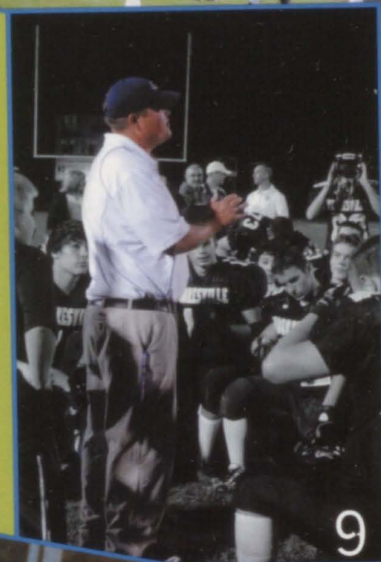

The team gave it its best for a whole new ball game. Some wanted the team to throw more. When asked, junior quarterback Frank Brock said he felt that the community had his back. "They believed in me and had faith in my passing," Brock said.

The team was hopeful and looked forward to the new change to see how the season would turn out. One of the team's fondest memories was bonding together every Friday Night. All the guys left everything on the field.

The team ended with a record of three wins and five losses. When Mooreville reflected back on the season, it remembered the dedication, determination, and the adrenaline from the entire varsity team.

"I'm looking forward to future season, especially the rematch against Decatur Central," Junior Matt Gibson said.

Freshman and JV Football

Starting out Fresh

Junior Varsity Football

The JV football team ended its season with a 5-4 record, and the members felt good about the outcomes of their games.

"Coming back and beating Whiteland in the final minutes of the game was the most memorable part," sophomore Zach Minardo said.

Many players set goals for themselves to achieve throughout the season.

"Our team goal was winning the Mid State Conference," sophomore Damon Bryant said.

The JV season left the boys with many memories.

"One memorable part of the season was the game against Whiteland. I felt we came together as a team that game," sophomore Damon Bryant said.

Freshman Football

The freshman were new to playing on the MHS team, but played together to do the best they could. They ended with a 1-6 record.

"The freshman had a good learning experience," said freshman Blaine Stanley.

As the season ended the boys thought forward about years to come on the MHS football team.

"If you work hard enough, go to every practice, and really want your starting position, then you will most likely get it like I did," said freshman quarterback Cody Cannon.

Making Strides to be The Best

The 2010 competition season had some major changes in store for the squad. The squad had two new coaches, the varsity and the freshman coach. All three coaches, Savannah Tielking (varsity), Amanda Lawson (jv), and Katie Tutterow (freshman) coached the competition squad.

Before the season began the coaches made up a motto: Pride, Strength, & Tradition. This was their motto all season, and with new coaches the squad still tried to keep the traditions of the Mooresville High School competition squad.

"It was a year of transition for all. The team had new coaches and consisted primarily of underclassman athletes," Coaches Savannah Tielking and Katie Tutterow said.

The 2010 competition season wasn't filled with everything the squad had hoped for, but they made the best of what they had. They ended up getting off to a late start in the season because of the wait of finding new coaches. This put a stump in creating their routine, but they accomplished it in time for their first competition at Hendricks County. Over the summer they went to many competitions including Putnam County, Marian County, Jennings County, and The Indiana State Fair. In the fall they also competed in Mid-State which was their last and their greatest competition of the year.

Freshman Rachel Cawford said, "Towards the end it went really well; we got it together and became a team."

They ended up placing third at the competition which was the best the squad had done all year. They also had two All-Conference Athletes, Haleigh Richardson and Jaimee McQueen.

Junior Haleigh Richardson said, "One of the most memorable moments was individually becoming an All-Conference cheerleader and the feeling of how well we did coming off the mat at Mid-State."

The squad didn't get off to an amazing start, but by the end it all paid off and they were happy with the results at Mid-State.

BY HALEY ALWARD

Pride, Strength, & Tradition:

Freshman, Movin' On Up

Sometimes being new to the squad can be overwhelming. The freshman had become the youngest kids of the school instead of the oldest ones.

Freshman Emily Warfield said, "You are the youngest one now, but you have more freedom."

Being a high school cheerleader took quite a bit of responsibility. The squads were expected to decorate and entertain the crowd especially for Homecoming, sectionals, and any other special events that the athletic office asked them to do. Cheerleading was very time consuming, and it was a year round sport if they cheered football and basketball.

Freshman Morganne Belton said, "It was a lot harder in a good way."

The freshmen also had a new coach, Katie Tutterow, who had never coached high school before. They made it through a good season and had a blast cheering.

Coach Katie said, "What I enjoyed most about the season was getting to know the squad members as they let their guards down throughout the season. I hope I made some kind of difference in their lives."

BY HALEY ALWARD

1. The squad huddles up before its first competition at Hendrick's County. Junior Captain Sara Gilbert said, "As the captain I tried to get the team pumped up for the competition, so we could do well on the floor." 2. Two All-Conference cheerleaders was a privilege for the competition squad last year to have. Sophomore Jaimee McQueen said, "Becoming an All-Conference cheerleader was exciting, and I didn't think I could do it especially since I didn't have a voice." 3. Sophomore Olivia

Oswalt shows off her talent by doing her full in the competition. "I have done gymnastics for a long time, so it wasn't hard for me to throw it, but I enjoyed it!" 4. Sophomore Paige Martin said, "It was a tough competition, but we ended up placing second." The squad worked hard for the second place win at Jennings County. 5. The bases work hard to get the flier up. Freshman Haley Wyble said, "I never really used to base so it was new for me but I enjoyed doing something different." 6. Three Flyers Doing a unique stunt during the game. Freshman Shayna Hyatte said, "Building is tough, but it feels good when you accomplish the build." 7. The freshman cheerleaders cheer hard for the freshman boys team at home.

Freshman Allison Taylor said, "I was just cheering loud for the boys." 8. The Freshman Squad is all smiles as they cheer their boys on. Freshman Taryn Rooks said, "It was a lot of fun cheering for the boys freshman team, there was never a dull moment on the squad." 9. The cheerleaders are focused in on the game. Freshman Brooke Nichols said, "Most of the games were intense, and I enjoyed cheering for them."

Shooting to Score

Boys Soccer's Got Goals

Goal! The season was an intense one. Goals of all kind were scored and achieved. The varsity team may not have had a winning season, but no doubt they had heart. The team set goals and strove to achieve them all. Although the team had a losing season, they never gave up. They always fought no matter what.

Varsity midfielder, Andrew Majeski, said, "Overall we should have done better, but we hit a lot of our team goals for the season."

Goals seemed to keep the team going. Everyone had goals, little or big, they were set and worked towards. Junior Varsity team captain, Evan Downey shared, "Our goal was to play to our best potential and we achieved it."

Jack Elo, a freshman on the Junior Varsity team, will always remember scoring the first goal of his high school career.

Varsity captain, Caleb Fox, said, "I will remember tying Martinsville in a conference game 1-1 in the last minute of the game."

Varsity head coach, Jack Polson, was very proud of the boys. "We had a great season where the boys worked hard to achieve our goals," he said.

The varsity team finished its season 6-9-2. The junior varsity team finished its season 7-3-1. The boys would have liked to make it further in tournament, but sadly lost to Martinsville in the first round of sectionals. With a young team, their future looked very bright.

Invincible Lady Pioneers

Setting New Goals and Making History

Over the past three to four years the Lady Pioneers have improved in each season. This year they went one step further in winning Sectionals.

Varsity captain Bree Smith said, "We weren't as focused as we should have been, but I think we still did well." Indeed they did perform, as they tied with the Plainfield Quakers for the Mid-State Conference and went one step further in their season. Many talented players both on the JV and Varsity teams put in a lot of effort and dedication in order to go as far as they did. The Varsity team was much smaller than years prior, and, for each game, JV players would move up and play to help out with the Varsity team.

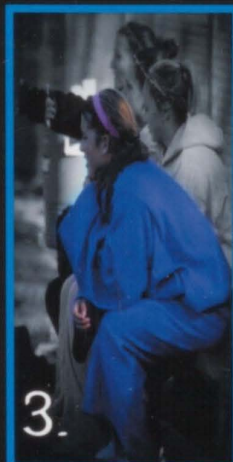

One of those players was a freshman Krystel Marino who was full of energy on the field. "Every time I stepped on the field I ran and jumped everywhere, they all called me the energizer bunny, because I had so much energy," Marino said.

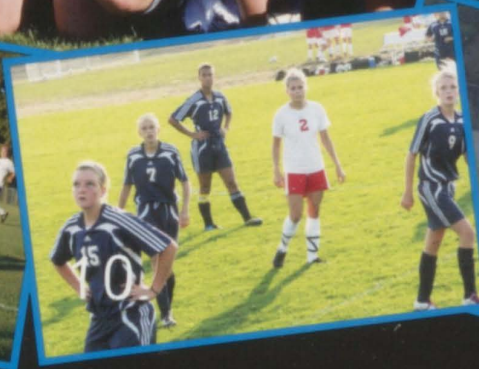

Krystel wasn't the only new face on the team; there was a new coach as well. Scott Kimble was the JV coach as well as the goalie coach. He took a lot of time with the players and helped Coach Jason Damron make their season successful.

The biggest success was knocking out the Lady Trojans in the first round of sectionals. "After last years season I knew that we were in good shape and this year I knew we could do it, and when we won the Center Grove game it was relief to know we beat them after so many years. That was one of our goals at the beginning of this season to defeat them," Coach Damron said.

From a player's point of view from the game senior Kelsey Groce had this to say, "For my last year of being on the team I think we went out with a great season. We beat Center Grove and made history!" Indeed they did go out with a fantastic season, and hopefully next year they go one step further.

GIRLS SOCCER
SECTIONAL CHAMPIONS

1. If being her first year on the team, freshman Emilee Eickman gets a pep talk from the varsity assistant head coach Scott Kimble. "Scott was yelling at me, but I don't think that I was listening," Eickman ended up doing very well in that game and it was probably thanks to coach Kimble.
2. During the sectional championship junior Shelby Beasley has received a yellow card for misconduct.
3. Sitting on the Bench trying to warm up, sophomore Brett Green wraps up in a Snuggie. "This was my first year playing soccer, and I enjoyed spending time with all the girls!" Green said. She helped both the JV and Varsity teams, and learned a lot of new things.
4. Just inches away from making history, junior Kelsey Mulvehill almost jumps out of her cleats with six seconds on the clock for the championship title.
5. During the Franklin Community game, sophomore Adele Hunter-Shields makes a sweet pass to one of her teammates.
6. Marisa Sims was a sophomore and a returning varsity player.
7. Junior Stephanie Scaggs walks on to the field with a bundle of nerves for her first Varsity game.
8. Junior Aerin Walters gets tangled up in the ball in the game against Lebanon.
9. During the season sophomore Rachel Justus was having troubles with her knee, but finally got her chance to play at one of the early season games against Franklin Community. "I straight owned her! And because of this picture, I am famous at Applebees!" (Editor's Note: The yearbook staff partnered with the Camby Applebees to provide local photos to be displayed. This is one of the photos that Applebee's selected.)
10. JV girls anticipate for when the ball will come down from out of the air, hoping that they get it and score a goal.
11. When playing against Plainfield Junior Maddie Zook uses her best skills to get around them.
12. The season ended with a sectional championship. Junior Hannah Jones said, "I looked Adele in the eyes and mouthed the words 'We did it!'" And then we went to El Rodeo for a fiesta! The team celebrated defeating Plainfield.

Running to a Victory

Cross Country

Mooresville's 2010 Cross Country team worked hard. To win as a team, each person had to win individually. There were many talented runners and varsity was moved around.

"The team members all improved and there were new people on varsity each week," sophomore Kasey Luzar said.

The cross country team had many new people running in the 2010 season. We had a good season with more people coming out. Everyone did great," sophomore Eli Brizendine said.

Despite all the new people many team members came back from the 2009 season.

"I really like running cross country, because I always feel good when I finish," sophomore Michael Passmore said.

"This year we had 18 girls and guys come out for cross country and they were all a lot of fun. The season was rewarding and it was neat to see everybody improve," senior Sarah Angermeier said.

"I was really proud of everyone and their improvements," Coach Julie Hamlin said.

The 2010 season was successful.

Hitting off the Season: Boys Tennis

With five wins on the record, the boys' tennis team improved from the year before. Seniors Davis Gray and Tyler Huff were both excited to see improvements.

The team bonded together very well. "We all know how to work together, we work as a whole regardless if it's an individual sport or not," Davis Gray said. All in all, the boys' tennis team had a great season. The boys worked well as a team and enjoyed the sport.

"Any kind of victory is a great victory," senior Tyler Huff said.

The captains, Davis Gray, James Fields, and Grant Roberts showed great leadership on the team.

"Their leadership was crucial in bringing together a team that had players from each grade level," Coach Mike Teders said.

Coach Mike Teders was very proud of his seniors and he was also looking forward to his younger players for the next season.

"It always helps when you have team members who were dedicated like this past years seniors," Coach Teders said.

1. Stephano Harrison Schafer was excited to be playing at the Indianapolis Racket Club. He served the tennis ball starting the match.

2. Davis Gray and Tyler Huff play a double. They made a great doubles team and really show awesome teamwork. "I need to do my best and regardless whether I win or lose," Tyler, Huff said.

3. As a freshman, Sloan Schafer played as well as the seniors. "[My favorite part about tennis is when I'm] playing up at the net," Sloan Schafer said.

4. Junior James Fields was one of the three captains on the team. He was just what the team needed, a great leader. "Due to the leadership of our captains, our team worked well together," Coach Teders said.

5. Chris Cooley throws the ball to serve against the team's biggest rival, Decatur. Mooresville won that match with pride.

6. The Varsity team felt like pros at the Indianapolis Racket Club. It was an exciting time for the team. "It was so intense, because it was indoors," Clay Huddleston said with a grin.

1. Players Lindsey Bantley, Molly Tieman, Samantha Perry, Ashley McQueen, and Danielle Warthen felt excited to play against Danville. They made sure to take advantage of the time before the match for practice.

2. Senior Kelsey Even prepares herself to tee off. Even was nervous, but still ready for this match against Decatur and Franklin.

3. Senior Ashley McQueen lines up her putt. This match was against Danville. "I was so excited for the match against Danville, because I knew the girls. We came close to a win," McQueen said.

4. Senior Lindsey Bantley readies herself to tee off on senior night. "I really wanted to do well on senior night, because it was my last home match," Bantley said.

5. Senior Samantha Perry walks to her next shot after teeing off against Danville. Perry was hoping to do well against Danville.

6. Freshman Allison McQueen lines up her putt on senior night. "Putting is an important part of my game and I tried hard this season to improve my putt," McQueen said.

7. Freshman Danielle Warthen drives the ball against Danville. Warthen worked hard her freshman year.

8. Freshman Molly Tieman tees off against Danville. "I had a great time this season and I'm really thankful for all the senior's help," Tieman said.

9. Freshman Jessica Lacer moves to her next hole against Danville. "I was really hopeful for this match, because I wanted to win," Lacer said.

Less Is More:

Girls Golf

With only four freshman and four seniors on the girls golf team, they decided early on they would need to work together. The team had many struggles, but wouldn't allow the age difference to become one of them.

"As a team, they worked as a unit, not as four freshman and four seniors," Coach Ali Beam said. She sounded pleased.

"I was proud of the girls that were on my team with me for their work. My favorite part of this season was playing with the seniors and girls from other schools," Warthen said.

Each day after school, the team managed to get to the golf course to practice. They worked hard for two to three hours practicing with drills. Coach Beam helped them improve their record. The players gave support and helped each other out when they could. Many players are going to stick with golf.

Ashley McQueen was the most valuable player of the 2010 season.

"I plan on playing golf next year for Marian University's golf team. I will stick with golf," McQueen said.

The 2010 season was a season of improvement, challenge, and fun.

"One thing I can say is I am proud. I am proud of them," Coach Beam said.

Coasting Through the Season:

The girls team up for improvement

The varsity season started out very well, having two strong conference wins right off the bat against Greenwood and Franklin. Overall the season was what one might call a roller coaster. It was up and down all year; however, the team got along extremely well and stuck together until the final point of every match. Coach Stephaine Burnett led the team to end its season with 12 wins and 15 losses.

Coach Cory Merriman, led the JV team to finish its season with a winning record of 15-8. The girls successfully took multiple teams into a third game.

"Our game against Bloomington South stood out the most to me. We barely lost, but we fought hard and never gave up," junior Mandy Carroll said.

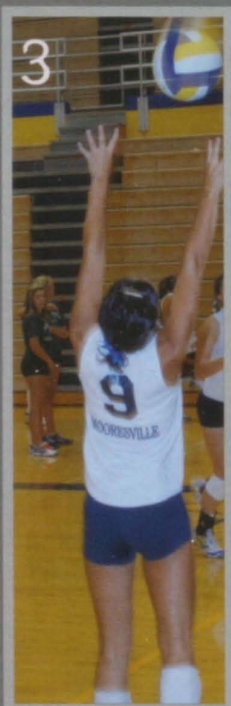

Many players dedicated their off season to Circle City Volleyball to prepare for future seasons. "It was a season of learning and development," freshman Maddy Cooper said.

The freshman team started its season off with two wins and five losses. The girls made personal goals and strove at practice to reach those goals. Coach Kari Kenworthy, decided last minute to coach the freshman team, after having her first child, Quinn Kenworthy.

"Beating Avon for the first time was the highlight of our season," freshman Brittany Penn said.

The freshman pulled together and ended their season with 7 repeated wins, ending with a record of 8-6.

BY ERIN WITTELL

1. The senior girls gathered together to celebrate their accomplishments. "I will miss yelling 'boo' at our coaches," senior Erica Antie said.

2. "My personal goal was to have a strong, hard, and consistent serve," freshman Maddy Cooper said. Cooper had three consecutive aces in the Luthern game.

3. "I was setting up my outside hitter, junior Chenea Lambton. I knew I had to get the ball high, and close to the net for her," sophomore Cheyenne Sizemore said. That night, the JV team beat Monrovia in two games, Sizemore had 12 set assists, and Lambton had four kills.

4. Freshman Mikayla Rusie led the team with three solo blocks during the Lebanon game. "I was so happy, because I blocked the game point, which took us into the third game, and we won," Rusie said.

5. "I got my left, right, left in and killed it," sophomore Tori Gilbert said. As an outside and right side hitter she was determined to get her timing down perfect.

6. During pre-season the team attended a three day camp at Depau University. "We learned a lot of 'team building' activities, which we were able to use during our season," sophomore Tori Gilbert said.

7. "I will miss spending time and laughing with the girls," senior LeeDa Allen said. LeeDa was escorted on senior night by her grandmother, Mary Allen.

8. The four seniors, Ashtyn Fisher, Erin Wittell, Jama Sharp, and Erica Antie conclude their final season after playing together for six years. "We've grown up and played sports together since elementary, so it was sad to play our last game together," senior Ashtyn Fisher said.

9. "My favorite part of volleyball was having fun as a team, regardless of whether we won or lost," sophomore Bethany Neese said. Before every match the JV team gathered and did a cheer to pump up for the game.

10. "There was always someone making us laugh," freshman Kelly Kubischta said. After the Bloomington North game, the freshman team bonded during the annual volleyball family picnic.

11. Coach Burnett encourages senior Erin Wittell to motivate the team. "The girls chose to host a Breast Cancer Awareness game in honor of the survivors and also, those who lost the battle in the fight against Breast Cancer," Varsity Coach, Stephanie Burnett said.

12. The varsity girls were the Mooresville Invitational Champions. The team ended the day with an undefeated record of 4-0. "They played together as a team and I was so proud," manager Julia Kleinert said.

13. Sophomore Taylor Chitwood assisted senior Jama Sharp to set their middle hitter, sophomore Audrey Baysinger. Sharp had 24 digs, Chitwood had nine set assists, and Baysinger had four kills during the Bloomington North game.

Girls Strive For Spirit

It is right before the Homecoming game and the JV squad is warming up with the varsity squad. All the cheerleaders were so excited to be cheering together, especially the JV, because they usually did not cheer varsity games. When all the cheerleaders cheered together, it was more entertaining; they got to do more difficult stunts and show the crowd how they came together as a team. Before those types of games there is usually a pep rally.

"The pep rallies really get us pumped up for the big game. Getting the crowd excited gets us excited," Junior Paige Ellenberger said.

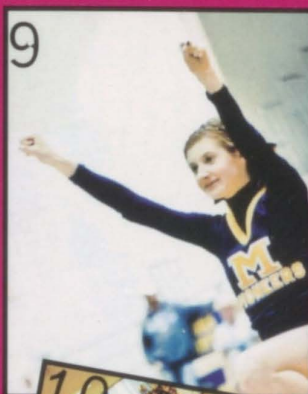

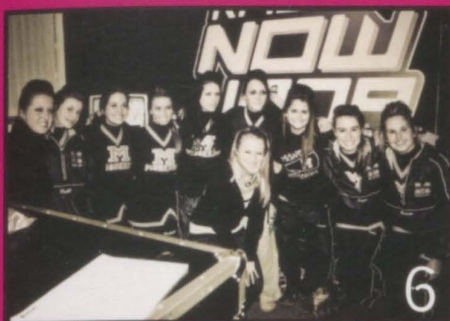

Cheerleading was like any other sport, because the cheerleaders still wanted to win, even though they were not in control of the outcomes of the games.

"I enjoy being with my friends and winning our games, it gives us a sense of satisfaction just like any player," sophomore Jordan Allen said.

BY HALEY ALWARD

1. The team always seemed to get the crowd pumped when they performed for them. "I enjoyed making new friends with the underclassmen," junior Sammi Jo Acres said. 2. The JV squad always cheered their best for the crowd at the games. "Cheering for the JV squad was really fun. I remember that game being very exciting," sophomore Paige Martin said. 3. Using signs and builds were a big part of football season to show spirit. "Doing builds for time outs and quarter changes were my favorite parts of cheerleading," Junior Lexi Smith said. 4. Senior night was always one of the most exciting and sad nights of the season. "Senior night is a great way to make everyone feel like they are appreciated, it was a great end to the season," senior Karlie Stanton said. 5. At Mooresville, it was a tradition to do a push-up for every point the team scored. "The push-ups were tough to do when the team scored a lot but we always did them all and the crowd liked it and counted along with us," senior Abby Howden said. 6. For the cheerleaders, being in the actual studio of Radio Now was an awesome opportunity. "It was a cool experience meeting Mikey V and having the chance to be on the radio," sophomore Alyssa Ekenseir said. 7. The cheerleaders stand on the court before the basketball game and await the National Anthem. "We have a certain way we line up for the National Anthem at every game and I like that we do it our own way," sophomore Brooke Burns said. 8. The Mooresville cheerleaders doing a toe-touch for halftime entertainment. "The excitement of the football game is what keeps me cheering hard for our boys," junior Tori Wilson said. 9. At a home varsity game Freshman Rachel Hawkins flies in a liberty. "It was a lot of fun being a part of the Varsity squad," Hawkins said. 10. Sophomore Jasmine McQueen said, "It was a good game and fun to cheer at." The Varsity Squad cheers the boys on during the game. 11. Varsity Squad captain Lauren Rink cheers loudly for the crowd in this picture. "I loved cheering with all my friends for basketball and it was a good way to end my senior year," senior Lauren Rink said. 12. At the Mooresville vs. McAlister game the theme was the hot new reality show 'Jersey Shore'. "This game was the most exciting game because the cheerleaders got to dress up with the student section as Jersey Shore," junior Brittney Franklin said.

To be a Varsity cheerleader was a great and exciting experience. The 2010-2011 football and basketball teams were what made it fun for the cheerleaders. Most of the games were intense games for football and basketball. Almost every game they played in basketball season was a 3 or 4 point game win or loss. Usually it is not the other cheerleaders on the squad that gets the squad ready to cheer, but the boys.

"When it is obvious that the boys are pumped and ready to win, that is what gets me motivated too," senior Lauren Rink said.

The cheerleaders had the opportunity to go to Radio Now downtown and be on the radio and do a cheer to possibly have them crash prom. The cheerleaders said that it was an awesome time to be in the studio and listen to the radio and the people calling in.

"My most enjoyable part about the season was getting to be on Radio Now," sophomore Alyssa Ekensear said.

There are several assets that went into being a cheerleader; you had to have motivation, spirit, and physical and mental skills to get the crowds pumped and to help the boys win.

"The varsity squads this year had a lot of talent and were very motivating towards the crowd and the boys."

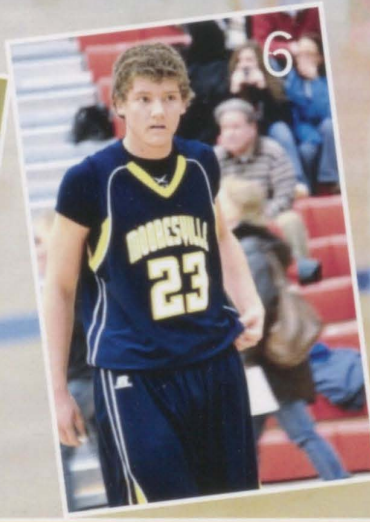

Coach Savannah Tielking said.

Pumpin' Up The Crowd

Boys Basketball

1. Senior K.J. Weaver receives a pass from Junior James Fields at the top of the key. "I was looking over the court to find my open players," Weaver said. 2. "I remember when I looked up at the scoreboard, there were three seconds on the clock until half time, and we were down by four points," junior Justin Kenney said. Kenney shot a 3-pointer, he hit the shot and was fouled right as the buzzer sounded. Kenney also led the team in scoring with 22 points. 3. Freshman Jacob Johnson caught a pass on the wing and with no hesitation drove passed his defender for the easy layup. 4. Freshman Jonathan Hurt just made a key play in the game and teammates were congratulating him as he walked off the court. 5. "I had three guys around me, but I went up strong and finished the basket," senior Max Bisesi said. He led the team with 13 rebounds. 6. Senior Devin Harris walked down the court after a hard earned basket against Plainfield. "It was a rough game; they wouldn't give up and neither would we until we came out on top," Harris said. 7. Coach Bobby Carter drew up a play for his team during a timeout. "The team came out on top in this game and went on to finish their season above .500," Carter said. 8. Student section at the Plainfield game. Senior Allan Heiden stands out as the game was a close game and came down to the the last shot in double overtime; they couldn't have done it without their fans.

"Sometimes the coaches tell me to be selfish, but my game won't let me be selfish." -LeBron James

"I worked to develop my basketball skills by being humble and concentrating on the game," freshman Reggie Stubbs said.

The three teams learned to stay focused on basketball, leaving drama or other concerns off the court. The team members quickly became a family, and shared their love for the game.

"My favorite part of the season was going to practice and having fun with the team," freshman Jonathan Hurt said. "We came together every day and brought out the best in each other."

The varsity team faced multiple teams knowing they had to give their best effort. They were known as the 'underdog team' which motivated them to work harder.

"During the Plainfield game we only had one starter to finish the game, but we were determined to take their 'red pride,'" senior KJ Weaver said.

At the varsity games, senior Devin Harris would throw his hands in front of the student section and throw baby powder, just like famous basketball player, LeBron James, Harris' favorite athlete.

The support from teammates, family, and friends helped bring the team to a successful ending.

"It was a pretty good feeling to finish the season above. We played very competitive but lost a few close games," Varsity Coach Bob Carter said.

The boys felt as if they changed many people's views on Mooresville basketball. Proving outsiders wrong brought more of an audience to the court to praise the team at their accomplishments.

"To have another successful season in the future, we must stay confident," junior Justin Kenney said.

Lady Pioneers

Living on a prayer

As the announcer addresses the team, fans jump up and down as their very own Lady Pioneers flood the court. High expectations rise for that team as they prepare for their challenge against their opponent.

"In the locker room we always blast the music, which causes mass dancing. Sometimes we slow motion dance and other times it just crazy dancing. After the mass dancing Don Perry comes in and talks to us, and then we pray," senior Mikinzie O'Neal said.

The girls' basketball team had two successful seasons in a row, and with losing so many seniors from the 2010 season the girls were scared that they would not do as well.

"I was worried that the team would not do well, but at the same time we still had Jama," sophomore Brett Green said.

The team shocked everyone as they continued to win game after game, and making it the third season in a row being sectional champions. The team then went onto regionals and made it to the final game, but lost with the score of 44-59.

"As a team this year we did very well. After overtime win by 14 against Plainfield everyone managed to bring that same intensity to regionals," junior Amber Viles said.

Both Varsity Coach, Mark Hurt, and Assistant Coach, Joe Johnson, were very pleased as to how the season ended.

"Our team did really well finishing 21-4 after replacing seven seniors from the previous year," Coach Hurt said.

"I would have to say that our strength this year would be the team unity. They were very coachable girls that listened and desired to get better," Coach Johnson said.

The season ended well for the varsity team, and the hopes of continuing to be successful will linger in the halls of Mooresville High School.

Wrestling

Taking them down one at a time

Adrenaline rushed, hearts pumped, and nerves began racing for each wrestler who stepped out onto the mat. The Wrestling team had a lot to live up to as they tend to do well year after year.

The Pioneer Wrestling team once again proved to be strong having a great 11-3 season last year. As well as the season going great they had two 5th place and two second place finishes in tournaments and even finished third in Mid-State.

"We had a good season, we had our ups and downs but for the most part we did really well," senior captain Joey Juliano said.

Juliano, a four-year Varsity wrestler, finished his career strong by advancing to semi-state along with sophomore Kaden Newcomb.

"I think one thing that we achieved was more team support," Coach Zach Errett said.

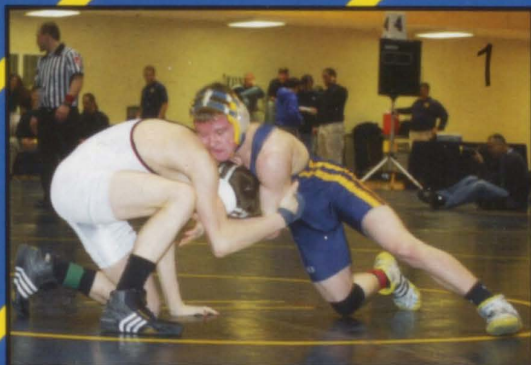

The team was always looking for new ways to better themselves and they wanted to do the little things to get that accomplished. Although it may not have seemed to be a good season for the team, it showed to be very successful.

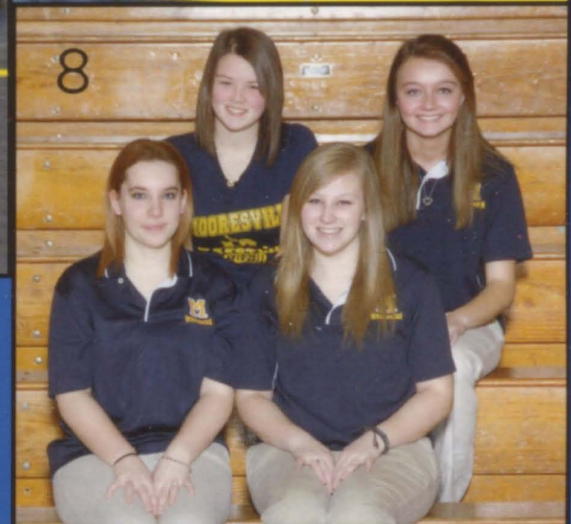

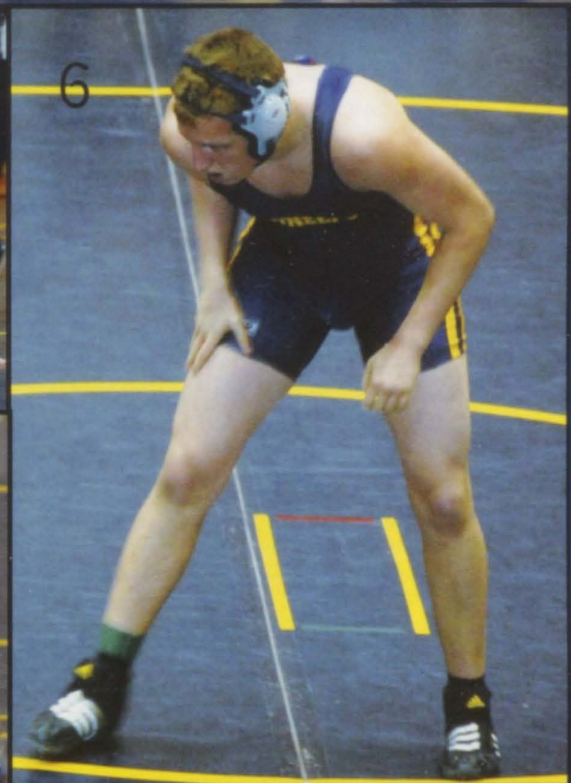

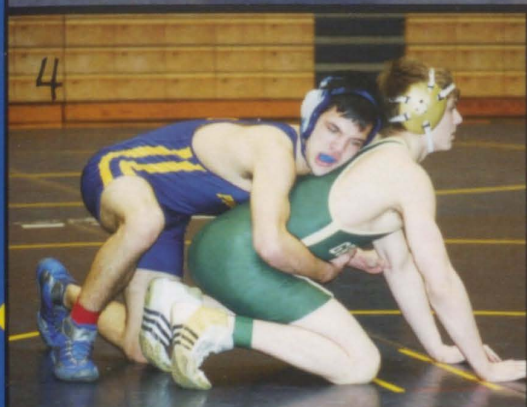

"We have a young team and we're going to make a run next year," sophomore Kaden Newcomb said.

Having a young team has its ups and downs, there is inexperience but it grows into countless experience as the individuals progress through the years. The Pioneer Wrestling team proves to show force in what they do year after year.

2010-2011 Swimming

Out with the nice weather, and in with the bitter cold of winter. Snowstorm after snowstorm brings on bundles of clothes. The swim team, however, wouldn't even think twice about jumping in to the cold splashes of water.

Coming off of a season with the largest team in school history, the team had many goals on mind. They wanted to improve on every time possible meet after meet. The members all came together with one main collective goal as well, to win sectionals.

"This season the main goal was to keep going and never give up. We really wanted to drop time at the sectional meet," freshman Cody Rusher said. "We wanted to go 110 percent and always work to perfect our mistakes."

The team may not have won every last meet they competed in, but they all had a blast as the season progressed. The hard work and dedication paid off in the end, as new records became set and more fun came along with it.

A total of six new records got broken during the season. On the girls' side, the 200 free relay was broken by Sarah Bonnewell, Andrea Cornelison, Callan Swaim, and Katlyn Worland. The team of Sarah Bonnewell, Andrea Cornelison, Kylee Rhodes, and Katlyn Worland broke the 400 free relay as well.

For the boys swim team, a total of four new records were set. The 200 free, 500 free, and the 200 individual medley were all broken by junior Aaron Wetzel. The 400 relay was also broken for the boys by Nick Ditch, Keegan Seyerle, Jacob Vance, and Aaron Wetzel.

"Swimming is a great sport and our coaches, Coach Davis and Coach Miller, were very supportive," junior Jessica Juliano said. "We really got closer as a team."

Coach Dennis Davis had been coaching the Mooresville Varsity swim team for 30 years.

"I still enjoy training individuals to a higher level of performance," Coach Davis said.

Rain Rain Go Away Come On Back Another Day.

Freshman, JV, and varsity had had plenty of practice and are ready to play. As the year came to an end the baseball teams had to reschedule their games. All of the unexpected rain caused cancellations.

"It is hard to get a rhythm when your season is disrupted so much. Baseball is played almost everyday. At one point we had 10 days off in a row. It has been a very strange season with the crazy weather," Coach Wes Neese said.

Hit, run, and score! When the team took the field after the long break they were prepared to dominate. As all the teams won some and lost some as a team.

"The older guys helped out a lot this season, helping us and showing what we could do better," freshman Brandon Sellers said.

"It makes me really step up my game knowing that my games being a pioneer are slowly winding down," senior Conor Brown said.

The boys showed what they had learned on the field by scoring runs and playing good defense with the chances they had to play.

"We all on JV knew that we would eventually have a chance to show the other teams what he had been practicing and when we thought about going and representing not only us as individuals but as Mooresville it pumped us up even more," sophomore Bram Wood said.

The season went by fast and freshman, JV, and varsity all played some good games and the seniors came out of the season with some good memories. Hopefully the boys will have a better season in years to come and won't have to cancel games because, of the weather.

Girls Softball

Sliding into Home

With the crack of the bat, girls run down the baseline hoping to get on the bag. The softball teams had to step it up in order to beat the weather.

"This season has been very disappointing in terms of weather. We have lost out on quite a few games and have struggled at times to remain consistent because of the weather. We had to move home games to away games in order to play, because of the rain and flooding at the fields," Varsity Coach Traci Ball said.

The softball teams were not alone in having to cancel games due to the amount of rain we had. Mainly all of the spring sports teams had to deal with cancellations. Pushing the weather aside both JV and Varsity ended up doing pretty well with the games they actually did play.

"Our season has gone pretty good so far, we have had some ups and downs, but we are a good team and I think we went pretty far", junior Courtney Branham said.

Indeed they did shake off the losses and strive to get better as the season progressed.

"Mooresville softball really struggled in the past years, so to come out and do so well is a huge accomplishment," Varsity Team Captain Mariah Wyatt said.

Hopefully in years to come both teams will continue to get better and that in seasons to come that the weather collaborates with them as well.

Boys & Girls Track

Striving for Success

Pioneer track teams were determined and stacked with a new coaching staff as they sped past the competition. The teams bonded through another new addition to the program, the First Annual Track and Field Clinic, on May 14. The clinic allowed high school athletes to train youth ages 9-14.

"Across the board, the teams this year were young. Outside of four members the rest of the boys' team was filled with freshmen and sophomores," varsity boys track coach and math teacher Clint Swalls said.

The girls' track team used this unity to its advantage in the IHSAA sectional tournament in Bloomington by sending multiple athletes to regionals. Sophomore Mandy Fisher finished fourth in the 110 meter hurdles with a 17.02 second time. The 4x100 relay team of Mandy Fisher, sophomore Emily Fines, senior Jama Sharp, and senior Ashtyn Fisher finished third with a time of 53.34 seconds.

"Getting on the top ten board for pole vaulting and winning 4x1 at Morgan County were my goals for 'my kittens' and I this season," Ashtyn said. "It feels good to know that all of our conditioning and hard work on technique paid off."

Also working hard this season was the boys' track team who sent the only Mooresville fielder to Regionals, junior Jordan Bruce. Three runners advanced to regionals as well including: sophomore Jordan Ooley in the 800, sophomore Michael Passmore in the 200 and 400, and senior Aric Bigham in the 100. Ooley is now on the top ten list in MHS history because of his 2011 run.

"We improved a lot from last year, and we will keep improving next year, so I look forward to it," Passmore said.

Aric showed early that he would be an essential piece to the MHS Track program by setting the record for the 100 in middle school. As a freshman, he finished fifth 100 at Regionals. His sophomore year he qualified for the regional in the 100, and ran the anchor leg for our current school record holding 4x100 meter relay. That group set that record at the state meet. Last season, Aric qualified for the state indoor meet at Purdue, he was the sectional and regional champion in the 100, and the anchor leg of the sectional champion 4x100 relay. Finally, as a senior, Aric made it to stat in the 400 meter dash.

"Aric means a lot to our team and me as a coach. I came in four years ago, so he is the first runner I've had the privilege of coaching during his entire high school career. He works incredibly hard in the weight room, and expects to be in the front in every race. In practice, I make him start 5 to 6 meters behind everyone else in every workout to improve his acceleration. He is a great kid, and I would love to have him around another four years," Swalls said.

Fore the Win Boys Golf

The 2011 golf season challenged the golf team. Meet cancellations occurred often because of the rain. When the team played, however, they played their best golf.

"Our matches were rained out so much, but every chance we got we tried to prove ourselves," sophomore Broden Chapman said.

The team practiced for about two hours after school each day.

"Winning matches depended on how we practiced. We had to get better to win and the only way to get better is to practice," junior Kyle Means said.

The team did see a lot of improvement. Even Coach Ernie Adams agreed.

"We've improved in ability and also drastically in scoring. The better scores are a result of better players," Adams said.

Mooresville's golf team knew it was important to win, but they knew it was more important to improve and have fun.

"Overall we had a great time and we got a lot better throughout the season," senior and captain Nick Tackett said.

In 2011, the boys golf team proved worthy to their coach and to themselves.

"Putting is hard, but throughout the season I worked hard to improve it, because I knew it was important," Jenkins said. 2. Sophomore Broden Chapman tees off. Chapman had a strategy when teeing off. "I go through my whole routine, step up, and try to get the ball to the fairway," Chapman said. 3. Senior Nick Tackett drives the ball. "I've been hitting the ball a lot better. I've only hit a one person and a few cars this season which is an improvement from last year," Tackett said. 4. Sophomore Kyle Lloyd practices teeing off. Lloyd worked hard during his golf season especially on teeing off. "I had to tee off right or the rest of my game could have been bad," Lloyd said.

Serving Up A Good Season

Girls Tennis

The 2011 season differed from other tennis seasons. Talent filled the team causing the varsity line-up to change often. Sometimes many underclassmen would play varsity, while other times only upperclassmen played varsity.

Many girls came a long way from the beginning of the season. The team made many improvements.

"It is important to do your best in practice because that will determine how you would play during a match," Coach Mike Teders said.

The tennis team practiced approximately two and a half hours after school each day. If they had a match they were at the courts until eight or nine o'clock some nights. Tennis took dedication from each player.

"Tennis took dedication, but it also took time management skills. I not only had school to balance, but also show choir practices and performances along with tennis. We had a great group of girls academically and they were very athletic as well," senior captain Rachel Hastings said.

During practice, the girls made sure to be as hard working as possible. Whether they were running, doing drills, working on footwork, or serving at practice they did their best, because the girls knew it would affect their matches.

At matches, the team worked together to win, but individually as well. Each girl's match determined whether or not the team won, so they knew they had to do their best.

"I always did my best in matches. I wanted to make my coach and my team proud. It was fun to win and that was another motivation for doing my best," senior Sarah Angermeier said.

Overall in the 2011 season, the girls improved as a team and played well together.

SENIOR ATHLETE 20

Motivate:

Kick it into gear

New classes, different teachers, new rules, it was all about change at Mooresville High School, and students really needed to motivate themselves to make sure the 2010-2011 school year started smoothly.

MHS had administration changes, class changes, and even a few teacher changes. New gym classes were offered including Pilates, team sports, and health and wellness. Mrs. Julie Hamlin took on quite a few new things as well.

Mrs. Hamlin, instead of teaching regular PE, took on the health and wellness class, PHMS health, and Spanish I. A lot of students thought health and wellness just included yoga, but the students took on a lot more than that. "We have guests that come in and teach the class for the day. A lady came in and taught us a kick boxing class," said senior Kayleigh White.

Hamlin needed to motivate her students to really get involved in the health and wellness class if they wanted it to be around next year, and motivate herself to try and take on this crazy schedule.

"My schedule is really crazy; I walk into my second period health class wanting to speak Spanish," said Hamlin. When asked how she motivated her Spanish students she said, "First year Spanish is really excited to learn, I think that keeps them motivated."

As well as added classes and crazy schedules, teachers took on different classes than they had in previous years. Mr. DiLisio added sociology to his belt this year since Mrs. Jennifer Perkins moved to the administration office.

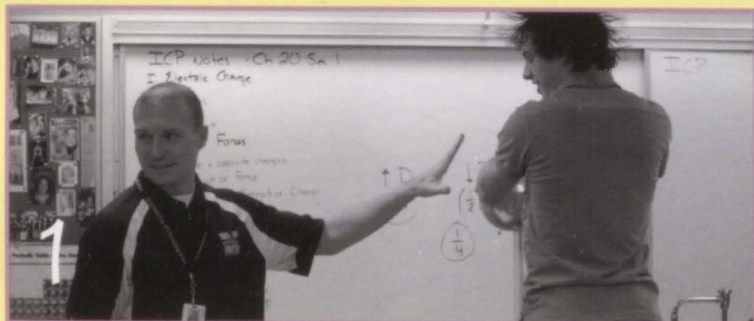

"It hasn't been any harder to add it because I taught sociology before Mrs. Perkins came and she harmlessly stole it from me. I love teaching Sociology," Mr. DiLisio said.

Students also had their opinion on the new academic changes. "I think it just puts a whole bunch of stress on everybody," junior Autumn Schmitz said.

Even though Schmitz thought it was a stressful new year, other thought otherwise.

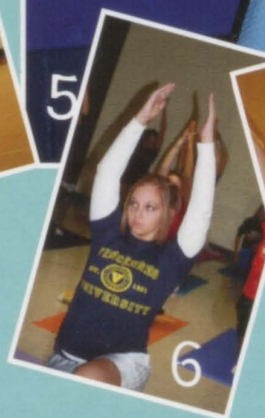

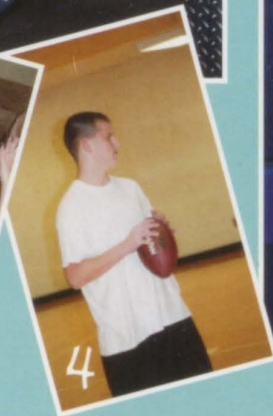

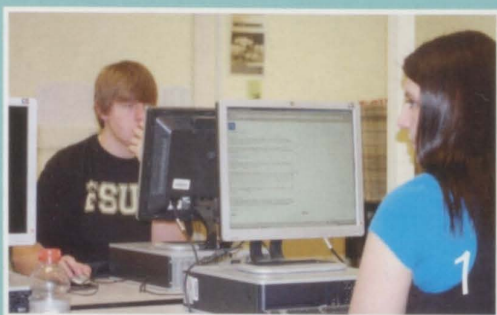

Sophomore Evan Gilles said, "New classes give you opportunity to try out new things."

The class was watching demonstration on static electricity. 2. "I love my English class with Mr. Neese," said senior Sara Taylor. "It can get very exciting and it's very interesting." 3. Junior Jacob Copp made a collage out of magazine cut outs in AP art. "I was making a Katy Perry collage," Copp said. 4. Senior Rachel Ball participated in the newly offered team sports class. "We have the choice to either walk two laps and then run two laps, or play basketball or football," Ball said. 5. Senior Stephanie Myrick focuses on her chapter review in econ. 6. Playing around in APC. seniors Kevin Copland, Blaine Gardner, and Allan Heiden crack up at senior Denny Biggerstaff while he lifts in class. 7. Fruit salad was the meal of the day in nutrition and wellness. Mikinzie O'neal said, "I took this class to help me know how to cook in the future."

1. Senior Kayleigh White and Junior Kyle Leap look up articles for their Sports History class. "I enjoy watching sports and talking about them, as well as participating," junior Kyle Leap said.

2. Sophomore Andrew Moore did a leg workout, and used the calf raiser to strengthen his calves in Advanced Physical Conditioning. "I like APC, because they play the best music, which gets me pumped up," Moore said.

3. Junior Chelsie Allen participated in a yoga workout from a video. "I liked the video workouts the best, because the people are so funny," Allen said.

4. Sophomore Corey Smith, was chosen to be the quarterback, during a game of football, in Team Sports. "We played a lot of sports, football is just my favorite," Smith said.

5. Junior Kyle Bryant does an intense workout in August, during his off season. "I wanted to get big and strong for wrestling season," Bryant said.

6. "Yoga made me more flexible to flip burgers in the McDonald's kitchen," senior Krista Scobee said. The yoga classes also ran to stay in shape.

7. "I was in APC first period and we ran a lot of stairs, which made me really tired," sophomore Karyssa Patrick said. The girls APC class ran, lifted weights, and did various ab workouts.

8. Junior Julia Gastino and senior Jordan Helvie take their warm up laps together. "My best memory of Team Sports was when another kid and I collided during our run. It was hilarious, because we didn't see each other," Gastino said.

9. "I liked reading the articles from VYPE's, High School Sports Magazine, during Sports History," junior Blake Gaskins said. The Sports History Class, took time to read about different sports.

10. Sophomore Toni Crabtree was worn out from doing lunges for three minutes straight. "My legs hurt so badly, the next day I could barely walk."

"I took APC to improve my endurance and strength," sophomore Mandy Carroll said.

Advanced Physical Conditioning was offered to any student who had already taken Basic P.E. that was looking to stay fit or to gain a body building experience at school. Boys APC was lead by Mr. Kevin Hutchins, and girls APC was lead by Mrs. Tiffany Thompson.

For the first time ever, students had the option as an elective class, to take Yoga, Team Sports, Lifeguarding, or Water Fitness. Students of all ages joined these classes with the mind set to have fun while working out; however many said, "Team Sports is like boot camp."

With a range of activities, they did everything from basic sports like soccer, to uncommon sports such as hand-ball.

"I choose Water Fitness as an elective, because I love swimming," junior Brenda Smalling said.

Water Fitness and Lifeguarding were two new classes taught by Swim Coach Dennis Davis. Students learned to give CPR, first-aid training, how to tread water, and other basic swimming techniques.

On the academic side of it, Sports History gave individuals the opportunity to do various activities, in the classroom, pertaining to sports.

"We read a lot of articles and participated in class discussions," senior Allison Fulton said.

Of course Health was still required to all sophomores. The class consist of book work, and conversation about health.

"We had a lot of guest speakers that told stories about their personal health problems, which made class more enjoyable," junior Collin Cooley said.

1. Sophomore Bram Woods sits in Mrs. Jill Mirabelli's Spanish 2 class while they are learning about Spanish families. "I enjoy my Spanish class because we always have fun in there," Woods said.

2. Sophomores Taolar Burris, Jordan Allen, Tam Nguyen, and Megan Small are good friends in their Spanish class and really enjoy being in the same class together.

3. Mrs. Mirabelli teaches her Spanish 2 class about Spanish culture.

4. Sophomore Alex Hicks smiles as she is asked a question in her Spanish class. "I love learning new things and Spanish is always the language I've wanted to learn," Hicks said.

5. French teacher Mr. Michael Haisten enjoys teaching his French classes everyday. "It's very rewarding to teach my students French, because I know it will really benefit them in the future," Haisten said.

6. Kais Khoury, Brad Sutton, Joey Christian, and Zach Overton sit in their French class and listen to Mr. Haisten. "French is just nifty," Sutton said.

Foreign Language

Students strive to learn new languages

It's first period. The bell rings. Students get settled in and are greeted in a different language. What did they say? Bonjour. Hola. What class is this?

Foreign Language became a very important subject in school because there have been more bilingual societies around the world, especially because it is a required class for the honors diploma. Spanish and French class respected a lot of appreciation and with Mrs. Tamara Skaggs, Mrs. Alicia Richhart, Mrs. Kori Swalls, Mrs. Kristin Robinson, and Ms. Jill Mirabelli for Spanish and Mr. Michael Haisten for French as teachers, these classes were great.

"Spanish is a really fun class, I have enjoyed all my teachers and learned so much," junior Andrew Majeski said.

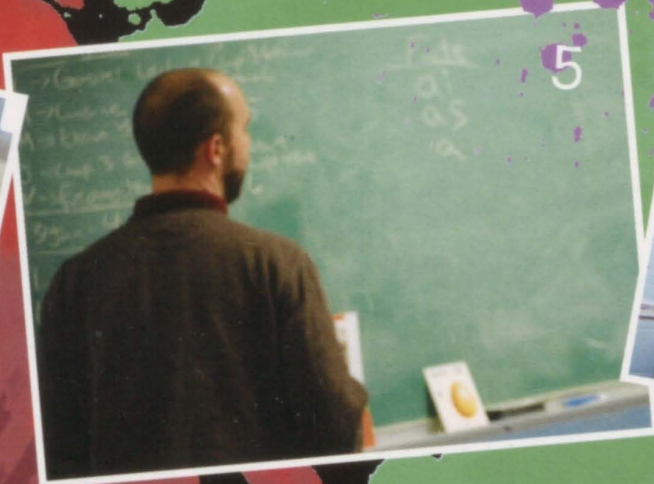

In French class, the students were educated about a new language called French. From A, B, C's to 1, 2, 3's, the students progressed throughout the year and learned the basics of French.

"Mr. Haisten is a really good teacher and I want to continue to learn more about French," sophomore Jessica Juliano said.

Students in Mrs. Kori Swall's Spanish classes ended up with a different teacher mid-year, after Mrs. Swalls delivered a baby boy. She was replaced with Mrs. Alicia Richhart, who grew up in Mooresville, and had previously taught in Mooresville on a temporary contract. Mrs. Richhart was excited to be back.

"I went to Eminence to teach and loved it, but Mooresville will always be my number one," Richhart said.

Math...

More than just numbers

Math was one of only a few classes that every student had in common. Everyone had to receive math credit in order to graduate and just recently, the End of Course Assessment Test for Algebra 1 required all students pass it in order to graduate.

All freshmen were required to take and pass the ECA test before they could get their diploma. Freshmen had more than one chance to pass the ECA but if they were unable to do so, there was a waiver they could request. Students and teachers had different opinions of the new requirement.

"You can take and pass the Algebra 1 class but fail the ECA test. ECA seemed like a good idea at the time, but I think it's a lot harder than the state thought it'd be," math teacher Mrs. Christen Owens said.

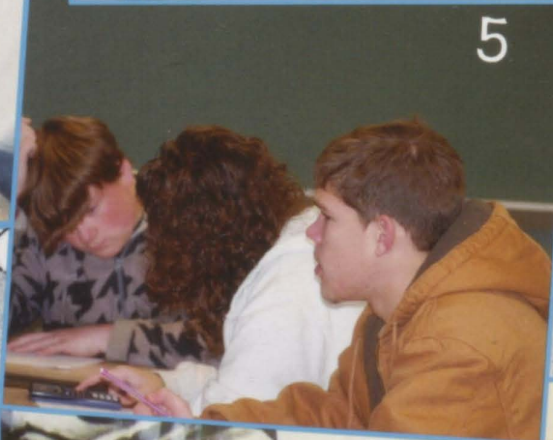

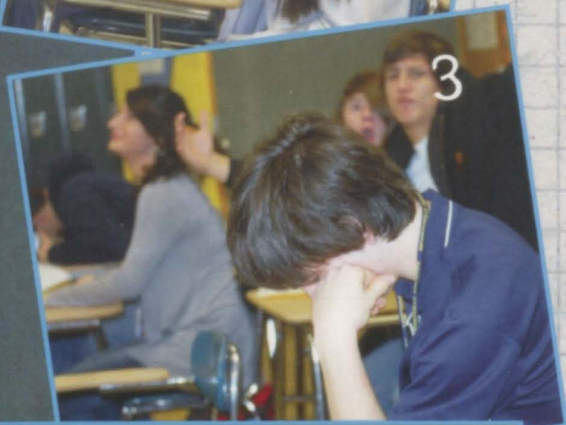

"Even though I passed ECA, it still seemed harder than what I've heard from upperclassmen about the GOE," junior Amanda Carlyle said.

Once a student had passed Algebra 1, Geometry and Algebra II, they could choose to leave their credits where they were or pursue more math courses. Some students chose to take extra math classes either to graduate with an honors diploma or simply because they like math.

"I took Pre-cal because it is a required class [for the honors diploma] and it comes easy to me," senior Nick Hunter-Shields said.

"It [Algebra Honors] can get tedious at times but it's mostly good," freshman Cameron Meadows said.

Science

Equations, experiments, and T-notes were just some of the words used by students to describe the science classes at Mooresville High School. Regardless of how they felt about them, students were required to complete at least three years of science in order to graduate.

"ICP with Mr. Erell sophomore year was my favorite, because he always kept me awake," junior Lexi Smith said.

"My favorite thing about Biology is that it is a fun and interesting class," freshman Mackensie Letourneau said.

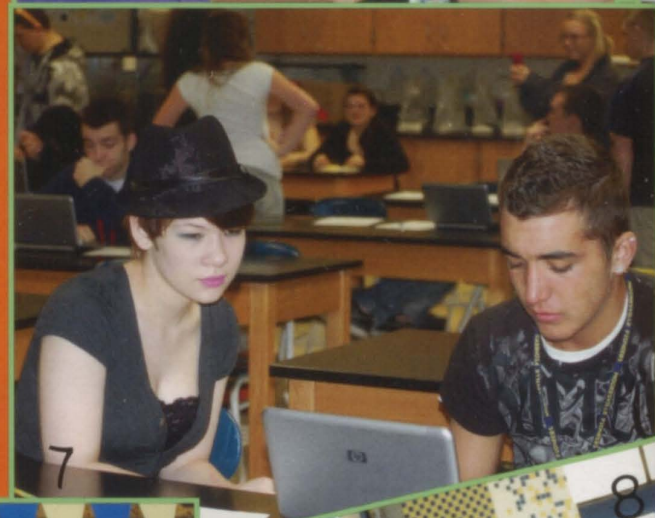

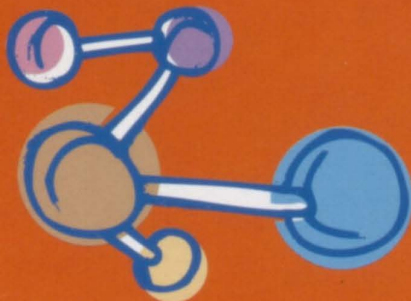

After taking the required Biology 1 class as freshmen, students had the choice between Chemistry, Physics, Earth Space Science, Integrated Chemistry and Physics, Biology 2, or Anatomy to fulfill their other science credits.

"The movies in Earth/Space Science were pretty entertaining," senior Kiersten Taylor said.

Classes such as Anatomy, Biology 2, Physics, and Chemistry were designed to be more advanced science courses. Students usually took these as additions after their other science credits had been completed.

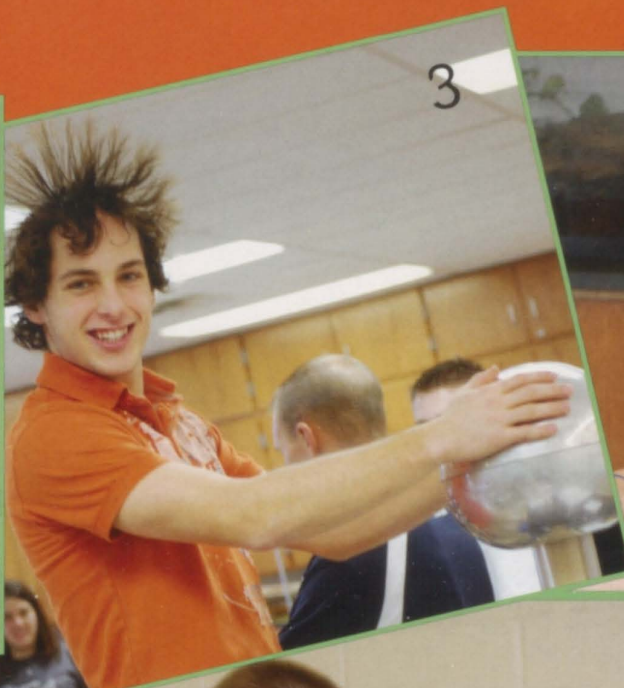

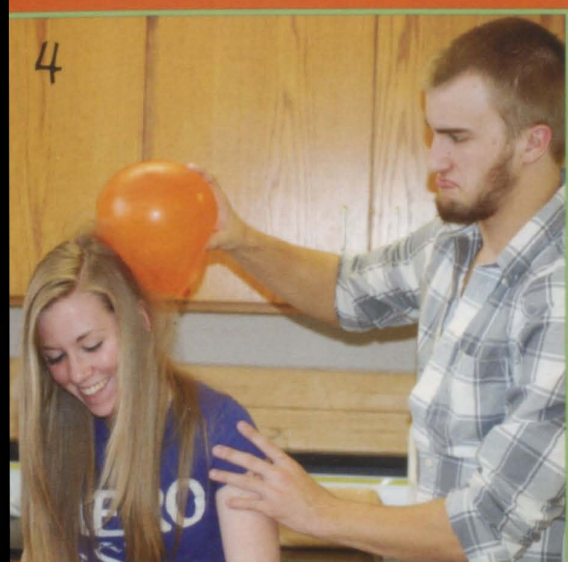

"My favorite science class was Chemistry, because the chemical labs we did were hands-on," sophomore Zach Minardo said.

Social Studies

All in the Past

Sitting in a Social Studies class at MHS was a different experience than sitting in any other class. It was like story time, but with homework and notes mixed in. With so many classes offered, it was easy to be in and enjoy a Social Studies class.

Freshmen started with World History or Geography.

Juniors typically took U.S. history or American Studies. American Studies was a class that combined history and English. Ms. Joyce Gilly and Mrs. Ann Phillips taught the class.

Seniors took Law Education, Government, and Economics.

"Ms. Gilly is an amazing teacher. She knows so much," junior Andrew Majeski said.

Many students were helped not only by the teachers, but also by the learning environment in the Social Studies class.

"I like my social studies class. I learn a lot and I enjoy the intelligent atmosphere," junior Michael Christian said.

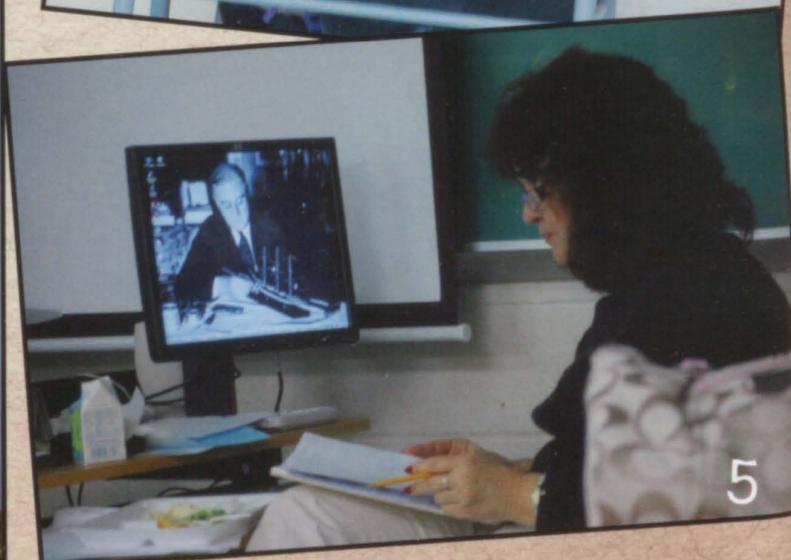

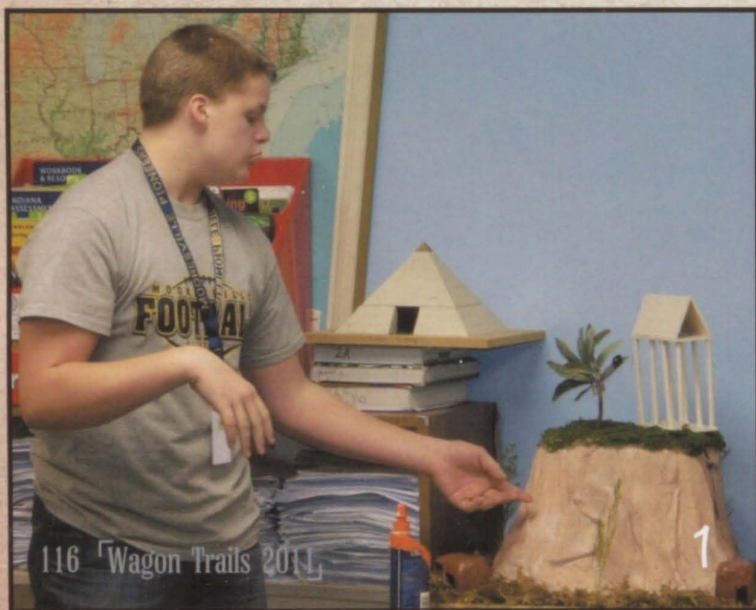

The Social Studies teachers aimed to make their class time enjoyable, fun, and interesting.

"The Social Studies department is constantly working to enhance our curriculum to provide a greater opportunity for student understanding and achievement," Mrs. Gilly said.

Social Studies was important to study. It helped students have a better understanding of the world around them.

Many students enjoyed the subjects studied in their Social Studies classes, because of the unique ways they learned.

Life Lessons

Family and Consumer Science

Family and Consumer Science was a range of subjects filled with life lessons. They ranged from cooking and learning interior design, to child development and interpersonal relations. Sophomore Hannah Loudermilk was in Mrs. Diana Dickerson's Child Development and Human Development class.

"I took this class, because I wanted to learn about things that I may need later in life," Hannah said.

The classes that Mrs. Dickerson taught were about, life, family relationships, birth, death, finances, daily living skills, and communication.

"The skills and lessons that I teach are topics that students can use everyday as they reach adulthood," Mrs. Dickerson said.

Students that take her class learn personal growth and development, awareness of diversity, and acceptance of diversity.

Mrs. Wheeler's classes were all about cooking and cleaning and doing activities around the house. Mrs. Wheeler taught three different classes, Nutrition and Wellness, Advanced Nutrition and Wellness, and Human development.

Auto

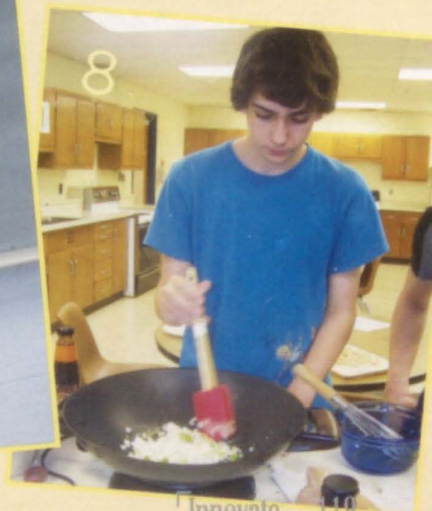

This was a class where the kids were able to learn hands on. They worked with Many engines and cars and learned how to work them, rebuild them, and care for them.

Many kids that participated in the class said that auto taught them to better understand cars and the work that should be put into them to keep them running nicely.

Marcus Wathen earned honors in the top group of the 4AAA contest. The year ended bittersweet, as 30-year veteran teacher Mr. Rich Kelley retired, ending an era for MHS.

"I have enjoyed watching students grow and become successful adults," Kelley said.

Reading and Writing

Upperclassman English classes

worked hard as the end
approached

Eleventh and twelfth grade English classes have been working to their greatest abilities to do well in these classes. Even though most of these students are ready to get the year over with, they are still hung in there and made it a fun journey on the way.

"I like English 11, because as long as you do your homework you'll pass," junior Jordan Rozzi said.

To him, English was easy because he understood English well when he was younger. Kelly Patel, Stephanie Burnett, Ashley Barnes, Jason Zollman, and Ann Philips taught English 11 classes and all seemed to really enjoy it. Juniors in regular English read "The Crucible" and AP classes read "The Jungle."

Mrs. Lisa Gobel taught Ivy Tech English to seniors. The score to get into this class was based on a student's test scores. They did a lot of writing practice for college.

"I enjoy taking Ivy Tech English, because there is no busy work and I feel like it will prepare me for college," senior Joey Swisher said.

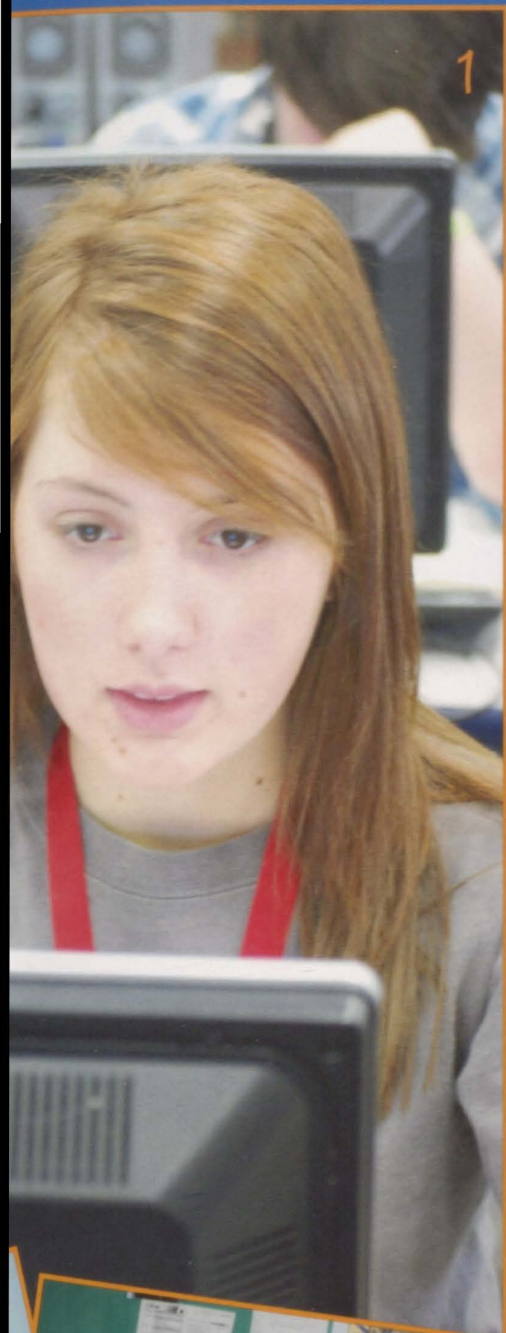

English 12 classes were taught by Mr. Zollman, Wes Neese, and Mrs. Phillips. Even though some seniors had a bad case of senioritis, they worked and worked to do well and not get distracted. Seniors read "A Mid-Summer Night's Dream" and "Macbeth." It was good preparation for college because they read a lot of Shakespeare.

I enjoy teaching senior English, because seniors have a plan to move forward in their lives after high school and the determination to graduate and achieve their goals," Mr. Wes Neese said.

English

Underclassmen

The 2010-2011 school year was especially busy for the underclass English classes as they prepared for ECA.

"My class does ECA practices and also takes practice tests," sophomore Emily Fines said.

Much like the Algebra I ECA, all sophomores were required to take and pass the English 10 ECA in order to graduate. Although it was a requirement, students had different opinions of the new test.

"I don't think ECA is a good idea, because we already take a lot of tests," sophomore Taylor Groce said.

"ECA is a good idea but it should not reflect the teachers. It's all on the students if we pass it or not," freshman Maddy Cooper said.

With the exception of ECA, the underclassmen English classes had the same experiences as the upperclassmen had. From reading poems to just having fun, the freshmen and sophomores were making memories.

"We had a kid during our poetry cafe who dressed up in a green man suit, while reading the poem he wrote about a green man," freshman Lindsay Wittell said.

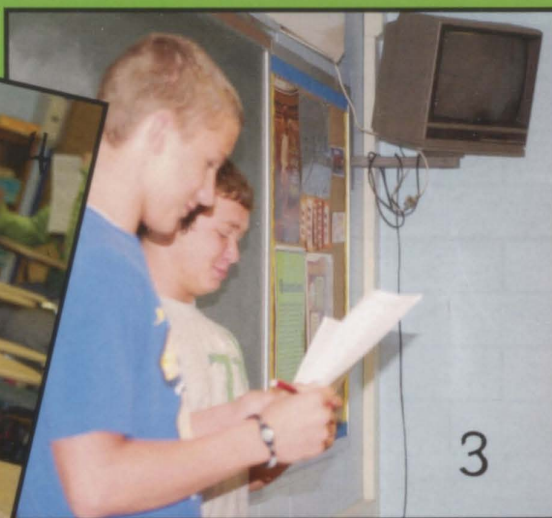

"I have Mrs. Gobel and we have so much fun. We play pranks on her and it's always a good time," freshman Emily Warfield said.

"We just finished our Wall of Success that we made to honor alumni," sophomore Sierra Bolin said.

"We just finished up ECA, so getting to be outside was a nice break," sophomore Morgan McBryar said. 2. Ms. Eickhoff's sophomores prepared for the English ECA by playing games. "I think it [ECA] is a good idea, it shows that we're actually learning," sophomore Sierra Bolin said. 3. Freshman Alan Berry and Christian Nichols stand and read to the class. "My favorite day in English was when me and Christian made up our very own handshake," Berry said. 4. Freshman Danitza Vela laughs at the story with her classmates. "The best thing about English was that we got to have Mr. Mike Savini as a teacher," Vela said. 5. Freshman Brittany Summers raises her hand to answer the question. "[My favorite thing was] writing on the board, because it was something that I did everyday until Savini took away the chalk," Summers said. 6. A group from Ms. Eickhoff's picture activity takes a minute to discuss the assignment. "English didn't used to be fun, but Ms. Eickhoff makes it interesting with stuff like this," sophomore Eleni Hobbs said. 7. Sophomore Kyla McMurray stops to take a picture of a flower to represent happiness for her assignment. "Her [Ms. Eickhoff] class is never boring. She's so outgoing," McMurray said. 8. Sophomore Sarah Carter searches for something to take a picture of for her project. "Hey, we get to go outside...that's awesome," Carter said. 9. Sophomore Brittany Duncan takes a picture of something broken in the grass to represent sadness for her project. "When we get to do things like this, [go outside] class is pretty fun," Duncan said. 10. Ms. Eickhoff's first period English class scales the wall outside the school for anything to take pictures of for their projects.

When the students of Mooresville High School were asked how they managed to express themselves in a school with more than a thousand students, one answer seemed common; the art classes. Whether they chose to take art just for fun, or if there was another purpose behind the decision, art gave students the chance to show their individuality in ways that academic classes could not.

"I chose ceramics, because I want to become an art teacher, so I wanted to fill my schedule with as many art classes as I could," junior Brandon Humble said.

A favorite among the upperclassmen, AP Art allowed students to express themselves while receiving college credit at the same time in a more complex setting.

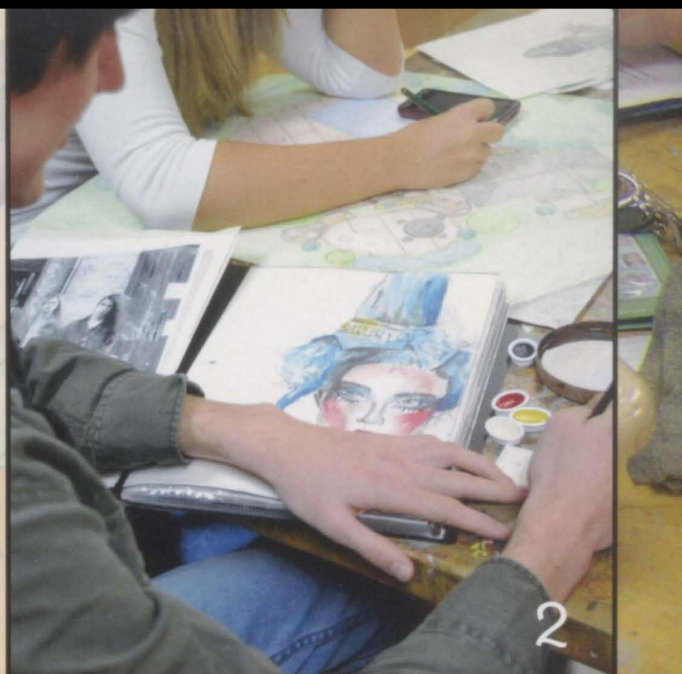

"I took AP Art, because I wanted to develop my art style," senior Meghan Hoskins said.

To expand beyond the average drawing or painting class, students were also offered such classes as jewelry and photography.

"I wanted to take 2D Art, because I wanted to take photography, but I'm just going to stick with digital photography and take yearbook instead," freshman Maddie Cooper said.

"I took jewelry because I can wear my projects after I'm done," sophomore Morgan Taylor said.

Art... Express Yourself

1. Senior Mackenzie Cobb works hard not to break the blade while cutting out her jewelry project. "I took jewelry, because I like that I get to work with my hands," Cobb said. 2. Junior Jacob Copp works on his AP Art project. 3. Junior Hallie Drake paints a picture in AP Art. 4. Senior Megan Neiderer cuts pictures from magazines to put in her collage. 5. Senior Rachel Dreher makes a sketch of her idea for drawing class. 6. Art Teacher Mr. Brinton Farrand paints a picture along with the rest of his class. 7. Junior Kyle Hollars finishes cutting out his project for jewelry. "I like that I get to make things that are unique," Hollars said.

What's your reason?

Why students choose these classes

Sophomore, Jeana Gregory, took computer applications, "to learn how to use the 2010 Microsoft Office," she said.

"I wanted to be involved in the business world after high school," sophomore Jordan Arick said.

"Computer applications will help you in every job that you could have," Kirsten Fleenor said.

Freshman Allie Taylor took business foundations because, "It seemed it would be helpful for the future," she said.

Business For The Future

Over the years students have been learning things they can use after high school by taking the business classes offered. Students taking these business classes can learn everything from how to make a resume to balancing a check book.

"I learned how to insert footnotes and write better papers that add more interesting things to the paper," freshman Jackie Farrand, who took computer applications, said.

"Some useful things I've learned are how to fill out work sheets and balance sheets. I've also learned how to open and close accounts," sophomore Zack Pygman, who was in accounting, said.

Some students chose to take these classes to help them in business careers.

"I took this class to learn how to effectively use Microsoft Word and Microsoft Excel," sophomore Jordan Arick said.

"I chose this class to get ready for computer classes in college," junior Aaron Rice said.

By the time these students finished these business classes they learned how to use new tools, and be more advanced with the computer. They could also learn simple business tricks, how to manage a business, or even what to expect from a job.

Cadet Teaching

Motivated to be one step ahead

Cadet teaching, otherwise known as career exploration, a program that allowed students who thought about becoming teachers interned with elementary school teachers. This made some people realize that teaching probably would not be the best career path for them.

"At first it was something I wanted to do but now my career plans are taking a different turn but it is still an option," senior Courtney Casteel said.

Students learned many things through being cadet teachers. They learned real world situations that they would not have learned in a normal classroom setting.

"I have learned to be a leader for the students to follow and also to be the example they see for how to conduct oneself in everyday situations," senior Saran Newton said.

"I love being able to visit students while they are working or mentoring other students. It is really great to see how responsible and mature the students can be when they are pushed to achieve," career exploration teacher Mrs. Dana Dillman said.

Internships provided a way for students to actually work and get a real life experience of what it was like to be in the career field that they wanted to be in.

"I chose the intern program so I could get a better idea of being in the work force, but this kind of work is not for me," senior Amy Mills Said.

Some students switched internships throughout the year, and some stayed at the same placement.

"The first semester, I interned at the Jackson Center of Conductive Education doing Occupational Therapy. The second semester I was at St. Francis in the Physical Therapy Unit," senior Ashtyn Fisher said.

"I believe that this program allows students a long term opportunity to see what careers would be the best fit for them. It also gives them a chance to see the specifics of a particular career that they may be interested in," Mrs. Dillman said.

Area 31

Area 31 provided a program that helped students prepare for their futures by taking classes at Ben Davis High School. That helped them with the jobs they wanted to do in college. Some classes were longer than the regular school year.

"My class continues on into the summer, I will be done in December and have my Dental Assisting license," Abigail Dunnuck said.

These students' had different classes than the classes in Mooresville High School. Students got to experience what it would be like to actually have a job in these fields.

"I have got to see how the networking is performed and by being hands on made it even better," Zach Taylor said.

E.O.C

The E.O.C. program provided a great way for students to work and finish school quickly.

"I only needed a few more credits and the E.O.C. benefited me, because I am a young mom and I work," senior Jacquelyn Robertson said. Other students have joined this program because of some problems with traditional schooling.

"I hated all the drama," senior Alisha Anderson said.

1. Senior Josh Bohall works with the students in Mrs. Nay's kindergarten class. He worked with this class only on Wednesdays. "I have really enjoyed teaching at North Madison and hopefully will be a college intern there next year. I will miss the kids very much," Bohall said.
2. Senior Mikinzle O'Neal helps a student in Mrs. Fox's second grade class. "I like being able to help the students when they ask me for help," Mikinzle said.
3. Senior Sarah Angermier reads book with some of the students in Mrs. Solodine's first grade class.
4. Senior Derek Lucas worked with the students in his cadet teaching class. "I have learned many different techniques and teaching styles by being a cadet teacher," Derek Lucas said.
5. Junior Nicole Bathory was enrolled in the Area 31 program and is taking the cosmetology program. She volunteered for someone from another school to practice their manicures. "My favorite part is that I get to meet a lot of new people and when I graduate next year I'll have a job," Nicole Bathory said.
6. The E.O.C students are very thankful for the program they are in. They worked hard to graduate high school early. "My favorite part is that I'm able to leave at 10:30 a.m. and spend time with my 11-month old daughter before I go to work," Jacquelyn Robertson said.
7. Senior Karissa West likes the E.O.C. program because of its environment. "There are not as many kids so I'm not distracted and I can do my work," Karissa West said.

Bring on a new year Bring in the renovations

Ring...ring...ring; and we're off to another new school year. The same ole' routine: take attendance, seating chart, rules, course syllabus, blah...blah...blah! Not the student publications classes, however. They were hard at work from day one.

The new school year started out differently, though. New renovations and changes began to take place, and even, unexpectedly, caused some difficulties. The broadcast staff found themselves relocated to Room 120 in the English hallway, where they shared the lab with both the Pulse newspaper and the yearbook staffs.

The old broadcast studio would eventually serve as a receptionist area for higher security for the entire building. Pulse and Yearbook the based their classes out of Room 121, and used the lab in Room 120. On the yearbook staffs' side, the renovations seemed to cause a bit of a setback.

"The new changes were difficult," yearbook editor-in-chief, Samantha Perry said. "Our computers were very slow, and (because of that) we had to learn to adjust to a brand new program."

The staff never let the computer difficulties slow them down, however. At the start of the year, the students stayed very busy preparing for Wagon Trails Revue and other side jobs. After many tech requests and extensive patience, things calmed down and the book was well under way. On the other hand, the broadcast staff saw the new renovations as a win-win situation from the start. The school was provided with higher security, and the studios stood in a more efficient location to meet the needs of their staff.

Broadcast truly was challenged day in and day out. Deadlines became a key each day, and the task of putting on a show that would inform everyone, and be appealing, isn't as easy as it may seem.

"Every minute matters," Post-production editor of broadcast Meagan Fuller said. "If we don't meet deadlines, it is much tougher to put a whole show together."

The Pulse students, once again, got straight to work. As with any production class at MHS, Pulse could be quite stressful at times.

"I like to write a lot, but I was also kind of shy," Pulse staff member Cassidy Kelly said. "The tough part about this class is making a good page to be published in every new issue we have."

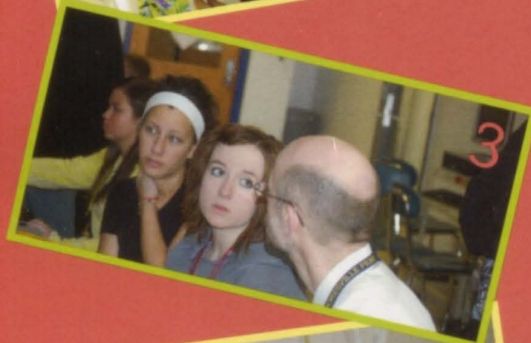

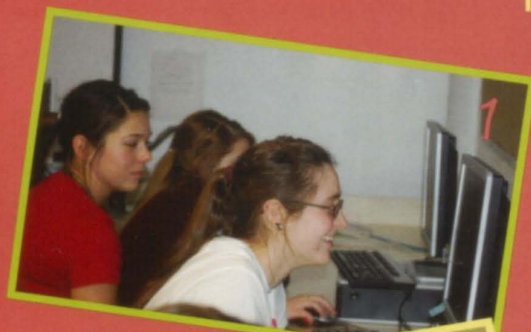

Each day the Pulse members interacted around Mooresville High School conducting interviews, taking pictures, and catching the latest news around the school. They worked very hard to get to that one favorite day, distribution day!

"It's always fun to see my Pulse students on distribution day. They can't wait to show others their work," Pulse adviser Mrs. Ada Clark said.

Mrs. Ada Clark, Pulse and Yearbook adviser, and Mr. Andy Marine, the broadcast adviser, both remain very proud of the work their students completed. The productions of these three classes got seen and judged by the entire student and faculty body. All the staff members never stood down to the challenge though!

"I enjoy advising the student publications, because my students are both creative and productive," Mrs. Clark said.

Collaborate: Through The Year

They have been collaborating together since they walked into a brand new school year. The performing arts and clubs were always scrambling around to make ends meet. Their hard work and collaboration is what made it a good year.

Once they walked through those doors, the clubs collaborated all the things they had to do for the year. The teachers were the sponsors for the clubs.

"I am currently sponsoring Q crew with my friends, Brent Olivier and Lauren Foster," teacher Mr. Jim Lindsey said.

The collaboration of the teachers is what mad these clubs a success.

"Students should join Q crew, it is fun," Mr. Lindsey said.

In spite of budget cuts that forced many teachers to sponsor clubs without pay, students had lots of options to select if they wished to join a club.

"I am in BPA, Spanish club, and Key club," senior Erika Antkowiak said.

While collaborating these clubs, the main thing was to experience different things and to meet new people.

When students heard the singing and dancing, they knew it was performing arts time. It didn't just start there though; marching band members worked in the summer, and orchestra members practiced to keep up their skills.

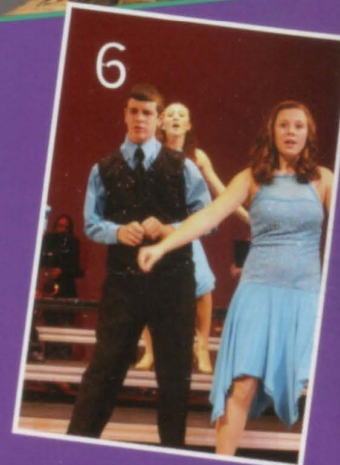

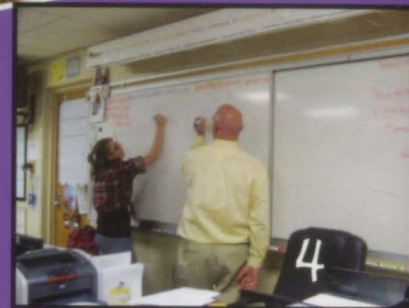

"It feels good to be a new Finesse member," sophomore Tori Hoffman said.

When the performers collaborated together they made their year how they wanted it to be.

"Each year brings about new challenges, and it usually feels like I'm starting over at the beginning of the school year," Choir Director Mr. Jason Damron said, who was starting a new year with a new musical theater course.

Collaborating the new school year always brought joy to everyone.

Spads

When the suits come on

With losing so many seniors the previous year, the new group was mainly returning members, along with a few new faces. Director Jason Damron combined Spotlighters and Madrigals and made it "Spads." "It's been harder to rehearse the show choir aspect, but our vocals are much stronger and better prepared for ISSMA State qualifications," Damron said.

Sophomore Laurel Gregory was a first year Spads member, "I love it, because everyone treats me like family, even though it's my first year!"

David Trusty, sophomore, was also a first year Spads member. Trusty's favorite memory was during the Spotlighter Invitational, "The button on my pants broke, and I didn't have a belt on, so I had to hold my pants up with one hand, and dance with the other."

Kyle Goodman, a returning Spotlighter, but first year Madrigals member, had an amazing final year in show choir, but will miss his show choir 'family.' I will miss being able to perform and being with my friends," Goodman said.

All Spads members would agree that they were a family, seniors would be missed, and returning members couldn't wait for years to come.

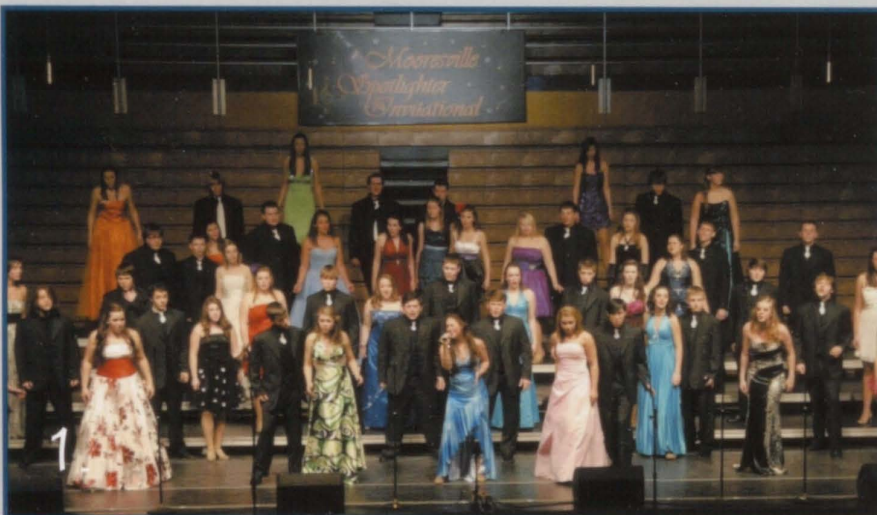

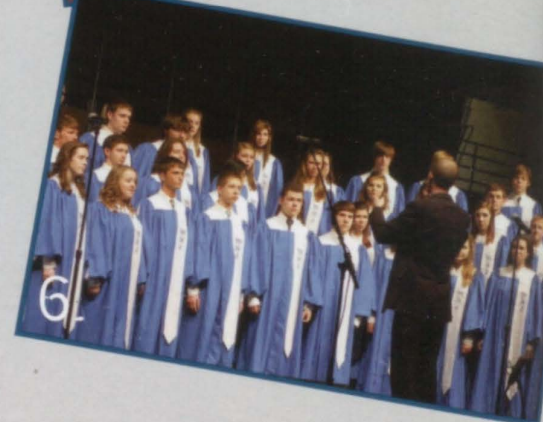

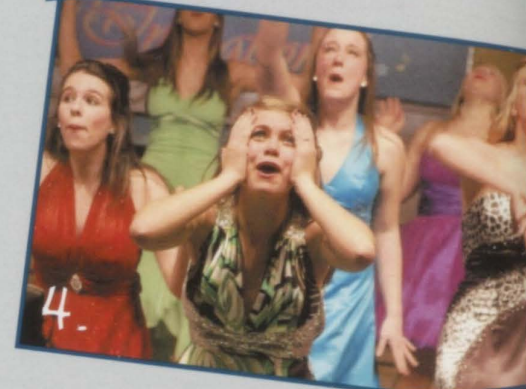

Aside from the students that were in both Spotlighters and Madrigals, some were just in the Madrigals part of the group. Senior Sarah Newton said, "Mads has been really enjoyable this year, especially since we were able to have the dinner at the state museum."

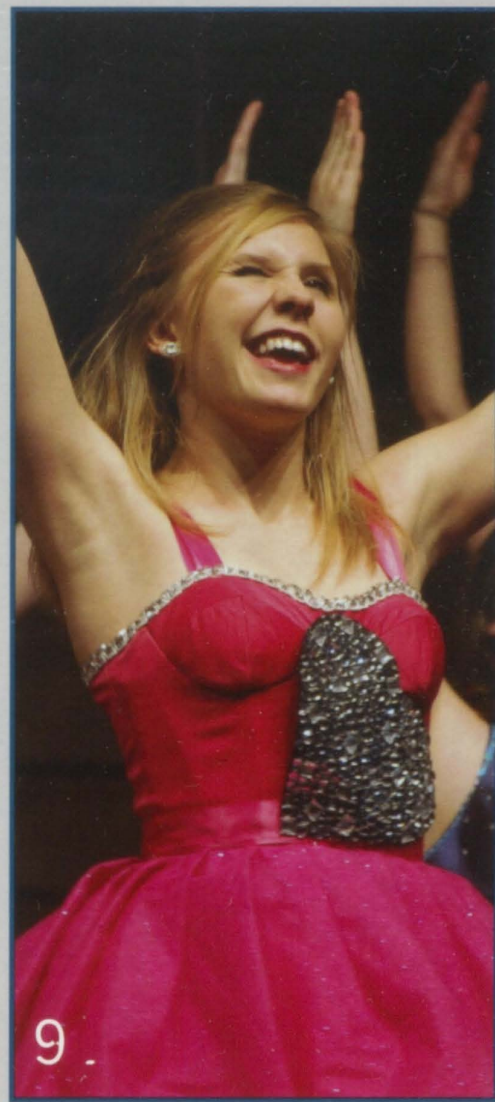

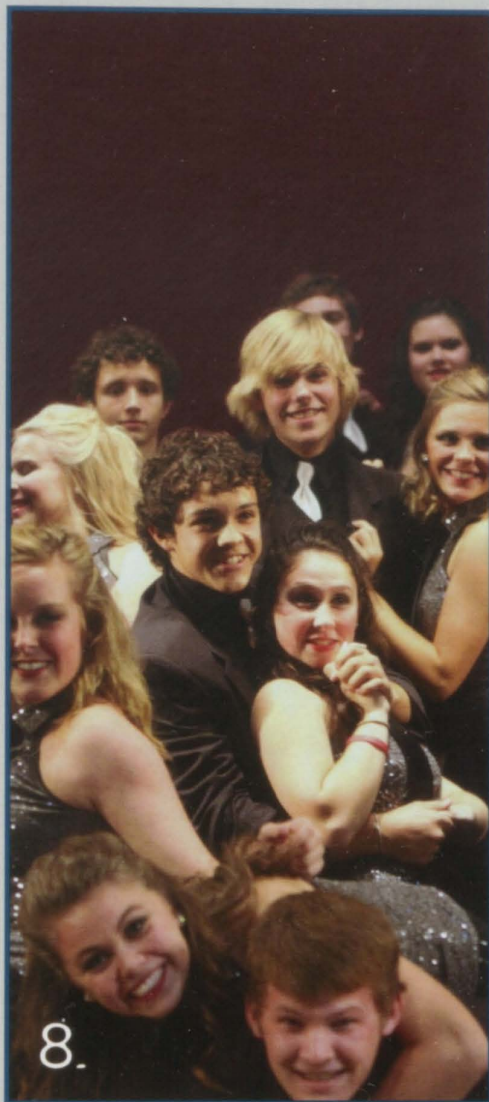

It was a great year for Madrigals. They won grand champion for the concert choir division at their Center Grove competition in February. "It felt great to be grand champions, because it showed how hard our choir has practice to earn it," junior Dan Ratcliff said.

Madrigals was an a cappella chamber choir, songs they sang included "O Magnum Mysterium," "There is a Flower," and "Elijah Rock."

These choirs were all amazing, but they would have been what they were without their stage crew. Stage crew members did all the backstage work that it took to get them from start to finish of a show.

1) Spads performed their ballad "Were in Heaven" at Spotlighter Invitational Community night. 2) Seniors Glen Hall and Karlie Stanton danced during community night to their Spanish song. "It's my favorite song to dance to, because its Latin based, and I like to move my hips, and my hips don't lie," Hall said. 3) Mads sang their hearts out during a performance. When asked about his year in Madrigals, junior Joe Simon said. "Well we destroyed at Homestead!" 4) Senior Christa Whitehurst really got into the girls song "Seventeen." The girls were to act like they were the queen bee, and better than any girl in the world. 5) At the start of their show, the boys have their time to shine in a part of their own. Junior Josh Lambert said his favorite part of the year was being able to do football and be a part of Spotlighters. 6) Madrigals had some year, winning grand champion not once, but two times in their competition season. They preformed their award winning songs at the Spotlighter Invitational Community Night. 7) Junior Evan Downey preformed the song "suits" at Wagon Trails Revue. When asked if he ever got nervous during suits, because the song it all about Evan loving wearing his suit, he responded "Oh yeah!" 8) And they strike a pose. "I will never forget my last Spotlighter Invitational. Singing a solo while everyone is screaming is the best feeling in the world," senior Kyle Goodman said. 9) Junior Maddie Zook gave her all during her favorite song at community night. "It's my favorite song because its about acting silly and girly and we get to use our character voice which is fun."

Go Finesse

We Are The Best

Finesse had worked very hard all year. In the start of the year they choreographed all of their songs. Every Monday and Thursday they practiced, and as competitions had come to an end, the Finesse members looked forward to a new year. For the seniors it was an end to what they had been doing for much of high school.

"With all of the help from the girls in Finesse we have made this year one of the best by bonding them all as a family" Finesse mom, Lisa Spears said.

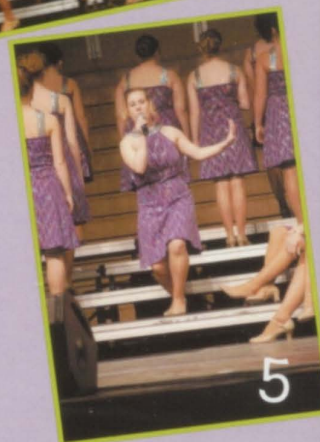

Finesse completed the year by winning fourth runner up at Center Grove and fifth runner up at Homestead Ohio Valley Competition. Blowing away the crowds and setting off fire alarms with "Holding Out For A Hero", "Overdue Goodbye", "Beyond The Sea", and "Fuego," The ladies tried their best and made improvements beyond performing, among themselves.

"My favorite part about Finesse is the family feel. We are like a big group of sisters," junior, Alex Barry said.

The waking up every morning bright and early finally came to an end. There was no more 4 a.m. preps to curl hair. Also no more make up that could be mistaken for a clown. As it ended, all the underclassmen moved on with what the seniors had taught them throughout the year.

"My favorite part about Finesse is waking up at 3 a.m. to curl my hair and go to competitions with my show choir family" senior, Allison Fulton said.

1. The group hits their ending pose to "Fuego" after blowing the crowd away.

2. Finesse girls sing their ballad. "The ballad is the time that we have to finally take a breather," senior Shelby Pierson said.

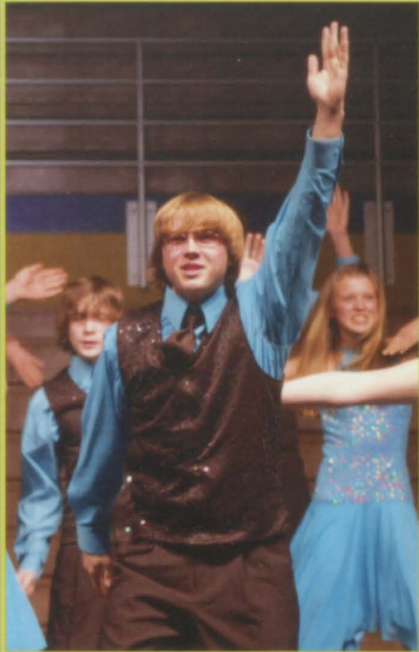

3. Finesse dances to one of their songs "Hero". "Every time we dance to this song it makes me laugh because of all the fun we had with it in practice" senior Kayla Carroll said.

4. Finesse ladies sing and dance to their ending song "Fuego".

5. Junior, Mariah Yager, sings her solo to "Hero". "I enjoy all the eyes are on me when I get to sing my solo" junior Mariah said.

Millennium

Let it Shine

1. Freshman, Jacob Delk, shows off his dancing skills in Millennium at Spotlighter Invitational.

2. Freshman, Cory Sims, dances the night away at Spotlighter Invitational. "My favorite part about Millennium is performing," Cory Sims said.

3. Freshman, Ariel Halstead, sings and dances to one of Millennium's songs. "I can't help but smile when I perform for Millennium," Ariel Halstead said.

4. Millennium guys and girls dance to their song "Reach For The Light".

Millennium sang and danced their hearts out for the whole year. They worked hard for what they wanted.

"My year in Millennium has been really fun so far. I wish it didn't have to end," freshman, Cory Sims said.

All of their hard work paid off. Millennium went to competitions and were noticed every time.

"Dancing and singing is what I love to do and when we got to perform for everyone it always made me smile," Freshman, Kayla Harpold said.

Most members from Millennium moved up to a new choir, so that meant every new year there were new members. They had to start all over again to make that year the best.

"I hope to move on to Spotlighters after Millennium" freshman, Rachel Wathen said.

"Millennium was a great experience and I wish Millennium the best of luck next year."

The Sound of Music

The Hills Are Alive!

The 2010-2011 school year was the first year Mooresville High School had a Musical Theatre Class taught by Mr. Jason Damron that produced the first musical staged since 2005.

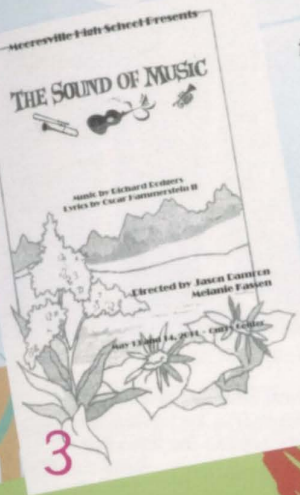

Senior Tia Majors played one of the nuns. "My favorite part of the musical were the practices after school, because it was fun to see everyone and see the musical and how it was supposed to be, instead of just some of the scenes," Majors said.

"This was our first musical, and we talked to several other directors from other schools and they suggested this as a good first start," Drama teacher Mrs. Melame Kassen said.

In order to produce an awesome musical, you have to practice all the time. Mr. Damron and the Musical Theatre students practiced in fifth period everyday during the winter and spring, then four hours a day two to three times a week in order to perfect the musical.

In the end, the musical was widely recognized as a success.

1. The Von Trapp children say farewell. "The cute little kids were so good," junior Mandy Wenz said.
2. Maria confesses her sins of loving the Von Trapp Family. But finds out that it wasn't really a sin.
3. 'The Sound of Music' was performed May 13 and 14, 2011.
4. 'The wedding scene' was my favorite part, because everyone comes together at one," junior Nikki Wampler said.
5. Mr. and Mrs. Von Trapp have a small church wedding.
6. The Von Trapp family sings thinking of freedom. Immediately after performing they ran to the Abbey to hide from the Nazis.

Sensations

We don't stop believing

Sensations was one of the two general beginner choirs that Mooresville offered, and was an all girls choir. Even though it was a beginner choir, not all members were first year. Some were in the other beginner choir.

"This is my first year in Sensations, but I was in Genesis last year," sophomore Mackensie Hohlt.

Sensations did not incorporate any choreography into their show, just small steps here and there.

Senior member Kayla Trusty said she loves Sensations and she is really going to miss the girls in it.

"I'm going to miss getting in trouble talking to Mackensie Hohlt, 'cause I'm a chatter box!" Trusty said.

There is no doubt that the girls in Sensations had a strong bond, and it shows in their performances. A close group of girls made a strong choir.

Genesis

We got it made

Genesis was the other beginning choir, this one being mixed. Genesis is mainly a mix of underclassman boys and girls. They do not have to try out for this choir, just sign up when scheduling. This choir, many said, was a way to step out of their shell, and put them on the track to being involved in school.

"I have really enjoyed being in a choir that make me talk and interact with students," sophomore Michelle Alsop said.

The Mooresville choirs were an excellent way of stepping out of one's shell, a major portion of the students were in either a regular choir, or a show choir. Some can be very very nervous when they first preform, but like Finesse or Spotlighter members, they became very comfortable after a while.

Freshman Cody Cannon knew first hand how that felt. He remembers his very first concert like it was yesterday. "I was so nervous, but then I remembered that everyone else was nervous with me, because it was their first concert too. Now when I get on stage its no big deal," Cannon said.

Needless to say the Genesis members really took away from their first or second year and they were on track to be shining choir members for years to come.

Insomniac

the boys serenade you

Insomniac was an all boys choir made up of all grades and in order to get into Insomniac Mr. Damron had to pick you.

Ben Schuck was a four year member, "I started out freshman year and I enjoyed it ever since."

Insomniacs songs were all a Cappella and were normally on a more difficult level than most other choirs.

"Our songs are usually at an advanced level of difficulty, but with Damron as our director it makes things easy," said junior Ryan Gentry.

They did not have a lot of competitions this year, and both Schuck and Gentry agreed that they would have both liked more. Gentry even suggested an "Insomniac trip!"

"I will miss Mr. Damron the most. He was like a father figure to us all and one of the greatest men I have ever met," Schuck said.

"Verbaleissance is a group of girls who love music and love to preform it. It's a lot of fun to all get together and do what we know what to do best," junior Meghan Ridenour said.

Much like the all boy a Capella choir Insomniac, Verbaleissance was an all girls a Capella choir. The girls came together a couple times a year to do small performances, such as Spotligher Invitation Community Night.

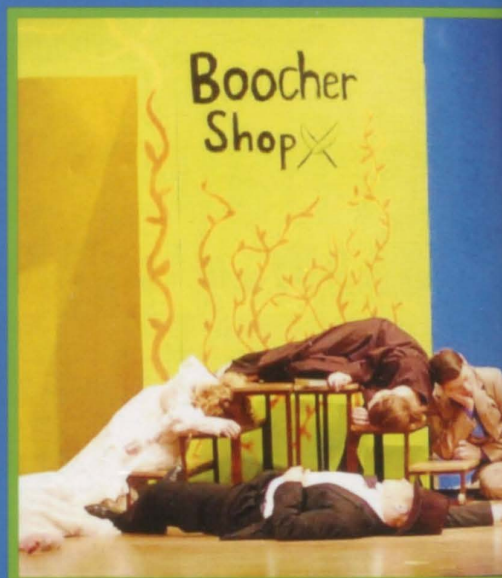

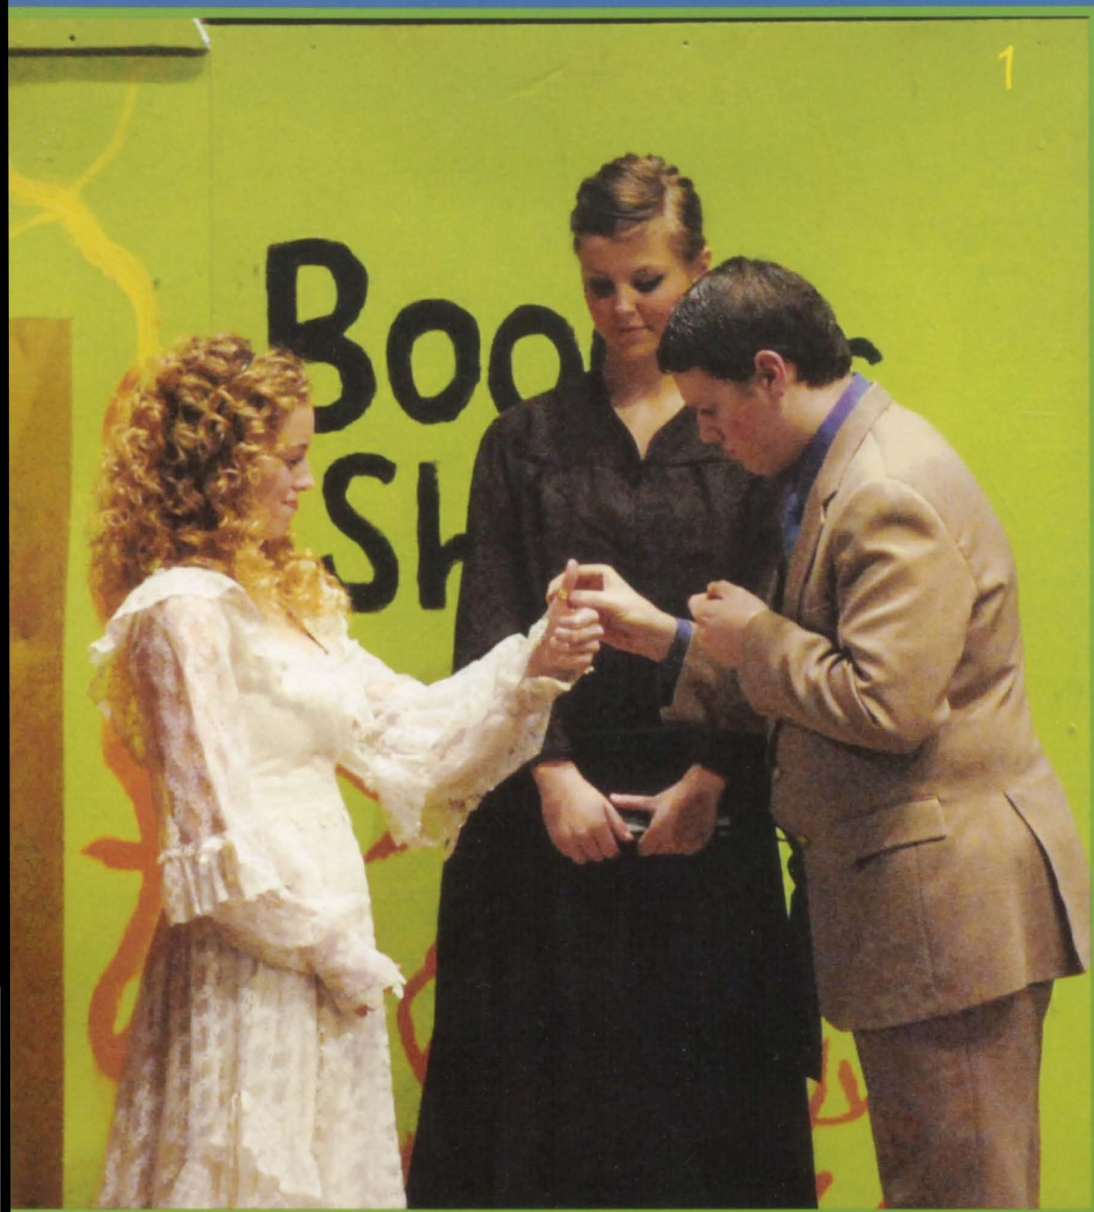

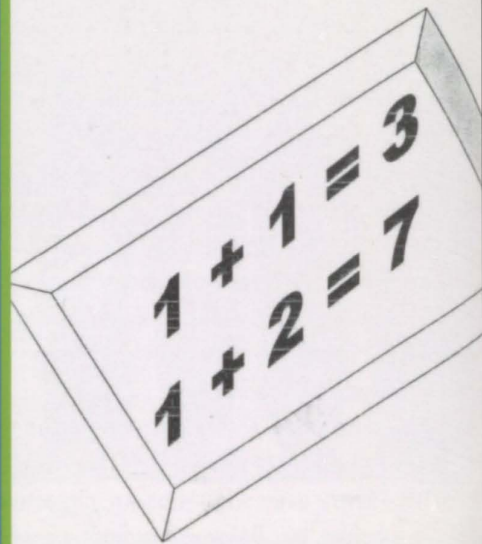

Their song list included "Jar of Hearts" the debut single by American singer-songwriter Christina Perri, "King of Anything" by Sara Bareilles, that was her second top 40 single in the United States, and "Lonely Heart," unknown artist.

The girls all agreed that they were the best of the best, "We have a lot of musical talent and it really comes out in our vocals," said senior Amy Anderson.

These girls didn't just sign up for this group, they were hand-picked by Mr. Damron. That made them the best of the best, and they were all honored to be a part of the group.

Fools ²

Fools! Ever get the feeling nothing

*makes

The 2011 Spring Play was directed by Mrs. Melanie Kassen. It was a production of "Fools" by Neil Simon.

"It is actually a play that I directed about 10 years ago. I decided it was time to go back to some of my more successful productions," Mrs. Kassen said.

Leon Tolchinsky, played by Senior Glenn Hall, moved to a small 1890 Ukrainian village to be a teacher.

"I auditioned for this role, because I wanted to challenge myself with memorizing all of my lines and trying to keep up with school at the same time," senior Hall said.

Soon after, he finds out that the town has been cursed with chronic stupidity.

In order to break the curse he must teach Sophia, played by Junior Paige Ellenberger.

"I auditioned for Sophia, because I thought it would be a really fun part to act," Ellenberger said.

If you were thinking about auditioning for the spring play Mrs. Kassen has cast roles based on acting ability, physical appearance, grades, and attendance.

"I would like to thank everyone and especially Mrs. Kassen for making my high school career very eventful and fun. She has been an amazing role model, teacher, and friend," Hall said.

Lights! Camera! Action!

Mrs. Melanie Kassen's Theatre Arts classes performed "The Littlest Elf" written by MacKinsey Taylor and "Clash of the Holidays" written by Brooke Burns.

"We practiced all period, every day, for six weeks. The first three weeks were in the class room, the last three weeks were in the auditorium so the students would know what it's like to actually be on the stage. I think starting next year I would tell every student they had to try acting and at least audition," Mrs. Kassen said.

In "The Littlest Elf" Taylor said, "I actually got the idea from a Christmas themed computer game I used to play when I was younger. I just added more parts for more people to play and created an actual story out of it."

Brittany LaFlower played Sally, the littlest elf. In the play Santa, his reindeer, and all the elves were kidnapped by the South Pole Santa. With Christmas just two weeks away Sally knew it was up to her to save them. In her journey Sally learned to believe in herself.

"The best part of the play was that there were a few lines that were hard to memorize, but I did it," LaFlower said.

Ashlynn Bain played the part of Donner during the play. "We practiced for about six weeks, it was a lot of work! The best part was when everybody chased and caught the South Pole Santa," Bain said.

In "Clash of The Holidays," on Christmas morning Alex and Adam woke up to find that Santa hadn't come. Alex and Adam found out that Santa had been kidnapped when two elves ask them to help save him. In the end Alex, Adam, and the elves saved Santa.

Michelle Majeski played the part of Alex. "The worst part was trying not to interrupt with your line while another person was finishing their line. I did that all the time, but by the end I didn't! The best part was being able to run around crazy and yell at people," Majeski said.

While some people did the acting, there had to be someone back stage managing lights, props, and everything backstage. Stage crew manager Matt Harris said, "The best part was doing pretty much anything; it was a fun job, I recommend it."

Appreciating Good Music

Symphonic Band is composed of students that have dedicated their time to not only one type of band, but multiple groups.

Symphonic Band was a class offered at Mooresville High School. Students not only have 45 minutes of working on their music, they also have many after school practices. Students worked throughout the year for different concerts. Their biggest competition was ISSMA, on April 15th at Ben Davis. The students focused on playing with good intonation, tone quality, balance and blend.

"The songs we worked on were Exaltation, Moorside March, Suite of Old American Dances, and The Hounds of Spring," junior Megan Passey said.

The main difference in Symphonic Band, was that it had more control. Students were supposed to sit with their instruments and be quiet, like professionals. There are several different instruments including winds, brass, and percussion.

"I play the trumpet in every band I am in. I choose to play the trumpet because many other people in my family played the trumpet," junior Jordan Duke said.

Overall, Symphonic band worked consistently to finish successfully. The students were bitter sweet, knowing that Band Director Mr. Jerry Weber would retire at the end of the year. Most memorable moments for Mr. Weber and the students occurred when they had performances and had to work hard and put forth effort to achieve their goals. Also, the group was a large musical family that enjoyed interacting with each other for the enjoyment they get from making music together.

"The arts is the part of all of us that puts us in touch with our feelings, our humanity. It's what makes us love, hate; be passionate, be happy, sad, laugh, or cry. Teaching music gave me the chance to have all of my past and present students enjoy and hopefully cherish their experiences in my class," Mr. Weber said.

Jazz Ensemble

Jazz Ensemble was a group of some of the bands' most elite musicians at Mooresville High School.

Jazz Ensemble was a combination of four trumpets, three trombones, two tenors, three altos and one baritone. The musicians got together to practice and played pieces that related to Jazz and Pop.

"The easiest thing to notice is that the Jazz Ensemble is smaller. Our small group allows for more individuals to stand out," Junior Clayton Kivett said.

Normally Jazz Ensemble competed in the ISSMA Jazz contest. Yet, do to conflict with the color guard contest held at Mooresville the same weekend, they did not compete. The songs that they focused on were "It Don't Mean a Thing (If It Ain't got that Swing)," "My Girl," "Spinning Wheel," "Summertime," and "Big Noise from Winnetka."

"My favorite is 'Summertime' by George Gershwin, because I have a solo. I play the Tenor Saxophone for Jazz Ensemble," junior Hannah Vaughn said.

BY RACHEL HASTINGS

1. Junior Hannah Vaughn enjoys being involved in a wide variety of bands at Mooresville High School. "I have always enjoyed Symphonic Band, because we get to play many different styles of music," Hannah said.
2. "Band is fun, because you not only learn but you get to socialize with friends," sophomore Austin Aichinger said.
3. Mr. Jerry Weber takes his final bow in front of the students in Symphonic Band the night of the band's Showcase Concert. His students will miss Mr. Weber very much next year.

Marching Band Becomes Track Band

The Marching Band had a whole new experience when they switched from marching for the Indiana State School Music Association (ISSMA) contests to marching Track Band at fairs all over the state.

"Track band is a lot like ISSMA. We still get to compete against other schools, but they were more our size, which made it easier for us," drum major Sterling Brooks said. "The fields for track band were a lot smaller and it was hard to get used to performing in a much smaller space."

Normally during Marching Band the season lasts from August to the middle of November but in track band the season lasted from July to the middle of October. The Marching Band also performed during the home football games during halftime.

"The best part of track band was that it was a lot more free spirited opposed to ISSMA which was much more intense," sophomore Paige Jeffers said.

The show performed by the Marching Band was titled Africa. The Marching Band traded in its traditional marching uniforms for safari clothes and instead they wore safari hats instead of the traditional Marching Band hats with the plumes.

Scoring in Track band had more to do with showmanship and how well the theme matched the show, compared to ISSMA where it is also about volume and band size. Out of the 49 high schools participating in track band, the Mooresville Marching Band placed seventieth after the contests were all over.

"I felt that the band did really well dealing with all the changes. Their attitudes toward all the changes was great because they all stayed focused on what they needed to do and they got the job done," Band Director Mr. Jerry Weber said.

"Being in Track Band was a different experience, because we marched at fairs all over the state instead of in ISSMA at competing high schools," Stapert said. "Track band is also a lot better because we got more of a break when the season was over."

2. Freshman Mackenzie Letourneau spins her orange flag at halftime for the Homecoming game. "I love being in guard and the bonds you form with the band and guard members. We are like one big family," Letourneau said. "The reason I joined guard was because I wanted to be a part of something at school. I love to dance, and when I found out you get to dance in guard, I tried out."

3. Junior Hannah Vaughn plays the alto saxophone during the halftime game at Homecoming. It was also Vaughn's first year as one of the drum majors alongside senior Sterling Brooks.

4. The Track Band and color guard patiently wait for the band before them to finish their performance, so they can perform their show Africa at the Indiana State Fair. It was the first year the Marching Band had performed at fairs instead of schools and it was a new experience for them all. "The fairgrounds were a fun place to perform," freshman Neal Jeffers said. "We did a great job, and got to see some great bands."

5. The Pep Band cheers up the crowd at the girls basketball game. The Pep Band played all kinds of songs including the school theme song and fun songs like "We Will Rock You" by Queen. At the alumni game, the Pep Band gained extra members as graduates returned to play in the Pep Band. "I play the trumpet, but mainly because we already owned one so my mom made me play trumpet," junior Cole Hart said.

6. Junior Daniel Ratcliff plays the drums during a pep band session at a girls basketball game. Ratcliff also played the guitar and was in his own band.

7. Pep Band members practice their songs that they will play at the game in the band room. The Pep Band always practiced before every game so they remembered their music and warmed-up their instruments for the night ahead of them.

8. Freshman Cheyenne Lowe and senior Alex Kirkendall play their instruments for the Pep Band. Lowe was also in Marching Band, where she performed as a color guard member, while Kirkendall was also in Marching Band his sophomore year.

Pep Band

Cheering up the crowd

Walking into any Mooresville basketball game, the Pep Band could always be heard up in the stands cheering on the team.

"Pep Band is the sixth man out on the court. Their enthusiasm helps us play harder, and their cheers are so creative. I love them, and the team as a whole loves the hype pep band gives when they are at our games," senior basketball player Mikinzie O'Neal said.

The Pep Band was different from the other bands offered at Mooresville, because they played all types of music that were different from the classical music in the other bands.

Pep band played songs like "We Will Rock you," "Hello Baby," "Louie Louie" and "Malaguena." When it came to each song played, the Pep Band had special choreography that the members made up themselves. The up beat tempos, and the dancing really helps keep the crowd entertained at the basketball games.

"Hello Baby is probably the bands favorite song to play," Mr. Jerry Weber said. "The kids really get into it because they get to sing. Hello Baby is so much different than the other songs, because of the vocals, but the kids enjoy playing each song."

The Pep Band always brought all their spirit to each and every game, infecting the crowd and the team members with motivation. The Pep Band was a huge part of the games giving the music their all.

"I love being in Pep Band, because we motivate the crowd, and we cheer on the team," sophomore Austin Aichinger said.

The Journey of I

I am, I can, I will

The winter guard theme for the 2011 season was entitled The Journey of I, and it revolved around a poem called "I am, I can, I will."

This theme was chosen, because the poem had been the inspiration for the guard to get through practices, and their shows for the past four years, ever since instructor Chelsea Lett was hired.

The theme especially meant a lot to the seniors of the year, because it had been with them for the last four years of their lives.

"I have had a long four years of guard, especially when dealing with my health issues, but I do not know where I would be right now without guard," senior Kirsten Taylor said. "Guard has helped me through a lot. I just remember the quotes 'I am I can I will,' and 'Fear knocked, Faith answered, no one was there,' to get me through the day."

One thing that was unique to the show was the music. In the music, the guard girls all recorded their voices and overlapped the phrases they said over top of the music.

Each phrase started with the words I am, I can or I will.

"The words I said for the show were I am Legehd, I can show you the world, and I will remember," senior Susan Perry said. "Then at the end, each of us seniors said I will spread my wings."

One of the biggest changes for the guard was the location of prelims. Usually Mooresville hosted the preliminary round for class A, open and world, but instead hosted the divisional finals for the AA class.

"I'm really proud of all we have accomplished throughout the season. All our seniors will truly be missed," Chelsea Lett said.

The guard ended up going to Decatur Central for prelims and State was held at Center Grove. Unfortunately, however, the guard did not make it past prelims.

Taylor has been in guard for four years but had missed a few seasons due to health problems. 6. Senior Carolyn Ferrill spins her flag at the beginning of the show at Decatur Central for Prelims. "Prelims was my last contest for guard. It was a sad day, but we gave it our all and we had a great season," Ferrill said. 7. Senior Katie Wells begins the show on the stage with her I am flag. "This season had a lot of meaning to all of us, especially the seniors, because the show was based around our own journey. This season turned out great and it will be hard to say goodbye," Wells said. 8. Sophomore Jessica Darlington spins her purple flag near the end of the show. "I love guard. This season meant a lot to me, because it was the seniors last year and I love them all. I will miss them in the years to come," Darlington said. 9. Senior Susan Perry stands in the front of the line, ready to toss her rifle. When she threw, Perry tossed a five on her rifle.

Orchestra

More than just notes....

It started off on a stage, the bows were rosined, the instruments had been tuned, students sat anxiously in resting position, bows straight up and eyes on the conductor. Suddenly, the stage lights flickered on, the conductor gave the signal, and the performance began.

"I'm nervous at first, but when I start to play I feel great," freshman cello player Molly Tieman said.

The orchestra had won the ISSMA Gold Rating every year since 1988, which would be 22 Gold Plaques from these events. The orchestra has also had out-of-state competitions. During the competition in Ohio, the orchestra earned first place and the Grand Champions Awards.

The orchestra received nearly twenty out-of-state awards over the years.

Mrs. Fyffe put a lot of time and dedication into perfecting the orchestra in order to perform. In order to gain these achievements it took dedication, practice, time, and energy. Students worked on their music both at home and in class.

"I mentally sing, imagine the sounds, and when the music begins, my heart soars, because I know that if each student has listened attentively, practiced well, and puts heart and soul in the music, then it is a beautiful and exhilarating emotion. I study the scores, the music, to understand it from measure one to the end. And although it is a tedious practice to work on each aspect and detail, the finished product is wonderful," Fyffe said.

"People don't know it's here and how cool we sound," senior viola player Elizabeth Hagee said.

The orchestra had to make some budget cuts. During the school year the administration decided to cut the beginning sixth grade orchestra class from local elementary schools. "This will greatly impact our orchestra program, if the school does not allow me to start students at the sixth grade level. Without new students starting each year, the orchestra will cease to be in existence," Fyffe said.

Many of the orchestra members began at a young age and recommended this program to young students entering middle school.

Students joined orchestra for many different reasons, some to make new friends, others to play an instrument, but whatever the motivation, it paid off.

It may start out on a stage with the bows rosined, the instruments tuned, and the students sitting anxiously in resting position, but it didn't end there. Orchestra wasn't just another elective to take to earn credits. Students made memories and inside jokes, and orchestra member became a family.

NHS Making a Statement

As the Class of 2011 came together to start their year as members of National Honor Society, one collective goal was on the mind of each individual. The officers knew that they wanted a statement to be made.

The entire NHS group had one definite key point on their mind all year, to leave a lasting impression on Mooresville High School and the community. Each member was required to complete 36 total service hours throughout the year, a task that almost all of the members didn't have a problem completing.

There were several activities that took place throughout the year. The group helped raise money to re-open the Boys & Girls Club, and fund-raised for Churches in Mission and several other associations. One of the groups even painted the mural on the history wall, to yet again leave a lasting impression.

Many of the members, if not all, felt honored to have been Ms. Joyce Gilly's last NHS group. She served as the adviser for 10 years, and decided she was going to step down and turn things over to Mr. Jesse Burgess.

"It has been a wonderful experience. All the classes were great, but the Class of 2011 was just an amazing group of wonderful people. I will miss them and the laughter," Ms. Gilly said.

Many of the members of NHS left the school with more than a lasting impression. Their work was really taken to heart, and not only benefited the community, but provided learning experiences as well.

"NHS has been a very fun and exciting opportunity. I would have to say that the most memorable moment has been the whole experience of being a member and officer of NHS," senior Nich Hunter-Shields said.

1 Students join together to listen to a seminar. The students had the opportunity to visit the Capitol building downtown and listen in on more leadership advice. "We listened to the senator talk, and he talked for so long we were wait for our next visit," junior Kendall Sedam said.

2 Members of BPA join together for lunch during state downtown. "We had a fund raiser, to raise money for state. All of the extra money went to our food bill," sophomore Heather Means said.

BPA^{On} to the Business World

BPA was a club that helped students prepare for the business world. Students would study and take tests, make videos, or be interviewed. During District, whoever got the best scores on their tests advanced to state.

"The main goals of BPA are to represent MHS and to learn the world of business. It's about having a good attitude and being responsible," Aerin Walters said.

The students in this club worked hard on their competitions to advance to State and Nationals. That year no one advanced to Nationals but Paige Ellenberger and Chelsea Bingham. They placed third at State for the Broadcast news production team, but only the top two teams went to Nationals.

"We made a wake up and fast break filled with different stories from school, it was really cool," Bingham said.

Most of the students in BPA agreed that their favorite part was going to State, because of the hard work they had to do to make it there. Not the entire BPA club advanced out of district, but they will work even harder on their competitions in District next year to try to advance to State.

One collective goal was on the minds of all of the Spanish Club members this year, to be exposed to Hispanic Cultures amongst Central Indiana. Several activities were put in place that provided an exciting year for the students.

Several trips were taken this year, which included festivals to Indianapolis, Spanish movie nights, and eating at Mexican Restaurants. The group also traveled to an IU soccer game this year.

"I loved having the opportunity to go to the IU soccer game. We were able to have a lot of time with our friends, and enjoy the game," senior Kylee Sims said.

The Spanish Club also had the chance to attend the Day of the Dead festival in Broad Ripple. The students had the opportunity to see folkloric dancing and eat good food.

"I liked being able to see how interested our students get in the culture when we do all these activities," adviser Ms. Kristin Robinson said.

GSA

Students Become Aware

As a new club, GSA caught attention.

GSA stood for Gay Straight Alliance. In GSA they provided a safe and educating environment free of bullying and discrimination for all students.

"I'm really passionate about the idea of everyone being free to be themselves without any worry of not being accepted or fear of being harassed. I want to have a place and create a sense of safety in the school and in all students' lives," junior member Emily Judson said.

GSA members stressed that the club was not based around sexual orientation; it was to promote fellowship between all students. GSA made people more aware of the gay community within our school.

President Michael Smith got nominated for the Power of Children Award through the Children's Museum for his work with the club.

GSA worked to keep students informed while enjoying their time together as a new fun group.

"Members of this club address some very difficult issues that face our society. They truly want to create a positive atmosphere in our school for all students to feel safe and accepted," club sponsor Sharon Eickhoff said.

"Chess is an amazing game on many fundamental levels. It is a game of cause and effect; any wrong move could cost you the game," senior member David Cox said.

Chess is a mental game that takes a lot of time and patience to play the game well. The members of the Chess Club were ready for the tough mental game when they signed up for this new club.

Chess club was a fun way to join people together who love the game and want to have a blast while playing.

"The game is all about logic. You have to use your brain to win, it is not about your athletic ability but how fast your mind can move," senior member Hanna Seyerle said.

"The game of chess could be intimidating," sponsor Nicki Manion said. She then quoted Irving Chernev by saying, "but 'Every chess master was once a beginner'."

Learning About The Earthquakes

"I had the best time at Q-Crew. I've met new people and got closer to them. I also had fun with Mr. Lindsey, he's a pretty cool teacher," sophomore member Raeven Mosier said.

The goal of Q-Crew was to teach others on earthquakes and earthquake safety. It is very important to have someone to research data and have people prepared for when an earthquake hits.

"I research more information on recent earthquakes. We also visit Paul Hadley to teach the eighth graders on earthquakes," junior member Bryce Wubben said.

Earthquake safety can potentially save lives. After the earthquake in Japan the death toll as of March 24, 2011 was determined at 2,414 people (according to msnbc news).

Q-Crew strived to protect the students for if disaster would strike they would be prepared.

"We are very under prepared and need to improve it. We are working on improving it to become a safer environment," Mr. Jim Lindsey said.

Students Giving Back

Year after year, many goals get achieved by MHS students. Each member of Student Council played a key part, once again, in bettering the school, community around them, and their very own leadership skills. Student Council adviser, Mrs. Barb Goddard, was in her eleventh year as Student Council sponsor.

"I enjoy working with the students as they work to reach many goals," Mrs. Goddard said.

Why join Student Council, however? Almost all of the Student Council members would come to the same agreement. They wanted to join to make their school a better place, have a say in decisions, and overall become better leaders.

"The main goal of Student Council is to help make Mooresville High School a better place for the students, and to help relay communication between the students and the staff. The members have the opportunity to excel in being a leader, getting their voice heard, and having an all around good time," junior class president Frank Brock said.

During this past year alone, members of the Student Council held many events. They held the annual Souper Supper at the Winter Homecoming, canned food drive for Churches in Missions, trick-or-treated for canned goods, and held three blood drives.

The Student Council also held the first annual Ping Pong Tourney, hosted by junior Amber Viles. The tournament was a great success, and helped raise over one hundred dollars. All of the proceedings went towards Riley Hospital for Children.

"I wanted a fun project that would benefit the community... Ping Pong just hit me one day. It was great!" Viles said.

Two of the members, seniors Max Goodin and Wesley Fluke, had the opportunity to attend the National Student Council Convention over the summer. Many others participated in the State Convention, and loved every bit of it!

"Anyone who doesn't know what to do, but wants to become more involved, should definitely join Student Council. You will never regret it," Fluke said.

FCA Shared Values Coming Together

Each member of FCA had at least two values in common, their love for sports and passion to learn about God. The group provided students to be able to learn more about God in a welcoming atmosphere.

Members of FCA, Fellowship of Christian Athletes, met every Monday morning at seven, with Mr. Matthew Brewer, for an opportunity to have a weekly devotional and prayer. The students had the opportunity to learn about how to apply God to every aspect of their lives, even in sports.

"It's truly amazing to be able to work with the students all sharing a common value. Enriching their knowledge of the application of a Christian lifestyle to sports is very rewarding," Mr. Brewer said.

Throughout the year, FCA became involved in different community service activities to help benefit different organizations. They also held different athletic events towards the end of the year.

"Being able to meet with other Christians, and learn more about God within the school setting is awesome," freshman Rachel Wathen said.

3. Junior Justin Stockhoff argues for the correct call at the Ping Pong tournament. He was determined he was one of the best there. "C'mon man," Stockhoff said, after his upsetting call.

Through the years, FFA has helped ready students for life goals and experiences that may be to come. Students learned how to adapt to the industrial business, as well as dealing with natural conditions were taught.

Members of the FFA club joined for a common reason. They wanted to learn more about how to farm, and take care of farm animals. The students also studied various types of plants throughout the first semester.

"I joined FFA because I like to farm, and I wanted to know more about cattle and horses," freshman Katie Littell said.

FFA faced some challenges, however. The leader of FFA at Mooresville High School since 1998, Mrs. Tonya Weiss, took a job in the business sector, and resigned from Mooresville High School at the end of the first semester.

In spite of this, the students still had high hopes for another sponsor to take charge of FFA, and the staff at MHS worked towards the goal. Having attended the National FFA Convention, and the member's passion remained.

Key Club was Mooresville High School's largest after school club. It was composed of 105 of students, grades nine through twelve. They had Co-Presidents, juniors Emily Nelson and Maddie Zook.

Emily had been volunteering since she was in fourth grade. "I thought I could really make a difference if I was Co-President of Key Club," junior Emily Nelson said.

"A lot of things go into getting Key Club ready and talking to people around the community to see where help is needed.

"We looked at what was working in previous years and we also looked at opportunities in the community, because we have so many people, we just need stuff that everyone can do," junior Maddie Zook said.

Key Club had been an organization from the members of the Kiwanis International Family. Key Club has a student-led organization that taught leadership through community service. To complete the year in Key Club, members needed to have a total of 60 hours through out the entire school year.

"In order to get my hours, I started looking for opportunities to help out. So I started helping out at my church a lot, and started going downtown and giving homeless people food and clothes with my youth group," sophomore Chelsie Bingham said.

Some of the activities the members participated in were Books 4 Youth, Polar Bear Plunge, Race for the Cure, clothing drive, and church volunteering.

"I love doing volunteer work myself and seeing 110 plus students do the same is very rewarding," said Mrs. Lindy Scott.

Every year since Mooresville has had Key Club, they have had a great turnout. It was a club that allowed students to give back to their community, with their "helping hands."

Best Buddies was a club that when people walk through the door, all you hear was laughter. This club gave students the opportunity to gain great friendships.

The President of Best Buddies was senior Sarah Lemon, and the Buddy Director of Best Buddies was senior AJ Slatinsky.

"As Best Buddies, Buddy Director, I share ideas and help them plan activities," senior AJ Slatinsky said.

The club met together once a month in Mrs. Amy Selby's classroom. The club had holiday parties, attended football home games, and walked the Best Buddies Friendship Walk in April. The group did a lot of hands on activities.

When asked why she joined Best Buddies, sophomore Katy Hendrickson said, "I wanted to join, because it looked fun. One of my best friend's brother has Autism and I got to hang out with him. I also wanted to get to know the kids and be able to stand up for them if someone picks on them."

In Best Buddies students were paired with a Buddy that they shared similar interests with. At the group meetings and outside of school they could talk on the phone and write letters back and forth; the girls enjoyed going shopping together.

Drama Club was a club where members could work on their acting and have amazing parties.

"We participate in the homecoming parade, we have holiday parties, and we get cool drama club t-shirts. We also help with the spring play," sponsor Mrs. Melanie Kassen said.

Many students think that Drama Club was the place to be and that everyone should join in on the fun.

"It's the best thing since the day they discovered maple syrup," senior Michael Onan said.

The best thing about Drama Club was that all of its members were involved.

"The members are there every time and all the time, we strive every day to do great deeds around the school and show all the awesome qualities we have to every person," Onan said.

Becoming inspired

With only a few members, in its first year as a club Craft Club sparked interest by making simple things with the basic craft materials.

"Craft Club gives students an opportunity to learn some basic crafts/skills, such as knitting, card making, and the making of friendship bracelets," sponsor Mrs. Sheryl Fyffe said.

The club tried to meet once a week to practice craft skills, plan their events, and have a good time.

"The best thing we ever did was Project Runway, where we made clothing for dolls out of trash bags," President Hanna Seyerle said.

They also did charitable work.

"We made tied blankets and donated them to the homeless shelter," senior Anastacia Jensen said.

Getting Creative

Art Club was a place where students could go to be artistic and have some fun. Many students liked Art Club, because it was so laid back.

"I plan on being in Art Club next year, because it is a lot of fun and it helps me get better at drawing," sophomore Taylor Fiesel said.

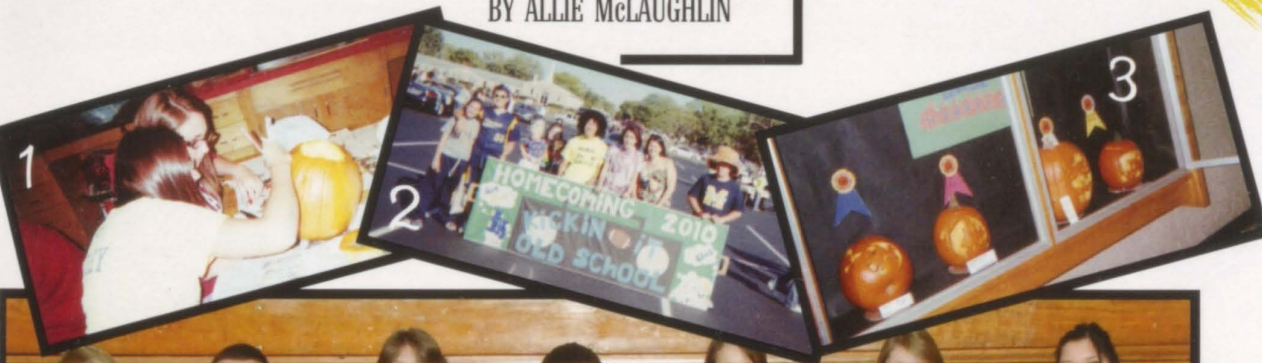

Drawing wasn't the only thing this club did. Art Club members tie-dyed t-shirts, made a homecoming banner, had a pumpkin carving contest, made Christmas cards, and colored Easter eggs.

"Activities stay pretty much the same year to year with a few changes," sponsor Denny Amrhein said.

Students were encouraged to try out Art Club whether they were good at drawing or not.

"I cannot draw to save my life but I love designing and I am very creative," Art Club president Nicholas Hunter-Shields said.

Knowing What Is Right

Every year more things change and more conflicts arise. JSA was a club where students could go to argue about what they were passionate about.

"My favorite part about being in JSA is learning how to make strong arguments for what is right," sophomore Ally Phillips said.

The members learned about the different views of each student and their different opinions.

"This club isn't just about politics. It's a fun place to get with students you may not know and talk about your thoughts on many different subjects," junior Karri Wise said.

JSA had been sponsored by Ms. Joyce Gilly and Ms. Karen Cochran since it was founded in 2007.

"Originally, I thought it would be cool to have a MHS debate club. While Ms. Gilly and I were in the process of trying to get the ball rolling on a debate club, one of our students found information about JSA. It seemed like just what we were looking for. It has been a fantastic outlet for our students to voice their thoughts and also, hopefully, it has inspired the students to hear others' opinions with an open mind and reflect on the differing opinions even outside the club," Ms. Cochran said.

JSA members do many things each year to reach out to other students.

"The best part of this club is always the annual religious debate in which members discuss, debate, and argue the morality of different alleged infringements on the separation of church and state," senior Michael Smith said.

Throughout the year these students have been able to come together and listen to each others differences on a variety of subjects. They learned the point of views and opinions of other students.

Students Against Destructive Decisions

Students involved in SADD come together to give back to their community and help others make better decisions.

Students come up with ideas to get the messages across.

"I love being able to give back to my community and helping out others," junior Kayla Halcomb said.

Won by One was a place where members could meet new people and talk about their similarities. All of the club members have at least one thing in common, their love for God.

"I wanted to connect with other Christians in our high school, and see other perspectives on the bible from people," sophomore Sarah Brown said.

Some schools do not have the opportunity to come together and talk about religion. The club members could see things they never did before from other people's views.

"I've learned that it takes work, thought, and discussion to understand the true message in between the lines," Nikki Wampler said.

Won by One has been sponsored by Mr. Burgess for five years.

"I wanted to be a part of a group that believes in the truths of scripture, and do everything I could to encourage MHS students to do the same," Mr. Burgess said.

BY SARAH MALICOTE

1. Senior Michael Smith, junior Molly Whitley, junior Kyle Casteel and senior Jeff Hackett visit Albert Einstein at the Albert Einstein Memorial in Washington D.C. with the JSA members. "Only the four of us were able to go, because no one else, including Ms. Gilly, trusted Karen Cochran and her GPS," Smith said. 2. Junior Brenda Smalling sings Rose Garden in the SADD annual talent show. 3. Sponsor Mr. Brent Olivier gives Junior Daniel Ratcliff his award for second place on the drums. 4. Juniors Alexis Siefert and Daniel Ratcliff sing The Only Exception together, taking first place in the talent show.

Andrea Cornelison

Andrea Marie Cornelison,
What a beautiful young woman you are!
You have brought great love and joy to our hearts!

We love you,
Mom and Dad

Matthew Donaldson

Matthew is and always has been a charming, talented and inspirational joy.

A diamond in the rough, may the world be large enough to handle all he has to offer it. The world is your playground Matthew.

XO, Mom

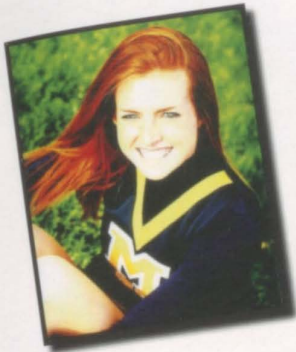

Maggie Page

Maggie,

Congratulations on all of your accomplishments. I am proud of you!

Love, Zach

Abby Howden

My heart soars with joy when I see all that you are, all you've become. This is a precious year, because you are still home, but you my sweet girl will go where dreams lead soaring through the future doors that God opens. Love you!

Mom, Dad & Riley

Haley Hoffman

Haley, you have brought joy and laughter to our lives. You are our treasure. Set your goals high and work hard to achieve them, we know you will. Don't take life for granted, and thank God for every moment. We love you baby.

Grandma & Papaw

Elizabeth Egler

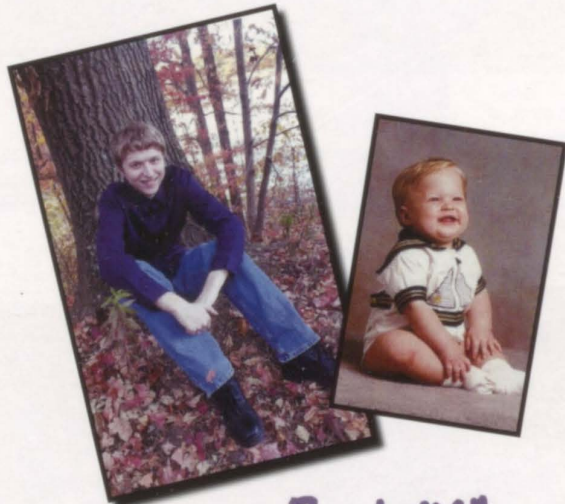

Be strong in the Lord
And never give up hope.
You're gonna do great things.
I already know God's got His hand on you
So don't live in fear.
Forgive and forget
But don't forget why you're here.
Take your time and pray.

Samuel Philpott

We are proud of you, son.

God bless your future.

Chris Beckman

We just turned around, and you grew up! You've made us very proud with your honesty, integrity and caring for others. There is only one you for all eternity - fearlessly be yourself!

Dad, Mom & Lindsay

Tyler Huff

Tyler, you amaze us at how determined you are. You push yourself to your limit, strive for excellence, and succeed. You have turned into a wonderful human being, and make us proud. Enjoy the ride, and reach for the stars!

Love,
Your family.

Terminate saying goodbye

There always comes a time when it all has to end. For seniors it was a mixture of emotions of both relief and remorse as they celebrated graduation. As for the underclassmen, it was a sense of excitement and anticipation for the new school year to come.

End of the year festivities began to take hold as summer drew nearer. For students it would be a two month break, but for some teachers it was their final days at Mooresville High School.

"I am excited to be retiring, at first I didn't think I had enough years to retire but then I found out my previous two years at Wishard Hospital would apply to my retirement," Mr. Mike Savini said.

Other retiring teachers included Mrs. Ann Phillips, Mr. Jim Whitaker, Mr. Larry Goldsberry, Mr. Denny Amrhein, Mrs. Nancy Wheeler, Mr. Rich Kelley, and Mr. Jerry Weber.

Spring sports were in full swing as the end drew closer. All of the teams did their best to accomplish their season goals.

"I try to intimidate my opponents with my play on the field," senior Nic Barker said.

Many seniors tried to cram in as many extracurricular activities as possible before graduating, while underclassmen collaborated with them as well.

"High school is so much different from middle school. There are so many things to get involved in," freshmen Kerstan Hill said.

Based on the ECA scores from the class of 2012 Mooresville was put on academic probation. In order to pass English and Math, teachers motivated students to pass their next ECA test.

"All of our efforts should help if students are taking them [ECA tests] seriously," English teacher Mrs. Lisa Gobel said.

As school came to an end, many students stood out from others. One in particular, senior Tyler Huff, individuated himself by obtaining the Lilly Endowment Community Scholarship for his academic achievements.

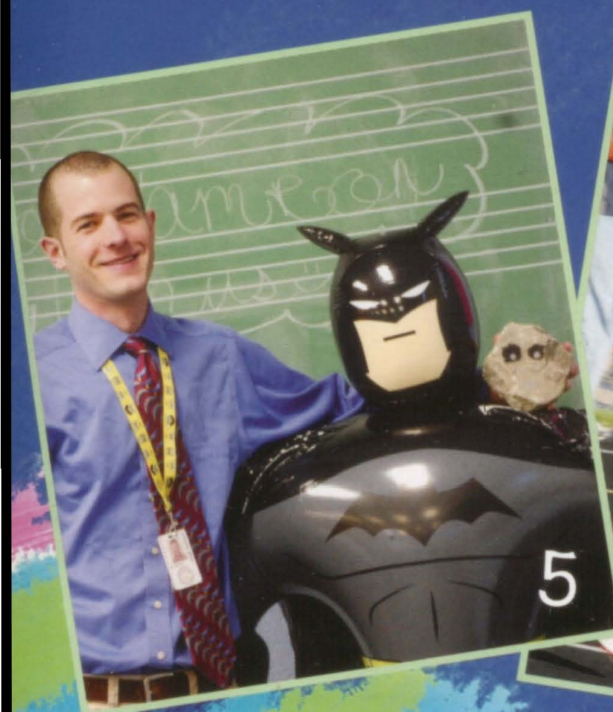

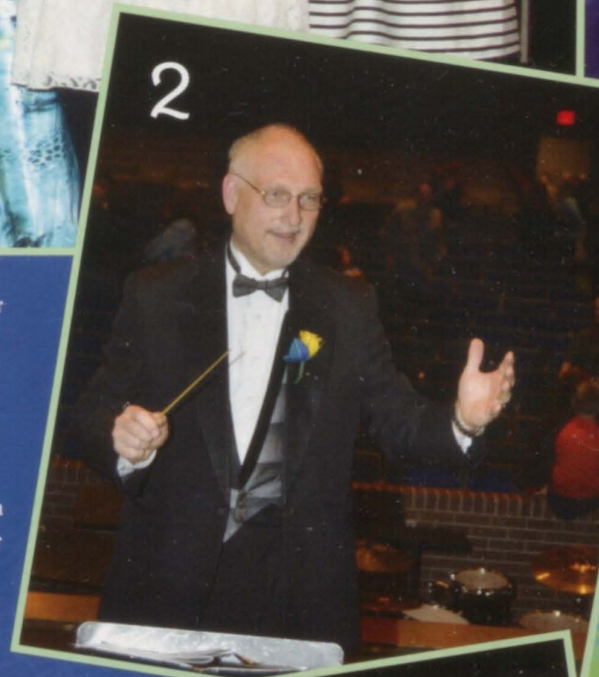

"The Lilly Scholarship pays for all four years of my schooling including tuition and book fees, to any college in Indiana," Huff said. "There were four schools in Morgan county who competed for the scholarship where they chose two kids to give it to. It feels wonderful to have gotten the scholarship and it has been an amazing opportunity and a blessing."

There were so many things that happened during the school year, that not only do students have the memories in their minds, but they have a book to look over for years to come.

1. The 2011 Top 20 students pose for a picture at the annual Top 20 banquet. Students invited to the banquet were allowed to bring a teacher that had inspired them and family members that they look up to, with them to the banquet. 2. Band Director, Mr. Jerry Weber is conducting his last showcase concert. Mr. Weber started teaching band at Mooresville High School in 1968 and retired in 2011. "Just because I am retiring, doesn't mean I'm completely out of the picture," Mr. Weber said. "I will be helping in the auditorium as the stage manager, and helping Mr. Freeman when he needs me. I will also drive the band bus to contests to try to save a little money." 3. Forming an open space in the middle of the dance floor, a group of seniors show off their dance moves. 4. Freshman Emilee Eickman competes for track at Edgewood High School. "Everytime I go out on the track to run, I just do the best I can, and I try to have fun with it," Eickman said. 5. Mr. Jason Damron receives a life size blow up Batman doll, from Senior Kirsten Taylor who had bought him it for an end of the year present since she had him all four years of her High School Career. "My Hero!" was all Mr Jason Damron said.

Colophon

The 2011 Wagon Trails Yearbook, Volume 66, was created by a student staff and was printed by Herff Jones Publishing Company at its facility at 2424 Midpoint Drive in Edwardsville, Kansas. This was our third All-Color Wagon Trails Yearbook. The publishing consultant was Cathy Wines, and the customer service representative was Debbie Thomas.

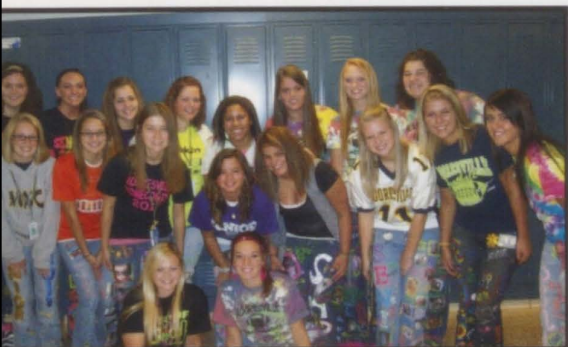

Lifetouch Photos took all the underclassmen and faculty pictures. The senior photos were taken by Prestige Portraits by Lifetouch.

The book was created using Adobe Photoshop CS2, Google Picasa, and Picnik. Herff Jones internet software eDesign was used. For the first time ever, students were able to work online from home to get their pages completed.

The 2011 Wagon Trails Yearbook staff was made up of these 18 members: Haley Alward, Erica Antic, Kahlie Cannon, Carolyn Ferrill, Kristen Hanson, Rachel Hastings, Austin Malicote, Sarah Malicote, Brittney McCloud, Allie McLaughlin, Ashley McQueen, Shelby Michael, Courtney Overton, Cody Payton, Samantha Perry, Megan Schumacher, Jessica Stinger, and Erin Wittell. The adviser was Mrs. Ada Clark, and Michelle Roberts assisted with advertising as a journalism intern.

A deserving thanks to: Cathy Wines, Debbie Thomas, Susan Haynes, The Mooresville-Decatur Times, Rick Briar, Peggy Gormon, Kathy Johnson, Becky Bischoff, Marsha Green, Karen Cochran, Lisa Bailey, Lisa Gobel, Chuck Muston, Jennifer Perkins, Larry Goldsberry, and Tim VanWanzele. This yearbook staff would like to thank the following people for contributing photos to the pages of this book: Dr. Phil Wright, Lindy Scott, Mark Ferrill, Amber Viles, and Maddy Cooper.
