Changes For The Good

5.24.13-8.6.13

The summer's competitive cheer squad competes at many different competitions, including the State Fair. They practiced four days every week over to prepare and perfect their stunts, tumbling, and spirit for the competitions. They learned a lot throughout the season working through many injuries, and through the challenges thrown their way, they ended the summer competition season stronger than they started. "My favorite part about cheer this summer was building as a team and increasing our level of difficulty," sophomore Kristen Worth said.

Mr. Jim Patrick opens the time capsule from 1959 that is found in the capstone near the original entrance into the high school during the construction project over the summer. He opened the time capsule at a school board meeting in July. "I begged to have a chance to open it. I thought it was neat," Patrick said.

The Summer of 2013 was the first time in the history of Moore'sville High School that a Moore'sville wrestler has made it to the finals at the Cadet National Wrestling tournament. The tournament took place the summer before Randy Scott's junior year. Scott placed first runner up overall in his weight division. He received the double All-American honors award for his weight class. It was a learning experience for him. "I thought I would've been one of the first kids out," Scott said.

Over the Summer the reconstruction of the high school begins by tearing down the wall in the courtyard to make a new glass hallway. This made the courtyard smaller, but created another hallway to help with the congestion between passing periods. Every classroom was torn apart from the ceiling to the floor to start the first step in the reconstruction process. The students came back to school having to figure out where their classes were moved to, new room numbers, no ceiling tiles, black floors in most classrooms, random wires everywhere, caution tap blocking many areas of the school off, windows not in every classroom, various smells throughout different areas of the school, and a new location for the guidance and attendance offices. Senior Logan Allen was involved in the summer construction project, as well as many other students from the high school. "Knocking out a wall was definitely the most difficult part, but it was also the most fun thing," Allen said.

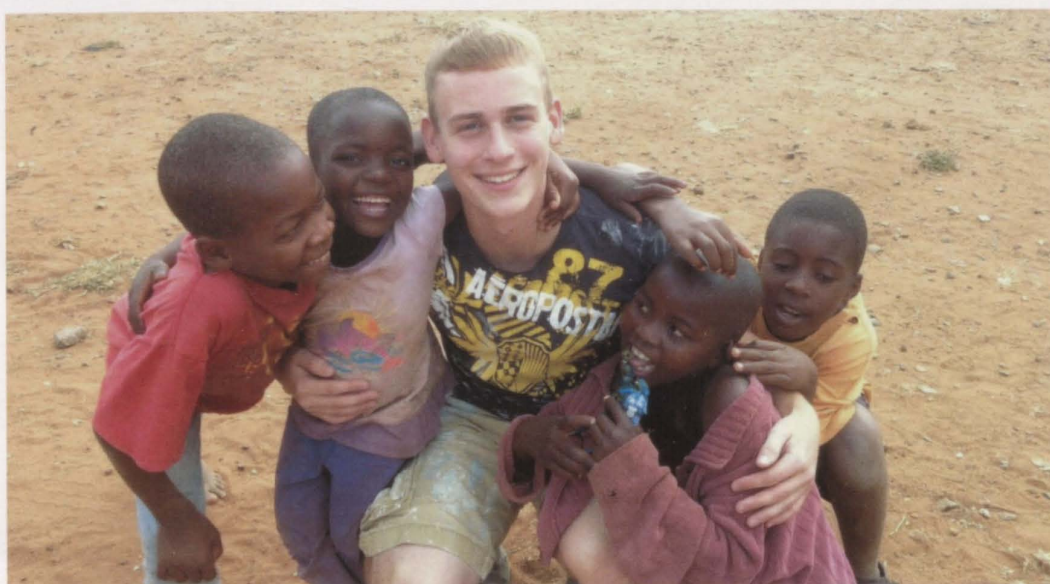

A New School Year, A New Staff...

Moore'sville was filled with a multitude of newness not only with the construction, but with the teaching staff as well. Mr. Brian Disney was named the new principal starting at the beginning of the 2013-2014 school year. In the past, Mr. Disney worked at Brownsburg high school and Franklin Central High school. His position at Moore'sville was his first experience as a principal. Coach Zach Errett was also named the new athletic director of the high school, taking over Coach Chad Briscoe's position. Along with a new principal, many new teachers flooded the school's halls as well.

The new teachers included Mr. John Hoffman and Miss Megan Jenkins in the science department, Mr. Kevin Jones, Mr. A.J. McAdams, and Mr. Adam Trebel in the technology department, Mr. Brian Nay in special education, Miss Brandy Sawyer in physical education, and Mr. Devin Tudor in the art department who came over for certain periods from the middle school. Moore'sville High School had a lot of new and unique changes and obstacles to start the school year, which made everyone interested to see how the rest of the year would go.

Senior Nicholas Schmutte leaves to go to Zimbabwe, Africa on July 26 and return on August 8 with the Church of Mt. Gilead, including senior Jesse Cordray. The children in Zimbabwe brought Schmutte overwhelming joy when he was there, and he still has that feeling when he reflects on what he witnessed while there. This was Schmutte's second trip to Zimbabwe within the past two years, and he's hoping it will not be his last. While there, Schmutte and the others on the missions trip did various activities at the orphanage Mt. Gilead ran, and also lead Vacation Bible School for children at a church. They also helped with labor work. On their days off they explored Zimbabwe, one of the scariest and most exciting adventures they had was when they were being chased by elephants in their vehicle while driving down the road. "Being in Africa with those kids was the coolest thing ever. We got to hang out and play games and just have a good time. Kids are kids no matter where in the world you are at," Schmutte said.

Principal Brian Disney speaks in front of the juniors and seniors chosen to be Pioneer Mentors as they meet over the summer to discuss plans for the 2014 school year. This was the first year that Mooresville had pioneer mentors who went into Freshmen pep classes the first Monday of every month and kept students excited throughout the school year. The different activities the freshman did with their pep mentors were also meant to help the freshman prepare for the rest of high school as well as college. "The most fun thing that I did was play games with the freshman on Monday," said senior Sarah Shorter.

The students involved in Champions of Character attend the Indiana High School Athletic Association conference for a day at Plainfield High School over the summer. While there, the athletes attended different classes to further their leadership and team building skills as well as listen to motivational speakers. They also all brought Mooresville shirts and exchanged them with other schools as a way to be united, and get to know each other. This was the first time Zach Errett and the students part of Champions of Character attended the IHSAA conference. "I now know why we encourage kids to attend this conference," Errett said.

Autumn

August-November

Back to School

The school looked different. No one knew where their classrooms were anymore. The smell of paint and other strong smells filled the noses of the students coming back from their summer vacations.

"Everything was so different and confusing. I felt as if I was a freshman again," senior Mikayla Rusie said.

All the talk that filled the hallways was about tans, vacations, construction, and everything that happened the weeks before. Everyone knew that this year had a whole new punch to it. Things had changed over the summer and all the students could do was do what they do best and adjust to the new atmosphere and make the best of it.

The freshmen were the new kids on the block and for some, being in a school that was under construction put them in even more of a panic.

"I wasn't as freaked out as I thought I would be because I wasn't the only one that didn't know where to go," freshman Elexis Aichinger said.

Not only were the freshmen confused, but the upperclassmen as well. All the rooms had been renumbered and the hallways had new names. Even the teachers' rooms had been moved around.

There were new hallways, teachers, and classrooms, but the students seemed to warm up to the new ways of the building fairly easily which helped the staff out quite a bit.

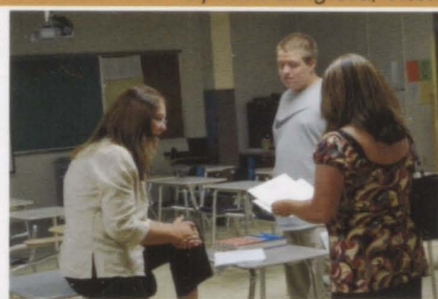

"It was extremely chaotic, but it's going to be neat when everything is done," Mrs. Tamara Skaggs said.

After finding their classrooms, the students began to warm up to the new school. Knowing the school would be under construction for almost the rest of their school year, the students couldn't wait to see how the new project would turn out.

Senior Austin Majors stands as his new teacher, Mrs. Gilly, introduces both herself and her class to Austin and his mother. Mrs. Gilly was one of the first teachers to be put into a transition room while her room was in the remodeling process. "It's good that parents are interested in what the school is doing to benefit their children's education," Mrs. Gilly said.

Mathematics teacher Mrs. Vaughn stands in her class as she explains to parents what her classroom would be like first semester. "It's always good to meet others who are interested in student's education," Mrs. Vaughn said.

Pioneer mentors point the way for senior Brittany Summers and freshman Dylan Summers' mother, Tammy Summers, while at the open house. All Mooresville High School children's parents were welcome to go throughout the new and improved school and meet their children's teachers for the school year. "The new names of the hallways really helped out a lot with giving directions to parents," senior Rachel Head said.

OPEN HOUSE 8.12.13

Science Teacher Mrs. Howard introduces her classroom with a power point slide show to a parent who was able to attend the open house. Mrs. Howard was one of many other teachers who's room was put to the side at the beginning of the year. "Academically speaking, in certain instances parents are able to experience specific tips provided to students for achievement and success," Mrs. Howard said.

Sophomore Tiarra Delph preforms a lab in Biomedical Science class that is taught by Mr. McAdams. This class was a new to Mooresville High School, and it included the sophomore students who were looking for a challenge. It allowed there to be an alternative science class for the freshman to make more room in higher classes that included the upperclassmen. Delph studied a strand of her own hair underneath a microscope during the first of many labs in this classroom. "It was really cool being able to see what my hair looks like up close. Mr. McAdams even told me I had beautiful hair," Delph said.

First Day School Fashions

"It only took me about an hour to get ready because I picked my outfit out the night before," freshman Maddie Bombei said.

"I pick out my outfits the night before so I look exceptionally good the next day," sophomore Isaiiah Branham said.

"Mine didn't take long to pick out since I was told what I had to wear," junior Kaley Huddleston said.

"Everything I wear looks good, it just comes natural," senior Cody Bray said.

 Old Settlers Parade
 8.4.13

Part of the Mooresville Cheer Squad sits on a float as they pass by in the annual Old Settlers parade. This parade, along with the festival, has been a part of Mooresville's tradition since the 1870's. Many extracurricular activity groups participate in the Old Settlers parade including: marching band, color guard, Mooresville cheerleaders, Mooresville varsity football, and others. "It was a great start to a tough season for the boys," sophomore Cassie Cannon said. Old Settlers took place August 4, 5, and 6, only a day before students started school. This tradition is a way to end the summer and a great way to kick off the school year.

Competing for State

The weather was perfect for the great day the Mooresville High School band had ahead of them. On August 2 the band competed in their annual competition at the Indiana State Fair. "I was anxious, excited, and a little bit nervous for the competition. Once I found out we made finals I was so relieved," junior Kellie Schlangen said. The band first had to compete for a spot in the finals. After competing in the day show, Mooresville students were relieved to hear they made it to finals by placing twelfth place. The band then finished finals, coming home with eleventh place. "For us to go through all the days we did, and come out as successful as we were, is a feeling all of its own. It's wonderful, rewarding, and irreplaceable," junior Skyler Fulkerson said.

SENIORITIS ALREADY?

"I'm so over having to do school work every night and having to get up early every day. I just want to be able to sleep in and be done," said Shayla Harper

"I'm ready for Homecoming, Spring Break, and prom, but of course Graduation is what I'm ready for the most," said Austin McGhee

Club Call-Outs

To keep with the spirit of change, the first ever club fair was held in the south gym. Booths were set up to represent all clubs and students were able to walk around and talk to the sponsors to find the perfect organization to join.

There was also the option to start your own club, which several students took advantage of.

"My friends and I started the Agriculture Club because we didn't have FFA anymore. It was in the works for a year," junior Parker Smallman said.

"We need to get Ag classes back," junior Randy Scott said.

During a forensics lab, students conduct an experiment to determine what type of drug was in the test subject's body when she died. Biomedical science, taught by Mr. AJ McAdams, was a new course offered at MHS as one of the project lead the way classes. Students viewed pictures of a mock crime scene and had to uncover what had happen to the subject. "It was cool to see the medicine react to different indicators," sophomore Landon Harder said.

Students in Ms. Sharron Eickhoff's class study their vocabulary with flare. Vocab words were placed on the dart board and whichever word the dart landed on the student had to recite its definition to the class. "Ms. Eickhoff knows how to run a fun class and make it more exciting than any other teacher. She teaches in a way that is easy to understand, which is great. You can tell that she enjoys teaching," sophomore Tyler Early said.

Construction begins upstairs. Students had been back in school for three weeks. Although, the ceilings had left the building. "I have mixed emotions toward the construction. I think the stuff that is finished looks really nice, but I also believe that construction going on during school is disrespectful to the students," junior Brian Strong said.

All is Well

8.18.13-8.31.13

Night Lights

The buzz of the lights came on and illuminated the big blue and gold "M" in the center of the field. The football season kicked off with a "Merica," themed game. The student section wore their stars and stripes with pride in an effort to support their team.

"It's always exciting starting out the season. All the cheerleaders had big hopes for our football seniors," varsity cheerleader Madi McGuire said.

Color Guard kept the crowd entertained during half time with their show "All is Well."

"Our show was about the stages of life," junior color guard member Tristan Tate said.

Tate admitted to being a little nervous before performing at the first football game of the season, but she knew that they were all ready to go because of their many hours of practice leading up to that night.

"We practiced 5-9 p.m. every evening, including during the summer," Tate said.

The premier football game ended up to be a patriotic night to remember.

The Puritan Experience

The American Studies classes were thrilled to go on their first field trip of the year. Neither Ms. Joyce Gilly nor Mrs. Lisa Gobel would tell the students where they would be going.

They boarded a bus and tried to figure out where they were going. Much to their surprise, the adventure ended at an old church in Martinsville, where they heard from a harsh Puritan preacher, George Whitfield, otherwise known as Mr. Brian Disney.

The classes had been learning about the Puritan era and read different minister's sermons. One that really stood out in the eyes of the students was George Whitfield's speech.

"It was great to see the sermon brought to life," junior Wyatt Scott said.

Look Out Lupus

The crowd went wild during the football game on Friday, September 6. Students wore their purple attire for Lupus awareness.

Lupus is a disease that leads to long-term (chronic) inflammation. This theme was meaningful to many students because of the loss of their fellow classmate, Kaitlyn Fulkerson, to Lupus in 2011.

"I, and basically the entire student body, felt that it would be a great way to honor Kaitlyn and also raise awareness of lupus," senior Class President Kayla Harpold said.

Many students and families attended the game that night to support Kaitlyn and her family.

"This game meant a lot to my family and I because it showed us how much Mooresville cared about Kaitlyn," freshman Hannah Fulkerson said.

And Now For New Clubs...

New clubs were established at MHS by students. In order to start a new club, there had to be at least 15 people willing to be members, and there also had to be a sponsor to support the club.

Gaming Club

Goal: to get together and have some fun without technology.

Car Audio Club

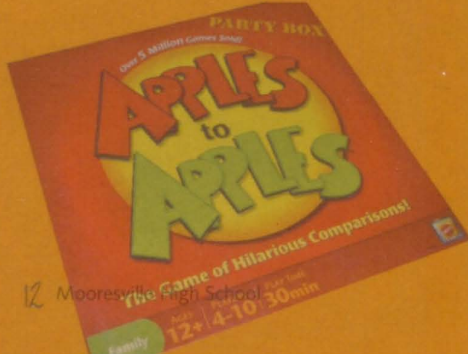

Goal: to develop skills that surround the mobile electronics world.

Agriculture Club

Goal: to hopefully hire an agriculture teacher to have an FFA chapter once again at MHS.

Football Club

Goal: to explain the big picture of football and to build the members' overall understanding of the game.

Construction continues in the new Glass Hallway throughout the week. The workers estimated the hallway to be done and open to the students the last week of September. The construction workers worked everyday in order to try and get the hallway finished on time. "The new hallway gives you shortcuts to classes and keeps smaller hallways less crowded," junior Derek Cox said.

The construction workers renovate the upstairs classrooms, including Mrs. Cathy Guy's room. There they found a picture of the 1962 yearbook staff and a note they had written after finishing the yearbook that summer. Communications Director, Susan Haynes, said that this picture was also found in the 1962 yearbook.

Selby Has Spirit

Spirit week was Mrs. Selby's favorite time of the school year. It was a time for all to show off their school spirit and act goofy throughout the school day.

The spirit days included College Day, 80's Day, Blue and Gold Day, Class Color Day, and Camo Day. Except for the seniors, they decided to change the Blue and Gold Day to Nerd Day.

"For seniors it seemed like too much blue and gold so we wanted to mix it up," senior Haley Wyble said.

During spirit week Mrs. Selby was extremely busy and there were a couple things that were frustrating.

"I tweeted the hashtag

#selbyquitshomecoming everyday except for Friday I'm pretty sure,"

Mrs. Selby said.

Every year becomes a bigger and bigger success. School spirit constantly flows throughout the halls during spirit week. Mrs.

Selby brought out the best school spirit throughout the week.

Like Father, Like Son

The father and son duo pose for a picture on 80's Day during homecoming week. Senior Carter VanWanzelee decided to make the switch to Mooresville High School from Avon High School for his senior year and his father, Associate Principal Tim VanWanzelee, was beyond excited to have his son with him at Mooresville to share his senior year with him.

The two were able to get dressed up together and show their school spirit while participating in all the spirit days.

"I wanted to look like my pops did in the 80's while trying to jazz up the halls a little bit too," Carter VanWanzelee said.

On September 18, IOS 7 Apples new software for Apple Products came out. The new software featured an all new design that changed the look of everything from the apps, to how look at the pictures. The night before the release of IOS 7, many students stayed up until midnight to download it, Logan Allen was one them. Those who stayed up were disappointed that it did not come out at midnight like many predicted. It was later released September 18th at 1 p.m. At 1 o'clock so many students tried to download IOS 7 that it created a large disturbance in the WiFi.

of IOS users downloaded IOS 7 the first day. Twice as much as IOS 6 in 2012.

"It was definitely worth all the time and effort spent on them," Morgan Smalling said.

"It was so fun getting to reminisce with friends while making them and capture memories," Kayla Karr said.

"A tip for the future, roll them into capris to take up room if you're in a hurry to finish," Haley Chitwood said.

"They took forever, but it was great getting to continue on a senior tradition," Abbey Prilliman said.

"I wanted to do something unusual so I made a quote leg," Alivia Duerlinger said.

"When I get older and look at them, they'll bring back all the great memories of high school," Cayla Clinger said.

pirit

The juniors huddle together to get pumped up before their game. They played several games, but fell short to the seniors. "I personally liked playing football better, but mother nature did not want us to play apparently," junior Samantha McQueen said.

Senior Amelia Phillips follows through her throw. Phillips was on the winning team of seniors who took home the whole tournament. "If you can dodge a wrench, you can dodge a ball," Phillips said.

The junior class takes on the seniors in the final game. The juniors ended up losing in the championship. "We won all of the games the night before, but we got too cocky and lost to the seniors the next day," junior Kyla Garland said.

Dodging the Storm

A Change in Plans

As the rain came in throughout the day, the chance of the girls being able to play their annual Powder Puff flag football game. By the time PEP period rolled around, the word was out that the football game was off and a dodgeball tournament was in full swing.

The reactions to a dodgeball tournament rather than a football game were mixed. Some people were excited, while others were bummed that they were unable to play football.

"I just went at it as soon as the whistle blew!" senior Hannah Outcalt said.

Once the tourney got under way, it seemed to be a hit with the girls and the fans that showed up for support.

"Having the dodgeball tournament allowed the students to get a lot closer to the action," Mr. Mathew Bosworth said.

The football players supported their grades by standing behind them and chanting them on while the girls were playing.

The championship match was played between the juniors and seniors the next day during the pep rally.

"It was a lot more fun than playing football would have been, or at least I think so," junior Ciara LaFlower said.

Following the tournament, the football players gave speeches and the cheerleaders preformed to get everyone fired up for the big game the next day.

Homecoming Day 9.20.13

Hawks Down Defend Our Field

On Friday September 20, sophomore Levi Samuels woke up and got ready for school. He got out of bed excited that it was finally homecoming day.

"It's usual for me to wear camouflage," Samuels said, "I wore a ghillie suit."

When he got to school he congregated with many students around the guidance office to see which class and student would receive the spirit day award.

"I was excited about the homecoming theme because it supported a great charity, had to do with the opposing team, and also got a lot of students to participate in dressing up on homecoming day," Mrs. Barbara Goddard said.

Junior William Berwick also arrived to school in his camouflage gear.

"I'm glad Friday was camouflage day, because I got to wear my hunting clothes," Berwick said, "You ain't no buck without your doe."

Berwick participated in the other spirit days, but the camouflage spirit day was the one he was most excited about.

Wearing camouflage was not just a normal homecoming theme. It was one of the most effective turn outs for participation in spirit that Mooresville had seen.

Samuels and Berwick continued the school day in high spirits enthusiastic that they got to wear their camouflage to school and all their classmates were dressed up as well.

Students also continued to wear their camouflage to the football game. Many students attended the game later that evening because they played their rival school, Decatur Central.

The students were excited to dress up from head to toe in their camouflage attire to support their football team.

At the game, the students kept their spirits raised, and had a lot of fun from the crowd cheering on their team.

The Senior class works hard to win the float building contest for the fourth consecutive year. They were the first class to win freshman, sophomore, junior, and senior year. They were excited when the announcer said the senior float won because they had a lot of pressure from the other grade levels to win. The seniors were more than ready to compete against the other grade levels, and show them how the seniors get it done. "My favorite part of float building was being able to hang out with my friends and work on a project we all had interest in. We worked on it every night," senior Kolin Rottner said, "It felt great to win because it was our fourth straight victory for float building. It was no surprise from the amount of hard work we put into it all week that we were going to win though."

The defensive line gets set for the next play. They wanted to stop Decatur Central from getting a first down. "It was sad [playing in my last high school homecoming game] because I never will get to do that again, and it was my last homecoming game ever," senior Kyle Waggoner said.

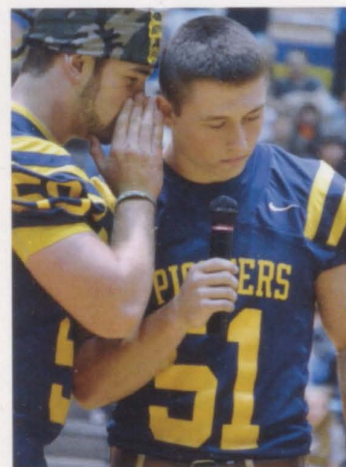

The home crowd cheers on their varsity football team as they play their rivals Decatur. The student section was filled with spirit. "It was pretty cool sitting in the student section," freshman Abby McLaughlin said, "My favorite part was when we were chanting to the other team."

The seniors cheer on their teammates as they play in the championship dodgeball game. This game was against the juniors. "Winning proved seniors rule the world (school)," senior Morganne Belton said. "We were basically awesome, and it was fun getting my team pumped up."

Tiarra Delph is part of the junior varsity cheer squad. Delph stood in front of the sophomore student section during the pep rally. "It was so much fun to cheer with my friends and be a part of the pep rally," Delph said, "I was glad I got to stand in front of my classmates."

Senior Luke Justus gives his senior speech at the pep rally with support from senior Damien Mills. Justus was part of the first group that day who gave speeches in front of the student body. "It was exciting to speak in front of the entire student body, but it was also nerve-racking," Justus said.

Sophomore Emily Novicki smiles at her escort, junior Hunter Koch, as she's being crowned homecoming princess. She was so excited to get selected by her classmates to be a candidate, and then to become the one selected to be princess. Although it rained, Novicki didn't let it ruin her night, and made sure she was prepared beforehand. "I think it's not about the crown or being a princess it's about being myself. I enjoyed being the princess!" Novicki said, "I would like to give thanks to the other princess candidates and to the students who voted me princess."

Seniors Kayla Harpold and Jesse Cordray get their picture taken in the damp cold after Kayla is crowned homecoming queen. Harpold was chosen out of three finalists. Fall homecoming of 2013 was not the first time Harpold was nominated to be a part of a princess and queen candidacy. "It was an awesome experience and I'm grateful that I was blessed with the honor to be nominated as a candidate, and then to be voted for to become queen," Harpold said, "My favorite part was being in the parade and seeing all the kids excited to get candy from everyone."

The senior student section makes as much noise as they can to cheer on their classmates competing to earn them spirit points. The seniors continued the legacy of past senior classes and won the class versus class spirit competition. Spirit points were awarded to each class throughout homecoming week to students who put forth their best spirit. "I liked watching the teachers go against the students [in tug of war]" Berry said. "It was fun to cheer on my friends, and earning spirit points got the students into the spirit more."

Google Chromebooks were the new computers that Mooresville High School decided to use for its students. The Chromebooks were distributed to all students to be used during the school day for all of their school work. Teachers were trained on Chromebooks in order to help their students, even though the teachers were not given the Chromebooks themselves. The Chromebooks were new for everyone in the building, but this was the first time for the Class of 2014 to ever have a laptop issued to them from the school.

Freshman Evan Graham

I like the Chromebooks because they are lightweight and easy to carry around.

Sophomore Margaux Zook

I like that the Chromebooks are small and portable. It is easy to carry them from class to class. They are fun size and I like using them.

Junior Kirby Goodwin

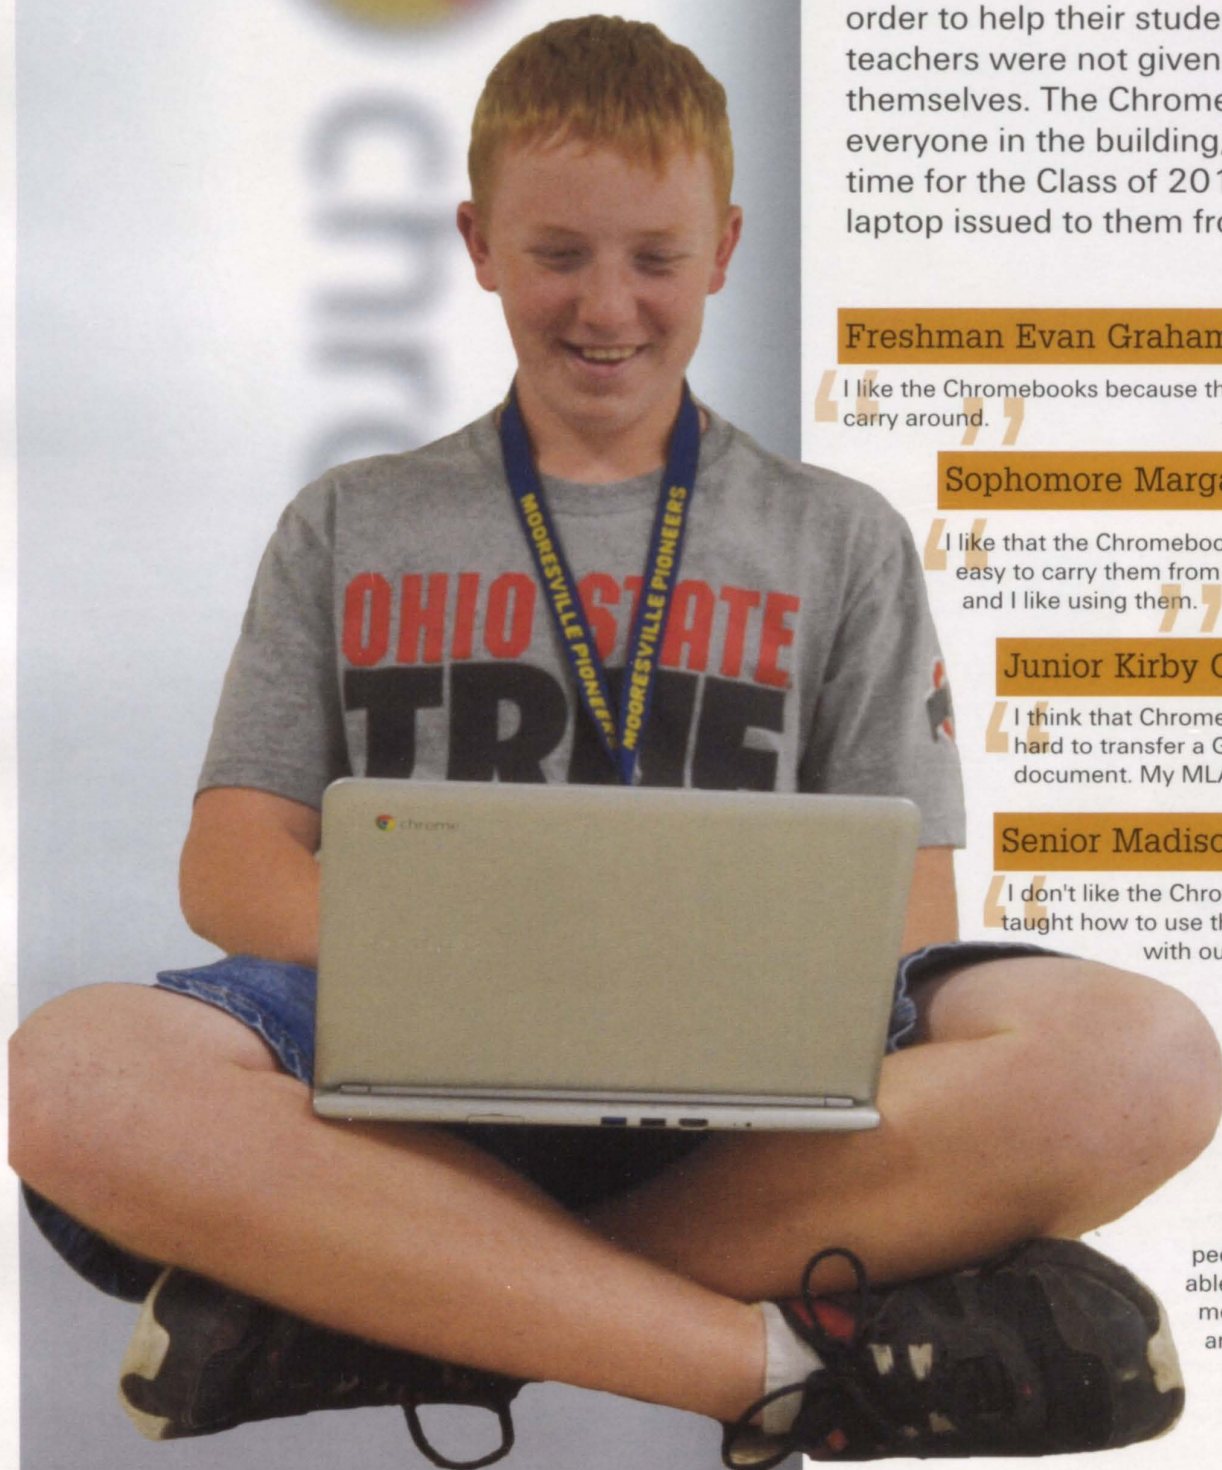

I think that Chromebooks are mediocre because it's hard to transfer a Google Doc into a Word document. My MLA usually gets messed up.

Senior Madison Grimes

I don't like the Chromebooks because I was never taught how to use them, and nothing is compatible with our teachers. They don't even own Chromebooks, but we do.

Mr. Andy Marine

I think that the Chromebooks are more durable than the ones we had last year. I like the Google Doc platform that the students can share, do peer editing, and so forth. Being able to share the document with me is easier, and I feel that they are easier to use.

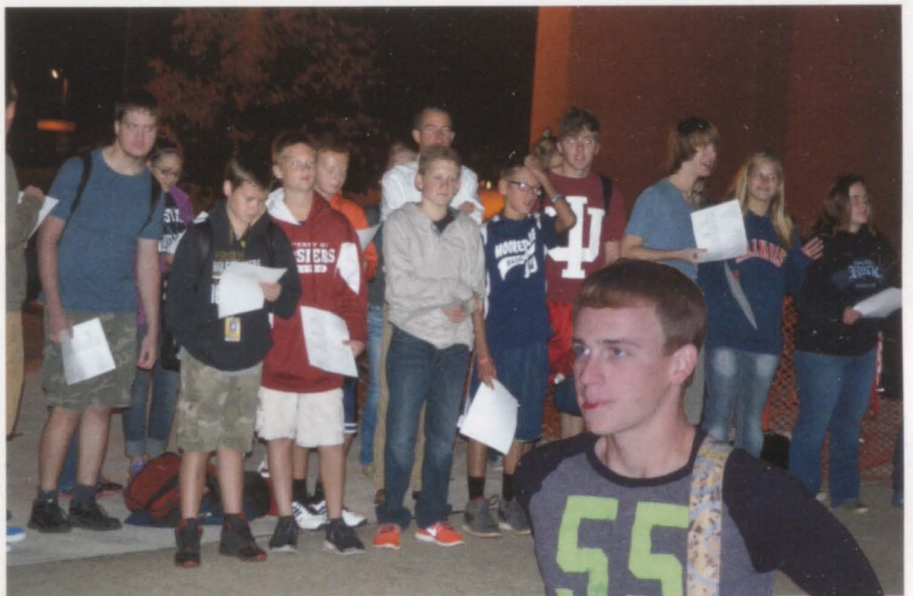

All of the cheerleaders stand in formation to cheer on the football team during the Breast Cancer Awareness game and senior night. The team wore their alternate jerseys for the game's special occasion. "It was sweet to wear the different jerseys because it's something that most high school teams don't get to do," junior Lance Lawyer said.

For the first time in Mooresville girls golf history, senior Danielle Warthen shoots a beginning drive at the State qualifiers. Warthen and the team qualified for the Regional tournament, but Warthen was the only one to advance to the State tournament. "It was so amazing to be at regionals as a team, and to advance to state as an individual," Warthen said.

See You At The Pole is a student organized, nationwide event of prayer for Christian students that is held on every fourth Wednesday of the month of September. The students who chose to participate gathered around the flag pole before school and sang songs and prayed. "There's something so powerful in knowing that all over the country, thousands of kids are uniting for a common cause," senior Nick Schmutte said. "It's really awesome to see all of the students participating. Being able to witness such a huge event is really cool."

Sophomore Margaux Zook is one of many orchestra members performing in the Octoboo concert. This was her second year in orchestra and she chose to dress like a pirate. "I like Octoboo because we don't have to wear dresses and I can wear my pirate costume in public. It's also fun to see all the other people that are dressed up," Zook said. Octoboo was Orchestra's main Fall concert where students played Halloween music and even hosted a costume contest.

American Studies- A Walk In the Park

Junior Whitney Smither takes a field trip with her American Studies class. There were many things that she enjoyed about the day. "My favorite part of the field trip was just being able to get away from school and learn in a different way," Smither said. In previous years, the students traveled to Bloomington for the field trip. Due to wet weather, the group went to Pioneer Park instead. The students memorized a verse from a transcendental authors poem and recited it in groups at the park. It was a way for students to learn in a unique way and get away from the business of the classroom. They got to be one with nature much like the transcendental authors they studied.

Sophomore Olivia Hurt does flips on the beach. She went to Siesta Key during Fall Break. "My favorite part of going to Florida was definitely getting to spend everyday on the beach with my best friend," Hurt said.

Senior Sydney Kanouse walks the streets of Switzerland. She was one of many students to travel on Fall Break. "I loved being able to see the everyday culture and all of the architecture," Kanouse said. "The shopping was also really cool." With a week built into the calendar for Fall Break, it allowed students to go many different places outside of Indiana.

Almost every Sophomore took the PSAT on October 30, and each of them had different thoughts and concerns about the test.

Grant West thinks about the PSAT's. He believed that the test was important for sophomores to take. "I think the PSAT's are important because I believe its the first step to take our education past high school," sophomore West said.

Anthony Bridgman participates in crafts with fellow Best Buddies members. There are a lot of reasons the club enjoyed getting together. "My favorite part of Best Buddies is getting to hang out with all of my friends," sophomore Bridgman said.

Best Buddies

Since 1989 Best Buddies has been a club for all students to be friends and have fun together. Every Friday a group of students met to create a place of friendship and unity. Students with and without mental disabilities got together to play games, do activities, and become friends.

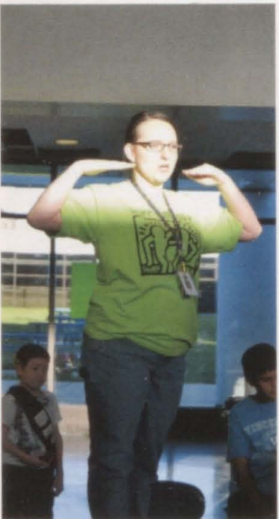

"Best Buddies gives people that may not have many friends a chance to have a friend," junior Alisha Hardwick said.

Not only did they meet as a club, but they did many activities outside of school. They went bowling, to a Pacers game together, and also did a 5K friendship walk in downtown Indianapolis to help support their program. One important event they participated in was a formal Best Buddies dance in Carmel with other programs around the state. They tried to do group activities outside of school at least once a month. Students had many different reasons for being involved with the club this year.

"I have a cousin with a disability, so I really wanted to get involved in the club," junior Stacy Rakes said.

Mrs. Kathy Faulkenberg played a large role in the club and has seen how the club has impacted her students lives. "The kids get to hang out with other kids and it's something for them to look forward to every week," Faulkenberg said.

Mrs. Amy Selby explains the activity. She has been a special education sponsor for the club and enjoyed being a part of Best Buddies. "One of the most beneficial aspects of Best Buddies is that the kids get to grow socially," Selby said.

Morgan Fenley welcomes people to the Best Buddies event. She was one of many students involved with the club this past year. "I like being in Best Buddies because I think it's important for everyone to have a friend," junior Fenley said.

Spotlighters light up the stage singing and dancing to the song Mad Hatter. Senior Alivia Duerlinger caught everybody's attention with her solo. "I loved singing this solo. It's fun to be this character that is even crazier than I am in real life," Duerlinger said.

Wagon Trails Revue Sells Out

Pictures from previous shows flashed onto the screen to "Yesterday Once More." The audience reminisced on the past performances. The slide show ended and the lights came on as the Yearbook Staff kicked off the show.

Ever since the 1970s, the Yearbook Staff has hosted a talent show called Wagon Trails Revue to raise money for the yearbook. Every year all of the choirs, orchestras, and bands take part in order to show off their talents and hard work.

The show consisted of music, laughter, and of course tears. For some, this was their first time participating in the show, and for others it was their last.

"Wagon Trails is one of my favorite performances so I was sad that this was my last one, but I am so thankful to have had the opportunity to share the stage with one amazing group of people over the past four years," senior Logan Mills said.

Some people may think it is hard enough for a student to be in one musical group; however, many students participate in more than one group on the nights of Wagon Trails Revue.

"This year I participated in Stage Crew, Full Orchestra, Concert Band, Madrigals, and Spotlighters during Wagon Trails," junior Ricky Yutmeyer said.

"It was fairly easy, being my third year helping out with Wagon Trails; however, there were times when it got difficult. In the end it was an amazing production with a lot of wonderful performances and performers," Yutmeyer said.

Every musical group put in many hours when practicing and rehearsing for the nights of Wagon Trails.

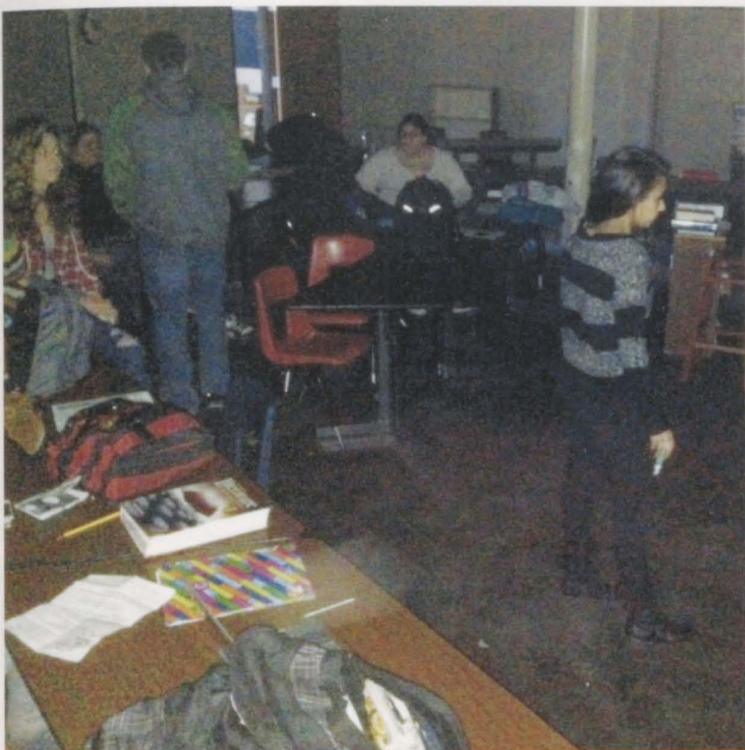

"We sold out on Friday, and nearly Saturday. I'm continually thankful and impressed by what the performing arts groups are willing to do to support the yearbook," yearbook adviser Mrs. Ada Clark said.

In between acts, the Yearbook Staff puts on commercials to entertain the audience. They took familiar television commercials and turned them into ways to promote the yearbook. "I thought it was fun. I didn't mind the costumes because I am a pretty outgoing person and I like to make people laugh," sophomore Sarah Ray said.

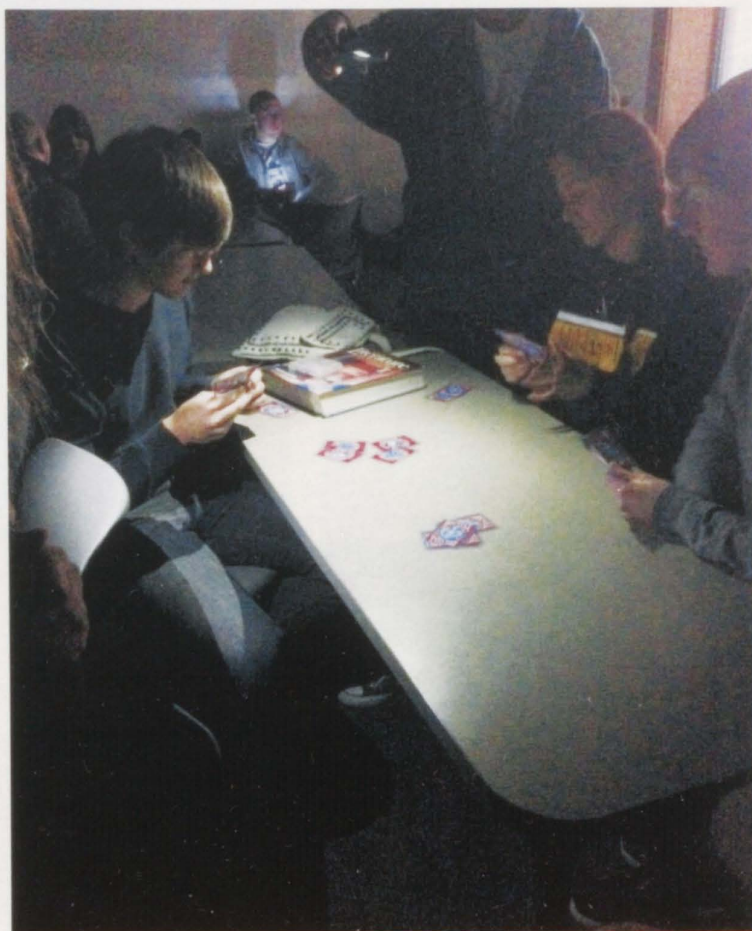

Out Like a Light

On Wednesday, November 12, MHS experienced a power outage that lasted from around midway third period to noon. When the power remained out, students were dismissed early from school. "It was cool to have a reason to get out of school early, but at the same time it was a bit eerie to see the school with all the lights out. My friends and I were sending pictures of the classrooms we were in to show how little or no light the rooms had. I even had to call the elementary school I cadet teach for and explain that I wouldn't be going there that day," senior Paige Baker said.

Students from Mr. Stan Shafer's PEP class pass the time away playing Euchre during the power outage. Students had to wait for an hour and a half until they were dismissed early from school. "After playing Euchre in PEP, I went out to lunch with friends, it ended up as a pretty great day," junior Bryan Comer said.

Freshman Allison Ulrey and her lab partner Kaelee Gunnell construct a plant cell out of clay in Biology. They then labeled each element and discussed it. "It was so much fun being able to work with my friends," Ulrey said.

Lady Pioneers Battle BNL

Freshman Amanda Worland fights for the ball against Bedford North Lawrence high school. Lady Pioneers fought their hardest that night. "I feel like the season was a success. Our team worked hard and practiced everyday and pushed each other to get better. Sometimes we would get down on ourselves but our coach was always there to keep our heads up," Worland said.

Center Luke Justus gets set to snap the ball. Justus was switched to playing center for his first time during his senior year and gained the starting position. "I changed positions because the team needed help on the offensive line and I felt our defense could hold up with the guys we had on there," Justus said.

Senior Damien Mills blocks an offensive player from Martinsville. Mills got the opportunity to be the head of the defense for the team. "It was a blast to lead a bunch of my best friends and going out there and knocking heads like we love doing every Friday night," Mills said.

Wide Receiver Jojo Rowland jumps to catch a pass. Rowland was new to the football program as a senior. "There's nothing like playing football on Friday nights. It's something I will never forget," Rowland said.

The defensive line holds off the offensive line. The defense worked hard every time they were on the field. "My hard work from last year really payed off because I got to start varsity this year," junior Davillious Masayile said.

Defensive end Brandon Sellers shows off his defensive skills during the home opener against Lebanon. Sellers served as one of the four varsity captains during his senior year and lead the team on defense through his talent and ability on and off the field. "Our record may not showed it, but we had a great season," Sellers said.

Senior Trace Rooks runs the ball against the Martinsville Artesian defensive line. Rooks beat the single season catching record during his senior year by ten catches for a total of 52 catches for the season. "Not the overall season result we were hoping for, but I couldn't ask for a better group of guys to play with," Rooks said.

Mooresville Muscle

While the special teams kick off, the team raises their helmets. This was a tradition at all the football games. "I wouldn't have wanted to be on any other team for my senior year," senior Parker Roark said.

The boys stormed out of the locker room and ran on the field ready to play the game they love. The field freshly painted and the summer night air crisp with anticipation for the new season. Everyone had been preparing for the first game of the season all summer.

"The first games gives you more jitters and butterflies than any other game because you want to prove what you've worked so hard and so long for over the summer," senior Mark Williams said.

As they suited up against the Lebanon Tigers, they put everything they had into the game, even if the score did not end in their favor. The boys were devastated, but it gave them a drive to want to succeed more and more.

Week after week the boys put in countless hours of practice and conditioning to prepare for their next opponent. Several times they happened to fall short, but never gave up hope in themselves and more importantly, each other.

"This group of seniors set a great foundation for the younger ones coming up," head coach Chad Dockery said.

There were several seniors on the team that were hungry for a win by the time the season was coming to a close. They traveled to Franklin County for their last regular season game. That is where they showed what they had and came out with a win over the Wildcats.

"It felt great to finally get a win with my football family, and it was a well deserved win," senior Braxton Haas said.

After a win, the boys were fired up for sectionals. They knew it was going to be a battle, but they were ready to fight.

The team's season came to a close after they lost to the Roncalli Rebels in the first round of sectionals. They put up a good fight, but failed to pull out the win. As the clock ran down, the boys were devastated that the season was over.

Senior Cody Cannon looks onto the field as the defense takes the field. Cannon played the position of quarterback and broke four records his senior year. "It's been a long wait to get to this point in my life. I'm glad my team chose me to lead them and I am honored to be a part of the Mooresville football program," Cannon said.

Runningback Kyle Wise runs the ball with the end zone in sight. A defender attempted to bring Wise down while he ran the ball. "We played well in that game, if we would have had more time we could have won," Wise said.

Sophomore Tristan Shelley jumps to block a field goal. Shelley had the opportunity to play some varsity as well. "Playing varsity as a sophomore was great, I even had the most sacks on the team," Shelley said.

by Alex Langford, Victoria Lindsay and Emily Warfield

The defense takes their position to attempt to stop the opposing team's offense. The defense worked throughout the entire season to keep the offense from scoring. "The season went pretty well, if we would have worked even harder than we did I feel like the we would have been even better than we were," junior Randy Scott said.

Sophomore Brady Bain escapes from a defender. Brady was new to the football program his sophomore year. "Getting that extra yard for the team gets us that much closer to getting those seven points," Bain said.

Wide receiver Zeke O'Dell looks to the sideline to inform the referee that they were set and ready. O'Dell played wide receiver. "Letting the referees know we are ready is always important," O'Dell said.

The offensive line gets set for the call to set the play in motion. JV was made up of mostly sophomores and juniors. "Playing this year was great. It was fun getting to play on the field with all of my friends," junior Grant West said.

Fresh on the Field

The air was crisp and the players knew the summer was coming to an end as the freshman took the field for their first high school football game. The team had prepared all summer with exhausting practices several days throughout the week. The boys were geared up and ready to show their fans what they had worked so hard for.

"It was a great summer and season with some great friends," freshman Braxton Neighbors said.

It was an early Saturday morning when the junior varsity finally got to show what they were made of. The fields were coated with dew and the boys rushed out onto the field to take on their first opponent. They took on the Lebanon Tigers for their first game and showed everyone what they could do on the field.

Junior varsity and the freshman football teams both came together during their early morning games often times they would take turns having home field advantage.

"Although it was a hard season, we stayed strong. We were still a band of brothers," sophomore Alex Fabert said.

The team's hard work had paid off and the boys gave the season everything they had. The countless hours of practices that the boys gave up their summer to attend were worth it in the long run. From the wins to the losses, both teams went out and gave it their all.

"These young men had a great season and learned many new skills that they will carry throughout their high school football careers," coach Spangler said.

The weather conditions of every game were not ideal, but by the end of the season the team really came together as one. The freshman team ended their season 3-3-1 and the JV was 2-5.

Freshman quarterback

Chris Dotlich looks onto the defense to hold the opposing team's offense. The freshman team were able to play the first half of their game against Whiteland at home before the rain moved in.

Freshman football coach huddles up the team during a game. The game was muddy, but the boys pushed through and kept their focus the entire game. "I had a great time playing with my friends and I enjoyed getting to know the coaches," freshman Nicholas Hawkins said.

Making Goals

The 2013 Lady Pioneers girls soccer team succeeded in having a fun, successful season. During the summer, before the season started, the team met to come up with goals that they wanted to reach.

Of course, not every single goal was met, but the most important goal to the team was to always be supportive and motivate each other.

"It's important for the team to be supportive of each other because it creates less drama and it's a better playing atmosphere for everyone," senior captain Emilee Eickman said.

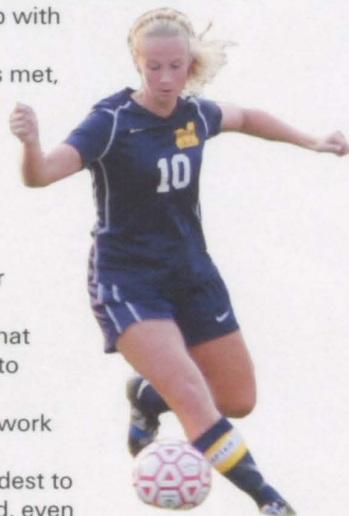

All of the girls on the team agreed that this was an important goal for everyone to achieve.

The girls used this goal as a way to work together and win games.

"I think that we always tried our hardest to be encouraging to each other on the field, even when we made mistakes," junior captain Kellie Cavanaugh said.

The team finished their season sooner than they wanted, but it was a great season for everyone.

"The season went well for us. We learned to work together as a team," coach Jason Damron said.

Freshman Savannah Phipps takes the ball down the field hoping to score a goal. The season was many of the JV members first year of high school soccer. "My freshman season was great! I love the team, and I look forward to playing with them for the next few years," Phipps said.

by Jordan Childers, Tara Davis and Sarah Ray

Sophomore Kaylenna Sanders goes in for a goal kick. She played defense during the season. "I like playing defense because it's always a challenge to keep your side of the field safe," Sanders said.

Junior Halie Gardner tries to get around Decatur's defense to score a goal. The Pioneers defeated the Hawks. "I saw a chance to get around the defender and make a run up the field for a chance to score," Gardner said.

Junior Liz Allen battles for the ball against the hawks. The lady pioneers came and backed Liz up and took the ball down the field. "Having my teammates always there to support me really motivates me and makes me work harder. I know that they will always be there when I need them," Allen said.

Senior Alex Langford helps her teammates by taking the ball away from Decatur. There was a lot of senior leadership on the team. "Having four captains on the team was great," Langford said. "We all knew we had different leadership roles on the field."

Sophomore Audrey Sims takes off with the ball and progresses towards the goal. The lady pioneers pushed on for a win over Center Grove. "We knew it would be a tough game and we would have to play hard," Sims said.

Senior Nathan Montgomery battles the Perry Meridian Falcons for the ball. The Pioneers ended up losing 1-6. "It was a hard fought game, but this season was a good way to end my soccer career," Montgomery said.

Sophomore

Matt Faber looks for an open teammate to pass the ball to. The JV team fought hard but had a tough loss against the Decatur Hawks. "It was a very physical game," Faber said. "The tension between us and Decatur is always high and it makes the game more exciting for the fans to watch."

Senior Jack Elo tosses the ball back into action. The boys went on to defeat Bloomington North. "We worked really hard throughout the season. We started off slow, but got better as the season went on," Elo said.

The boys soccer team has eight seniors. They played a large role in the leadership of the team during the season. "The seniors were great leaders, they always set a good example for the rest of us," sophomore James Owen said.

Sophomore Michael Ronan returns the ball back to his teammates, after blocking it from Bloomington North. This was Ronan's first year as the starting goalie for the varsity team. "I felt very honored to be in such an important position," Ronan said. "I really felt that I played well this year, but I couldn't have done it without my teammates."

by Jordan Childers and Sarah Ray

Senior Cory Sims attempts to break through Perry Meridian's defense to score a goal. Sims ended up scoring the only goal for Mooresville. "I was excited to score the only goal because at that time it put us back in the game," Sims said.

Kicking It

The green grass clippings flew through the air as the boys made their way down the field to many victories. All of their fans cheered them on and supported them throughout their journey.

The boys kicked their way to Sectionals. With a record of eight wins, seven losses, and two ties, they were a team to beat. The Pioneers started off slow, but they progressed as the season went on.

"We had a rough start, but we ended strong and we gave it everything we had throughout the season," senior Austin Wagner said.

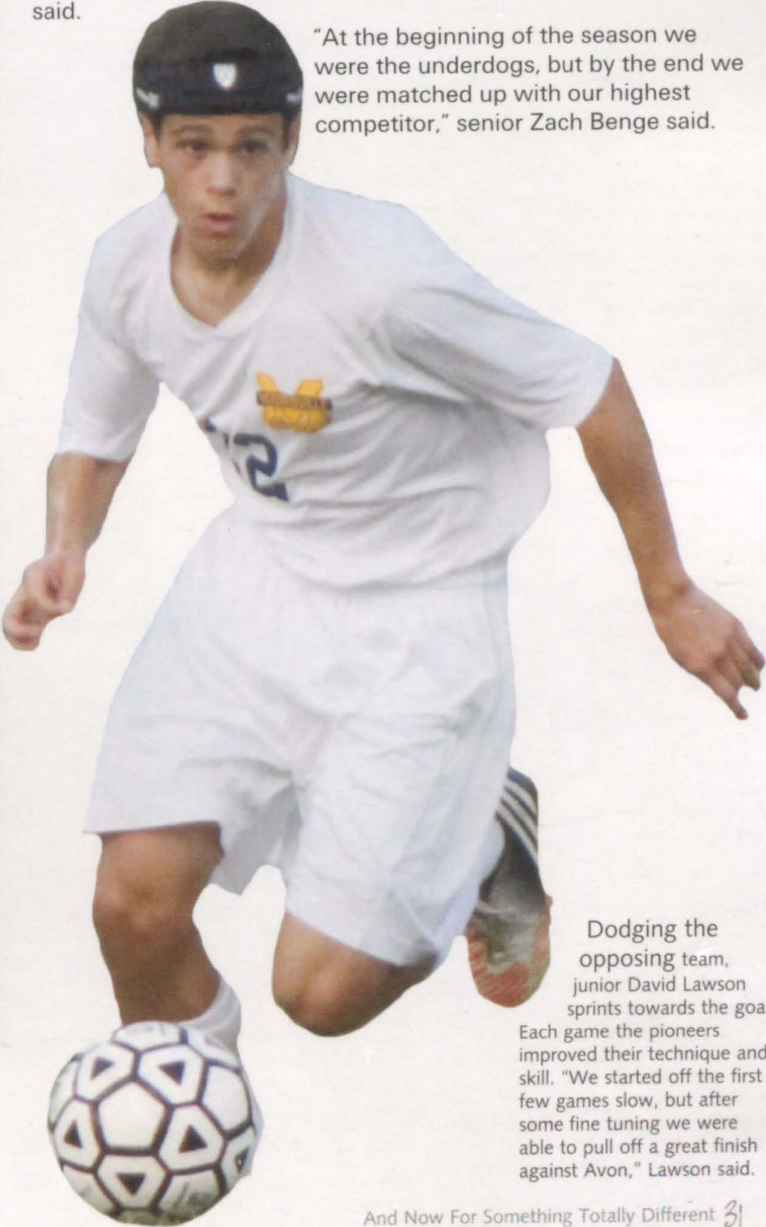

The Pioneers never gave up after a loss and they never lost sight of what mattered the most: teamwork. As many teams do, they made the best out of what they could.

"It was an awesome season and a great team to be a part of and I can't wait for next season," junior Hunter Koch said.

The boys made it all the way to the first round of Sectionals against Avon. They fought a hard battle, but ended up losing to the Avon Orioles.

"I am really proud of the boys for putting up a fight against Avon the entire time and never giving up," Coach Jack Polson said.

"At the beginning of the season we were the underdogs, but by the end we were matched up with our highest competitor," senior Zach Bengé said.

Dodging the opposing team, junior David Lawson sprints towards the goal. Each game the pioneers improved their technique and skill. "We started off the first few games slow, but after some fine tuning we were able to pull off a great finish against Avon," Lawson said.

Junior Jourdan Blackburn tees off at a home match at Heartland. Jourdan reached two big goals this season. "I had the best score of my whole career," Blackburn said.

Building Unity On And Off The Green

This season for the Girls Golf team was successful. When it came down to the attitude of the team and the friendships made everyone felt like they had reached being more than just team mates.

The girls worked really well together and had a great time off the course as well. When asked about the season the girls all had positive input and each had a great story to tell.

"The best part was having a good time with the girls before they leave for college," junior Dana Nokes said.

The 2013-2014 season finished with a record of six wins and four losses all together. At invitationals the score is not kept as a win or loss though. And at many matches the records are kept on the individual golfer, not the team as a whole. At the Shelbyville Invitational the Pioneers took second place. "Having the level of just sheer enjoyment of working with everyone in the program especially the top six who did a really good job of maximizing their talents," Coach Jeffrey Franklin said.

At the Mid-State Tourney the Pioneer's advanced to sectionals where they took third place. They competed in regionals and placed eighth overall. Danielle Warthen moved onto state as an individual.

"This year was much more enjoyable than last year. The weather was perfect and it was so amazing to be there as a team. And to advance to state," Warthen said.

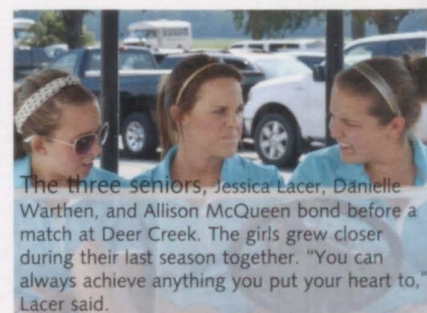

Danielle Warthen walks to the tee box at Deer Creek. Danielle was the first female golfer from Mooresville to compete in State. "Golf has taught me a lot these past six years. It has taught me honesty and integrity," senior Warthen said.

Amanda Gifford swings herself out of a bad lie. Amanda really enjoyed her third season. "The season was an awesome season. I enjoyed getting to know all of the seniors and it was hard to watch them leave," junior Gifford said.

Molly Tieman puts across the green. Molly enjoyed the last year she had on the team. "It was such a great experience with these girls," senior Tieman said.

The three seniors, Jessica Lacer, Danielle Warthen, and Allison McQueen bond before a match at Deer Creek. The girls grew closer during their last season together. "You can always achieve anything you put your heart to," Lacer said.

Starting With Love

Sophomore John Fleischman strikes a ball back at the opponent. John wanted to accomplish some goals this season. "I expected to win some matches and I did just that," Fleischman said.

Volley It Back

Last season was a year of growth and life lessons. Although the team didn't make it as far as it wanted to, they did grow in bonding and learned much about themselves and the sport of tennis. Many student athletes and even Coach Teders felt like this season was full of valuable lessons to carry on as they further themselves in life.

"Tennis has taught me that when you get down in life, you have to stay positive and keep fighting," junior Peyton Baker said.

Sophomore TJ Wallman felt the same way.

"For one, tennis has taught me that even when you aren't winning, you can't stop trying," Wallman said.

Not only was last season a year of learning but it was also a year of growth as a team; as each player learned to play cooperatively, in each of their unique roles.

"I really learned that you need to slow down and understand that if you don't work as a team, you can't be successful," sophomore Darien Hamilton said.

"This season has taught us all, that hard work and dedication does pay off eventually," Coach Teders said.

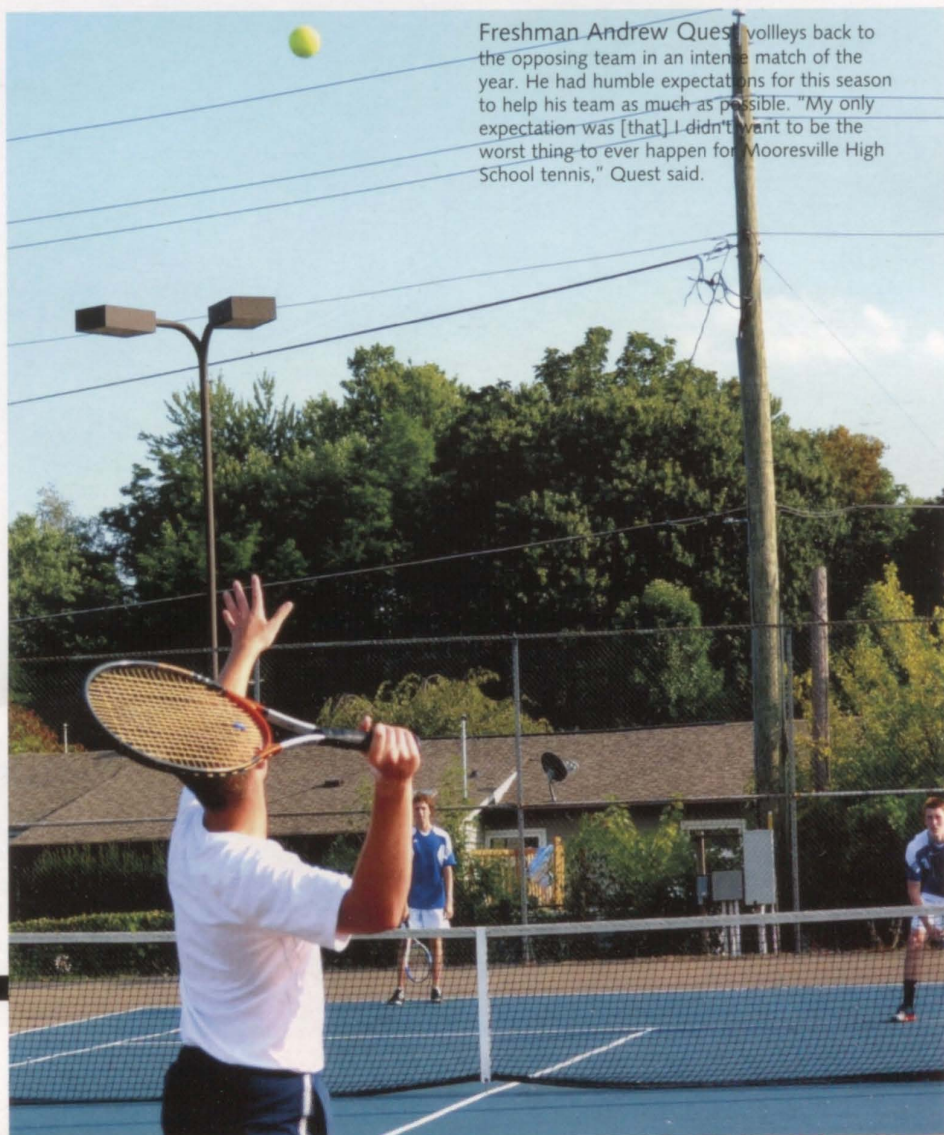

Senior Alex Teders works on his volleying skills before the match. He had big goals and was ready to carry his team far. "I'm prepared to be the best leader this tennis team has ever seen," senior Alex Teders said.

Sophomore David Freund returns a strategically placed serve by the opposing team. This was David's second year of being apart of the boy's tennis team. "I am going to go hard in training and I am ready to get back out there for my team," Freund said.

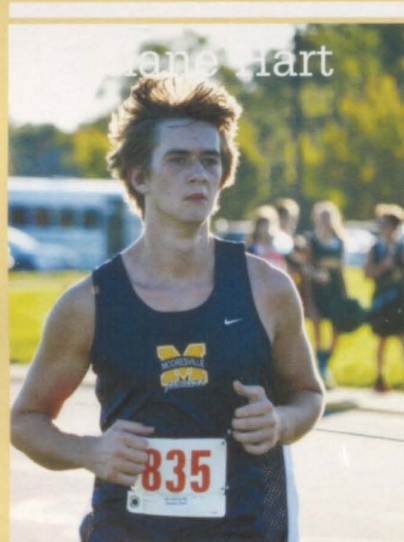

Freshman Andrew Quest volleys back to the opposing team in an intense match of the year. He had humble expectations for this season to help his team as much as possible. "My only expectation was [that] I didn't want to be the worst thing to ever happen for Mooresville High School tennis," Quest said.

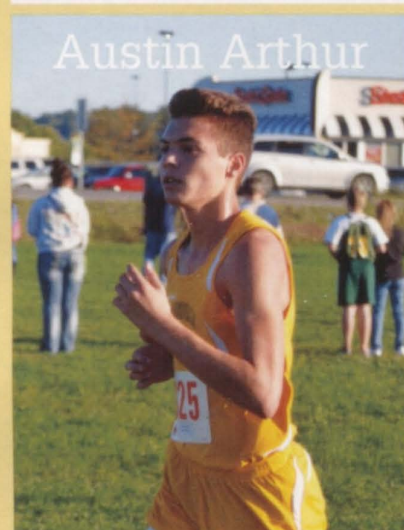

Maddie Vauters

Freshman Maddie Vauters runs at one of their meets. This was Vauters' first time ever being in cross country. "I feel like I did pretty well for my first time every running Cross Country," Vauters said.

Shane Hart

Senior Shane Hart stays in focus for the finish line. This was Hart's last year on the team. "I started out really terrible, but then I improved a lot at the end of the season," Hart said.

Austin Arthur

Sophomore Austin Arthur races in Martinsville. Arthur's best time was 19:24 minutes. "I improved my time by three minutes from last year," Arthur said.

“Watch out for the chicane.”

- Brett Hoffman

Chicane

“All cross country races have an official at the starting-line who describes the course and fires the gun. At one particular race, we had an elderly official describing the course to us, and the last comment he made was to 'watch out for the chicane!' None of us knew what a chicane was, and it became a running joke among the team because we assumed it was just old man gibberish; However, we later found out a chicane was an obstacle, and the official was referring to a sharp turn in the course. Nonetheless, 'chicane' became the word we would chant during our pre-race team huddles. We even had 'chicane' written on our team shirts!” senior Brett Hoffman said.

Junior Quinn Cavin runs at the Martinsville meet on Tuesday, October 8th. This was his third year on the team, and accomplished his best time of 17:32 minutes. "I've learned over the years that running doesn't get any easier, you just find new ways to make yourself better," Cavin said.

Sophomore Megan Phillips runs in the Martinsville meet on Tuesday, October 8th. She put in a lot of hours of hard work before she realized the season was over. "It's over before you realize you're even tired. Don't take a moment of joy or pain for granted," Phillips said.

by Shelby Gregory and Blake Ross

Running Out of Time

From a team perspective, the cross country team did great. The girls team qualified for semi-state and also came in second at mid-state conference.

Before any of their meets, all of the runners put many hours into improving their time for the upcoming meet.

"I normally feel great [when I run in a meet]," senior Eric Johnson said. "It's nice to show what all the hard work pays off for."

For many of the runners, it was their last year on the cross country team.

"I am going to miss all the underclassmen friends. I loved watching the team grow," Senior Paige Baker said.

When the season gets closer and closer to an end, Coach Adam Hook felt the team as a whole improved continuously throughout the season because of their hard work, and set the foundation for success in the years to come.

"Overall, their effort as a team enabled them to have a successful season," Hook said.

Cross country members Peyton Lindley, Sarah Ignas, Morgan Susman, Maddie Vauders, Megan Phillips, Amelia Phillips, and Hannah Outcalt. These girls put in a lot of effort to earn those awards in this meet. "Our team practices and races as a family," Outcalt said.

Freshman Samantha Walsh celebrates after a successful solo block during the set. Walsh came onto the varsity team unsure of what was ahead of her. "I really didn't expect to make varsity as a freshman, nor did I expect a starting spot. I was happy that I had made the JV team, but when coach asked me to play varsity I got really nervous. With help of the other varsity girls and my coaches I fit right in with them." Walsh said.

What are they doing?

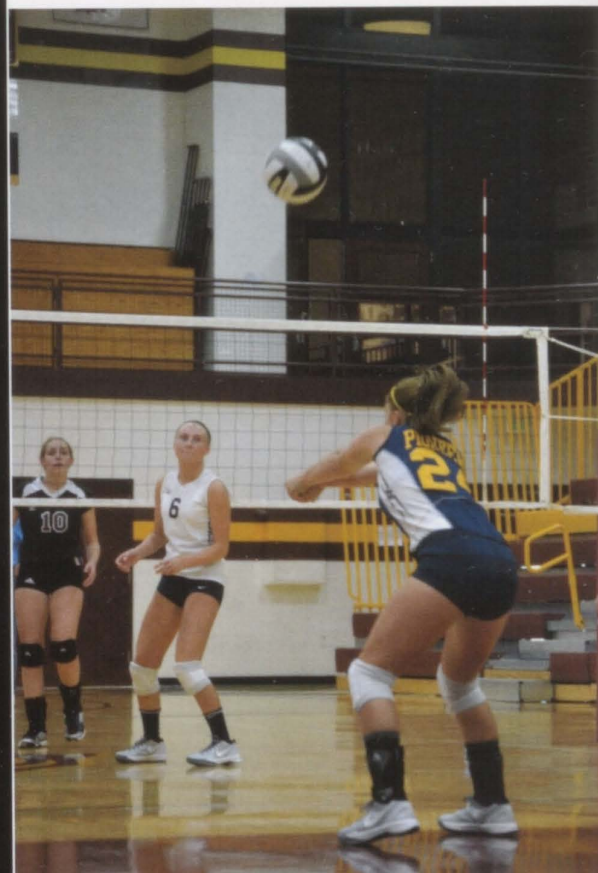

In volleyball, there is a front row and a back row. It is the duty of the front row to display hand signals to the back row so they know where certain players are on the opposing team.

The setter is back row.

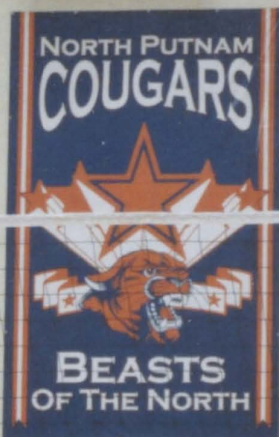

There are two front row hitters.

Sophomore Emma Stewart directs a perfect pass to freshman setter Grayson Cross. Stewart played libero for the JV team and also saw some varsity action throughout the season. "I was always running all over the court during games because it was my job to get the hardest passes. I had to become a very quick reactor because I knew the ball was coming right back at me," Stewart said.

The lady pioneers stay in "ready position" in the event that their opponents send the ball back over. Their opponents frequently sent the ball back with only one contact. "We can't ever take our eye off the ball because we never know when they might dish it back," sophomore Sarah Ray said.

Spoken Word Submission. Unity.

It was the beginning of a new era in Mooresville volleyball. The team was completely reinvented. Under the new coaching of Jim Wheeler, the team was reshaped by Wheeler's motto, "spoken word, submission, unity." The three phrases simply meant: communication, trust, and togetherness. By doing all three, Wheeler assured that the season would be successful, no matter what the final record showed.

"I knew from the beginning of the summer that this team would not be the same team by the time the school season started," said varsity head coach Mr. Jim Wheeler, "I took an entirely new approach to this team. I didn't care what the ending score was, I wanted them to be great. Once sectionals rolled around, they were right where we had predicted. They had peaked. Although we couldn't clench the win against Terre Haute, our team came out of nowhere and made plays they hadn't attempted all season. Their effort to be great made them great."

During practices, the teams always finished a drill. No matter how long it took. Drills sometimes lasted the full two hours of practice.

"Our whole team had to serve one-by-one to the same spot on the floor. Once someone missed, we had to run a set of lines. (We ran 27 sets of lines throughout the practice.) At first we were all frustrated with one another because we'd get about halfway then someone would miss, but after we realized the point of the drill, we knew that we needed to encourage each other and unify. After we did that, the drill became much easier. Needless to say we all cheered after we finished the drill," said freshman Lindsee Dye.

Although their record was unable to show it, the team showed great improvement throughout the season. The team's new head coach was very pleased with the success of the team's ability to adapt to his way of coaching.

"We'll be better next season. We just have to work harder," junior Taylor Waldrip said.

"I really enjoyed playing on Coach [Brandy] Sawyer's team. She helped me on and off the court. Our team meshed really well together and we had a lot of fun during our season," sophomore Caitlyn Combs said.

"Our season was very different from the last few seasons because our new coach came from Circle City and has been around volleyball all his life. He taught us proper techniques and made sure we got them right before we moved on. He really helped strengthen our serve receive which gave us opportunity to run plays, which we've been unable to do in the past," senior Haley Chitwood said.

"It was big change from middle school to high school. We realized we each had to take on new roles in order for our team to be successful. We had a good season once everyone knew where they were supposed to be," freshman Shelby Fink said.

Winter

December-February

King and Queen, seniors Jacob Tooley and Ariel Halstead, welcome guests to the dinner and initiate the first ballad of the night. The king and queen were elected by the members of Madrigals. "The experience was truly exhilarating, I felt like 'The Princess Bride.' I wore an exact replica of Princess Diana's crown. Jacob was a fun king and kept the night lively," Halstead said.

The males of Madrigals prove their masculinity by singing and dancing to the song "Men in Tights." This was a choral department tradition that had been going strong for nine years. "This song was the comic relief for the comic relief," senior Matt Walker said. "My favorite part was the kick line and the girly 'laa laa laahs'," senior Kyle Hurt said.

Maryssa Small, the Jester:

"Ladies and gentlemen, it's time for The Royal Feud!"

Madrigals perform their own version of The Lonely Island's infamous song, "I'm on a Boat." They had the idea to create this spoof to be a random surprise that happened in the middle of their "Royal Feud" game show skit. One of the contestants decided to answer a question asked to her by singing a song, which the whole choir joined in on with background vocals and dance. They all had their own sunglasses and or hats to put on during this performance. "It was pretty neat because I got to rap and wear my favorite hat," senior Alivia Duerlinger said.

All eyes are on Kayla Covey as she takes a shot. The players displayed great sportsmanship during the game. Even on opposing teams, everyone wanted to see their friends succeed. "My favorite part was when I scored a basket. I felt great and happy," sophomore Covey said.

The cheerleaders encourage the student section, also known as the Curry Crazies, to get pumped up in an effort to "spread the word to end the word." All fans joined in on the "do it" cheer, which consisted of jumping up and down and dancing. "The Curry Crazies was started by two anonymous juniors. "The goal of Curry Crazies is to be the number one student section in Indiana, baby! The student section was extra hyped because the game was against our biggest rivalry: Decatur," junior Jacob Archer said."

Champions Together

"Spread the Word to End the Word" was a campaign created by Kelly Schreiner, an inspirational Hoosier who had down syndrome.

In an effort to spread the word around the school, IHSAA Ambassador, junior Gracie Norton, organized a basketball game to break the status quo for the image of a champion.

Students faced with the challenges of living with special needs teamed up with student athletes. Once the teams were decided, practices began.

"The practices were a lot of fun," sophomore Adolfo Perez said.

All the practicing led up to the big night: Mooresville vs. Decatur. The Curry Center was packed, and the champions were eagerly awaiting their debut during half-time.

The teams ran out from either side of the gym and the student section was up on their feet.

"I was so happy when we all ran out and people all around us were cheering," Perez said.

Although the players had practiced on two separate teams, everyone wanted to see their friends succeed. All the players, no matter what team they rostered for, encouraged one another.

"The practices were great, but during the actual event it was evident that it was successful. All of the cheerleaders and basketball players wearing the 'Spread the Word to End the Word' shirts was very powerful. Also, the entire student section was very supportive. I think the whole night went amazingly," Mrs. Amy Selby said.

A grand total of $4,722.40 was raised for the Special Olympics of Indiana. A portion of the profits went to Special Olympics Morgan County.

"It was an honor and a privilege for me to be a part of Champions Together and help raise awareness for athletes with intellectual disabilities. It was their night to shine and that's exactly what they did. I was overwhelmed by the display of support from our fans, as well as the fans of the opposing team," Norton said.

Senior Trace Rooks storms the court with his teammates. Some younger students who didn't attend MHS, like Trace's sidekick Jackson, were able to participate in the big game. "It was great for me as well as all of the players. Jackson played great and I had a blast getting to know him," Rooks said.

Freshman Makayla Morris learns her new combination to her locker. All of the lockers up stairs were replaced with two rows of wider lockers in Mooresville blue. "I like how wide they are, I wish they were taller and have a shelf in them for books and folders," Morris said.

Freshman Andrew Sanders fills his new locker with all of his school books, folders, and notebooks. The freshmen were the first to receive the new lockers that would go throughout the school. "I'm glad I got a top locker, but I wish that they had a shelf," Sanders said.

Every year students that take Mrs. Melanie Kassen's Advanced Theatre Arts classes get to write plays for the next years Theatre Arts classes to perform. The class writes two different winter plays. The two that were written the 2012-13 year were, "Santa's New Elves" written by Junior Sidney Bills and MHS graduate Cadey Goings, and "Wonderland" written by MHS graduate MacKinsey Taylor.

"Both of the plays were well written and were really cute," Kassen said.

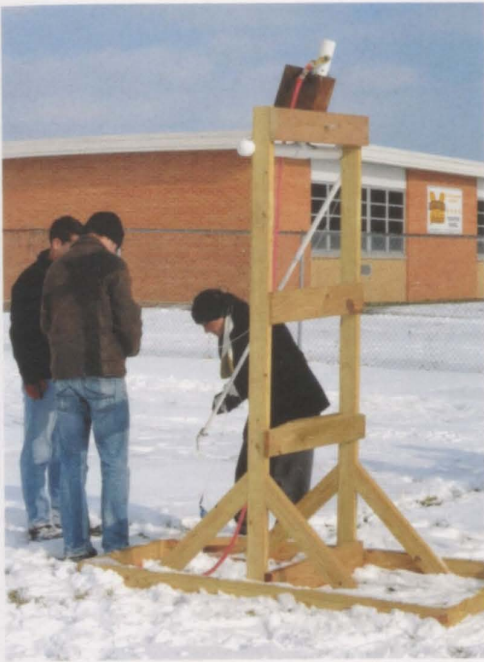

The play "Santa's New Elves" was about how Santa needed more elves, so he set out to have an "American Idol" like contest to see who would become the new elves. Senior Matt Walker played the part of Rudolph in the play "Santa's New Elves."

"It was a good experience. Being my senior year, I wanted to try something new and this happened to be it," Walker said.

"Wonderland" was based on the story of Alice and Wonderland.

"It was hectic, and I was super nervous," junior Noah Pike said.

Seniors Jackie Harris, Grant Langley, and Logan Allen all work together to show their teacher how well their trebuchet works. The group worked hard on their project to get a good grade. "Our trebuchet took many weeks of careful planning and problem solving. Unfortunately, it probably would not knock down a sand castle," Langley said.

The group prepares to launch their baseball out of their trebuchet. They had to build their projects by themselves. "We were all surprised it worked as well as it did since we didn't have any previous knowledge of how to build a trebuchet," senior Jessica McDaniel said.

Loading the trebuchet, senior Ryan Crafts helps his group with their project. They tested the trebuchet multiple times. "We were just happy that our trebuchet worked every time we launched it and it didn't kill us," Crafts said.

Student Council makes winter decorations for the nursing home in Mooresville. The group met before school to finish up the decorations so they could be delivered later that day. "It felt really good to make the decorations for the nursing homes, so that they could have a little bit of Christmas cheer in their rooms," sophomore Marguax Zook said.

Anatomy classes cover skulls with clay to show what the muscular system looks like. Each person had to show where each muscle was and the muscles had to have dimension. "It was really cool to get to see where each muscle in my face was," junior Drake Bevans said.

Class Act

During the month of December students participated in LIA finals that involved presentations and hands on projects. Students also participated in giving back to the community as well.

Mr. Burgess' sophomore World History class does a presentation about what went wrong in the Roman government. They had the honor to dress like the Roman people. "Learning about the Roman government was really interesting," sophomore Kaleb Owens said.

Elizabeth Palmer Peabody visits Ms. Gilly's American Studies class. Junior Bethany Frink had presented the class as Elizabeth for their final semester project. "It was really fun being able to dress up and it helped us understand what it was like to be in their shoes in that time period," Frink said.

Junior Austin Webster plays the role of Henry David Thoreau in his American Studies class. Every person had the chance to dress as the person they drew to research about. "Researching the people and getting to dress as them, and finding out whether or not they supported slavery, really helped increase the amount you learned about the person," Webster said.

Taking Over the Court

12.15.13-12.28.13

The boys basketball team is shown on the big screen. This was their first game at Banker's Life Fieldhouse. "It was so cool to play where the pros do," senior Chase Smith said.

Junior Brian Strong goes in for a layup against a player from Edgewood. This was one of many varsity games for Brian as a junior. "It was an experience I will never forget," Strong said.

Pioneer's Go Pro

Junior Clay Hibler goes up for a layup against a defender from Edgewood. Clay was a starter for the boys' varsity team. "This game woke a lot of people up about our teams abilities and the way we play together," Hibler said.

12.21.13

Cold chills began as the boys stepped onto the court during their first game at Bankers Life Fieldhouse. The team played Edgewood in hopes to take home another victory.

This was the first game Mooresville was invited to play at Bankers Life Fieldhouse. The team had played a successful season and were hoping for another win.

"These boys have worked hard and made this season awesome for everyone. It was nice to play in a new place," coach Auggy Brewer said.

Tickets for this game went on sale almost a month before the game, insuring that the boys would have a large crowd. There was talk all around the school and the excitement was unbearable.

Several students came to support the team on the cold December day. The court was much larger than the one our students had been used to all season, but this was no challenge for the winning team.

The boys had no fear of the court or the team they had faced. Just like past times, they went out and gave it their all.

"All of the support that the boys had from parents and students created a great atmosphere to be in," sophomore Teylor Ellis said.

This game was an experience nobody had been able to have and was a special time for all of Mooresville High School.

"It was a great win, fun atmosphere, and exciting experience for our team," senior Keith Kassen said.

The boys came out with a bang and brought home another win for the team.

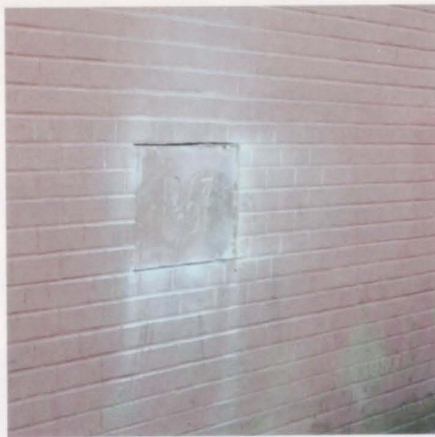

The Mooresville cheerleaders cheer at the Bankers Life Fieldhouse game. They were shown on the big screen during the team's game against Edgewood. "It was fun to be able to cheer for the boys in such a large place," senior Shawna Marino said.

Cheerleaders and players pose as they get their picture taken at Bankers Life Fieldhouse. After winning the game they all came together for a memorable picture. "It was great to be able to share this moment with my teammates," senior Jonathan Hurt said.

Digging Up the Past

As the construction progresses two men pull out the 1967 capstone from the brick of Mooresville High School. Everyone was hoping to find a time capsule behind it, because of the one found earlier behind a different capstone. On the morning of December 19th, all people were invited to witness this taken out. To the surprise of everyone, the capstone was empty.

New Year, New Me. What's your resolution?

My New Year's resolution is to get straight A's for the rest of the year," sophomore Kaleb Owens said.

"My New Year's resolution is to get people, along with myself, more involved with the community. I think it is important for us as teenagers to stay involved and help out around us," senior Maddy Cooper said.

My New Year's resolution last year was to not drink soda all year and I did it. I plan to have the same resolution this year," junior Ashley Kelley said.

Mooresville Winter Guard running through their flag feature. The songs gave the performance and eerie feel. "I had to learn a whole new flag feature and perform it that weekend, it was hard, but it was worth the struggle," freshman Krystyna Barden said.

A New Nightmare for the Guard

It was late January and Mooresville High School's Winter guard had spent weeks preparing for the Greenfield Central competition. They had chosen to dance to songs from Tim Burton's "A Nightmare Before Christmas." The Guard had been successful at the previous competitions before.

"We did two camps, one in December and one in early January, where we worked for twenty-seven hours or more on perfecting our show," senior Nick Allman said.

There were nine other schools competing in the competition, but Mooresville's guard came out on top to take home the first place trophy.

This was the first time that the Mooresville winter Guard had won first place in a show.

"I screamed and looked at my friends when we found out we won first place, I couldn't believe it. We had never gotten first place before," senior Cheyenne Lowe said.

Once people heard how well the guard was performing, they would fight their way to the seats so that they made sure they could see them perform. All their long hours of camp and work had paid off. The team came together when the time was important and came through for each other.

"We really pushed them outside their comfort zones and they adapted pretty well," coach Chris Sparks said.

Later on in the season, the guard would continue to place and earn high scores in future competitions.

Superintendent to Lead the Way

Mooresville High School welcomed new Superintendent David Marcotte. Marcotte had been the the Chief Personnel for Wayne Township since 2006 and was announced as the new Superintendent on January 9 at Mooresville's School Board meeting.

"I am thrilled and privileged for the opportunity to serve the Mooresville community as Superintendent of Schools," said Marcotte. "I look forward to working with students, staff, and families in continuing the rich tradition of successful and inspiring educational experiences in the Mooresville Schools."

While serving for Wayne Township Marcotte created new teacher and administration evaluation models, negotiated contracts, and assignments for the school for over 2,300 employees. Marcotte enrolled in Indiana State University for doctoral studies and has received his Educational Specialist degree from Indiana State also.

"David Marcotte's experience and expertise were key factors in our selection of him as our superintendent. The School Board asked our staff for their input on selecting a new superintendent... Mr. Marcotte rose to the top from twenty-three candidates," said Mooresville School Board President Dr. William Roberson.

The Mooresville countryside covered in snow made for a photogenic scene. Many students went outside to document the foot of snow on Instagram, Twitter, Tumblr, and Facebook. Most hashtagged their photos "#Indianasnowpocalypse". Though Sophomore Olivia Carlton loves taking photos, she was done with snow covered countryside for good. "It was the final straw for me. It was this long, grueling, less-than-rad winter that reassured me that I'd be moving to the coast asap," Carlton said.

The empty bread aisle at Meijer grocery store the day before the snowpocalypse. It wasn't just the bread aisle that was wiped clean. The milk, eggs and produce sections were cleared out due to families stocking up on food for the week to come. "Working those nights at Meijer were really stressful. Many of us didn't think that that many people would wait until the last minute to buy groceries. All I did that night was stock shelves constantly," senior Maddy Cooper said.

No school for five days? #SnowVerit

On the night of January 5, 2014 many Mooresville families and most of the midwest finished stocking up on food such as milk, bread, eggs, and many other necessities.

"It was crazy. The milk, bread, and produce aisles were totally empty," Junior Dani Quinlin said.

Just like Quinlin's experience many families witnessed the same thing.

While everyone was stocking up for the "snowpocalypse," as many called it, Indianapolis Mayor Greg Ballard announced that he strongly encouraged all businesses and schools to close until Wednesday, due to the amount of snow and the dangerously cold temperatures.

That night, Mooresville and all of central Indiana received upwards of 12 inches of snow. The next day temperatures reached a low of -40 degrees.

With the extremely low temperatures due to the polar vortex, liquids almost froze immediately. Many students took boiling water and threw it outside it turned to snow. Many found this out when it felt like -40 degrees outside.

"At first I didn't think that it would work, but once I tried it I was amazed. The wind blew it in my face too," Senior Abbey Prilliman said.

With the extremely low temperature many businesses and all schools closed. With no school for a week, many teachers lesson plans were set back. Though not all teachers plans were ruin.

"My experience at Mooresville high school has provided me the opportunity to accelerate my ability to be flexible and adapt. Thus, my "lesson plans" were not really compromised," English teacher Jason Zollman said.

Eagle Pines golf course is covered in 12 inches of snow making Mooresville a winter wonderland. Many Mooresville high school students went out to play in the winter wonderland. Though it did not last long due to the -40 degree wind chill Many students enjoyed the snow for the first few days, but quickly got tired of it. "It was fun the first few days, but by day three I was tired of being stuck inside all day," senior Maddie Grimes said.

Winter Homecoming 1.24.14

"[I decorated my guitar] because it was all my favorite songs. I love music, it's kinda my life, and I wanted it as a piece of artwork to have in my room."
- Sophomore Lucy Newton

Junior Madi McGuire looks in fear as she sees another student dressed as a gorilla in her broadcast class. Students took advantage of all the spirit days, including the safari theme and dressed as outgoing and creative as they could. The spirit days were chosen by the athletic department with help from a few selected students. The spirit days were used to get the student body to work together to support the girls and boys' basketball teams, and get the students more excited for the game. Best dressed spirit contests were also held by Mrs. Selby every morning before class to see who had the most school spirit. "I like dressing up for the spirit days because it boosts the basketball players mentality for the game, and lets them know they have support from their classmates," McGuire said.

Senior Jesse Cordray wins the title of Winter Homecoming King for the Senior class. He wasn't able to hold back from smiling, because he was thankful that his classmates voted for him. "It was a real honor to get to be the homecoming king," Cordray said. "It made me proud to be an American, where we get have the freedom to vote."

Senior Rachel Wathen smiles with joy as her name is called for the 2014 Winter Homecoming queen. She was one of five women in the final elections. "It was definitely such a blessing to receive the title of homecoming queen," Wathen said. "It's hard to explain how thankful and humbled I was to find out the student body had chosen me to be crowned."

Senior Jacob Johnson attempts to block a shot from a Plainfield opponent. He was one of the leading scorers in the winter homecoming game, helping the team with a 63-44 victory. "I was ready to go to battle with my teammates," Johnson said.

The two winners of the blue and gold spirit day on Friday prepare to pie Mr. Brian Disney in the face. The boys loved having the opportunity to not only win best dressed, but pie their principal in the face. "Welcome to Mooresville, Mr. Disney," sophomore Alex McKinney said.

Instead of giving senior speeches during the pep rally, the senior winter sports athletes let "J-Money" spit a rap for the entire student body. Junior John Green wrote a rap for the homecoming game, that got the teachers, students, and especially the basketball players fired up, and ready to win. "I liked rapping at the pep session. I liked the way that the basketball players, cheerleaders, teachers, and students liked it," Green said.

Senior Jonathan Hurt shoots a three during the boys varsity game. He made all his shots that game against Plainfield. "I knew it was going in the moment it left my hand," Hurt said.

Junior Kellie Cavanaugh lines up to shoot a free throw during the girls winter homecoming game. The varsity girls played before the boys team, and ended up winning 73-32. "I step to the line, and hear the swish every time," Cavanaugh said.

Junior Chloe Murphy holds out the banner's before the start of the boys varsity game. The banner's were a new object the cheerleader's used to announce the starters of the game. "Our coaches made the banners when they were in high school, and they wanted to bring them back," Murphy said.

Clear!

Choir members finished their pizzas and moved them down the assembly line for the next topping. After the pizzas were sold, the choirs put pizzas together for hours to fill the orders. A group of students and parents were responsible for certain portions of the pizza and teamed up to get them finished.

"Working with your friends and people you don't know makes the job a lot more fun," junior Kelsey Deaton said.

The students and parents did everything from making the pizzas to putting the boxes together. Mooresville choirs have made pizzas for years because of how successful the fundraiser was. The members relied on it to help pay for all of their outfits which could be costly.

"The pizza fundraiser is great because we don't get a lot of funds and students get around $5.00 for every pizza they make," Mr. Jason Damron said. "This year I was a cheeser!"

Though making pizzas was to help raise money, the students that participated enjoyed it for other reasons as well. They worked together and got to know one another better. Mr. Damron and his students made the process fun to help pass the time.

"Each year when you finish your job in the assembly line you have to yell out clear," junior Abby Crump said. "Mr. Damron created the clear check system to be funny."

Freshman Katie Collins helps her choir make pizzas to raise money. This was her first year making them for show choir. "I thought making pizzas was a lot of fun because it was something we could all do together and it helped us all bond," Collins said.

Keeping Warm In the Winter

Each morning wake up and put your warmest clothes on to go outside and face the day. With temperatures being extremely low most days of the week, students find ways to stay warm and still look good. Some of the most popular trends of the season are knitted scarves, scrunched socks on top of leggings, leather boots, and comfy sweaters. This seasons trends allow girls to stay warm and comfortable.

Scarves

Sophomore Abby Wilson tops her outfit off with a grey knit scarf. She wore scarves frequently to stay warm. "Knit scarves are perfect for this winter because it's so cold and they pretty much match everything," Wilson said.

Sophomore Teylor Ellis wears tall socks on top of her leggings. She was one of many girls to wear them this winter. "I wear tall socks with leggings all the time because they keep my feet warm," Ellis said.

Socks

Junior Madi McGuire uses combat boots to complete her outfit. Combat boots were a popular trend during the winter. "I like combat boots because you can wear them different ways," McGuire said.

Boots

Sophomores Sophie Shock and Aaron Wilson team up to make a pizza. They were in charge of the cheese and vegetable station this year. "Sophie and I made a great pizza making team because we had a lot of fun doing it," Wilson said.

Junior Dana Nokes puts pepperonis on her pizza. Many students look forward to doing the fundraiser every year. "I like doing the fundraiser every year because the pizzas are really good and it raises money for our choir accounts," Nokes said.

by Sarah Ray

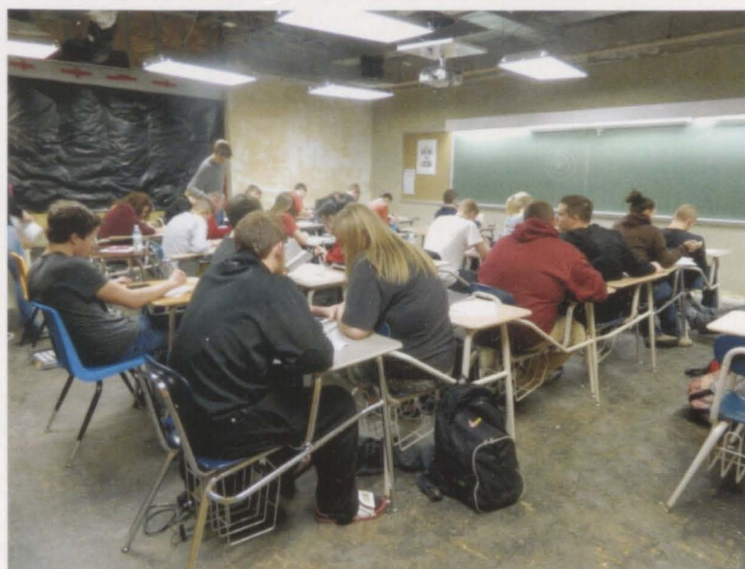

Junior Ciara LaFlower wears a large sweater to match the weather outside. These sweaters were a hot item in the winter of 2014. "I love wearing sweaters because you can still look nice without being uncomfortable, and you can wear them with leggings or jeans," LaFlower said.

A Transformation 1.19.14-2.1.14

Students try to focus on their math as construction chaos is all around them. Mrs. Cindy Bond's classroom transformed over the winter. "I'm really glad to finally have ceilings in our classroom because its to much more quiet," sophomore Luke Clair-Fiko said.

Sophomore Anee Frechette is one of many students who dealt with the math rooms. She was glad to see the rooms redone during the winter. "When I would try and work in a group I couldn't even move my desk by my group because it was always stuck to the floor," Frechette said.

It is common to see some interesting things around the rooms under construction. Many students didn't just deal with their surroundings; they dealt with things in their surroundings such as bugs. "One time in class I saw this roach as big as my hand crawl by and it was really gross," sophomore Olivia Hurt said.

Students can finally work in new and improved classrooms. One by one each room has been transformed over the school year. "We started out in a terrible learning environment but now everything looks really nice," freshman Joel Vance said.

The girl's basketball team and cheerleaders pose for a picture after winning sectionals for the sixth year in a row. The games were held at Terre Haute North and the team played both Martinsville and Brownsburg, leading to victories over both. The girls played hard for a spot in sectionals and their victory then led to a spot in regionals. "It felt good to have such a big win with my team," sophomore Mackenzie Johnson said.

Grand Champions

The Spotlighters and Finesse competed at Center Grove on February 15 and swept the competition bringing home eight trophies.

This is the first time both Finesse and Spots have won Grand Champions together at a competition.

"Everyone worked so hard to prepare for this competition," senior Spotlighter President Jackie Harris said. "We deserved the win."

This was only the group's second competition of the year.

They were so proud to have already accomplished such a big achievement so early in the season.

"We worked really hard the week before to make sure we were ready for competition and it all paid off in the long run," Finesse dance captain Chloe Murphy said.

The choirs planned to make this a frequent accomplishment.

"Going into it I didn't know what the outcome would be, but after we won I hoped that it would motivate us to work harder in the future," director Jason Damron said.

Setting Records

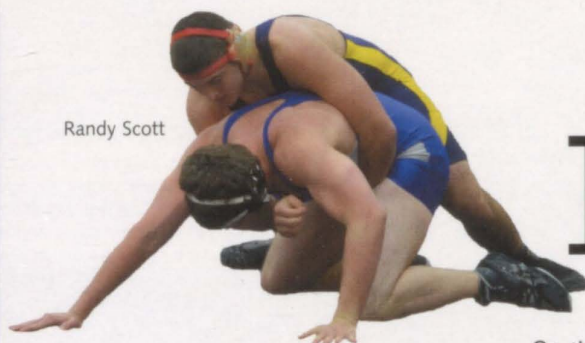

Students from GSA put uplifting notes on each locker throughout the school. This was just one of two things to happen on Valentine's Day. Students arrived on a great note, and because of this, were able to enjoy their day. The point of these notes were to make each and every person feel special on this special day. Each locker reminded students that someone was thinking of them. "We thought it would be a nice thing for students to see, even if they didn't have a valentine, they knew someone cared," senior Justine Christian said. "It also made it more special that they were handwritten."

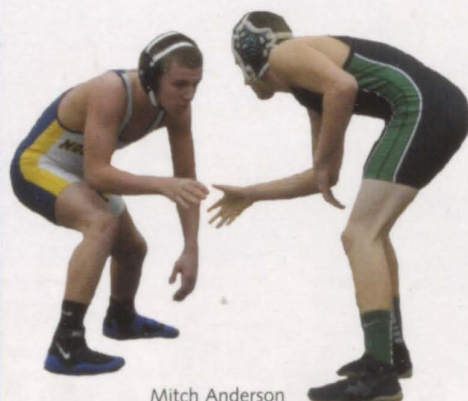

Spreading the Love

2.2.13-2.15.13

Students get released early on Friday, February 14, due to the incoming snow storm. Students were to be released at 2:19, approximately fifteen minutes early. Fifteen minutes wasn't early enough. The storm came in earlier and quicker than expected, leaving more than an inch of snow covering each car in the parking lot. These weather conditions made it difficult for students to travel home safely. Most roads had not been plowed, and even main roads were not very clear. "I had no problem with leaving early, but the amount of snow that was already here caused a lot of accidents before many people even getting out of the parking lot," junior Kaylie May said.

Road to State

On the drive down to Evansville for semi-state it began to snow heavily like several other times throughout the winter. Trace Rooks, Mitch Anderson and Randy Scott qualified for semi-state and were ready to give it their all to be given the opportunity to earn a place at state.

Once Saturday had rolled around, the boys were ready to prove to the state what they could do. Three wrestlers went to semi-state and two of them made it to state.

Both juniors, Mitch Anderson and Randy Scott made it through.

"It made me really proud of myself that I was able to make it to state," Anderson said.

"It was a great accomplishment for my high school career. I finished third and I couldn't be more proud of myself," Scott said.

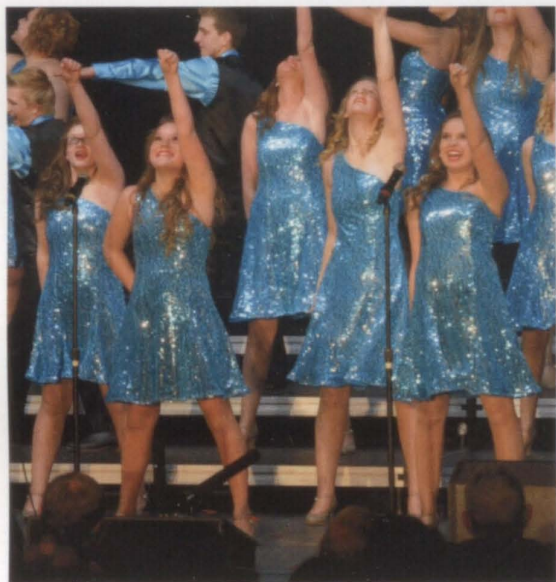

With a new coach, Alfred Warren in the head coaching position, he was proud of the two juniors that he had the ability to coach at state.

"I was happy that they could experience their hard work paying off for them." "They put in a lot of hours during the off-season and the coaching staff and I were so proud of their accomplishments this year," coach Warren said.

Anderson and Scott competed at Banker's Life Fieldhouse for their state competition. Anderson ended as a state qualifier while Scott finished in 3rd for his weight class.

Spotlighter Invitational

The Millennium girls perform at their first Spotlighter Invitational in High School. Freshman Jaimee Schuck had put in countless hours and many dance rehearsals in order to perform that night. "It is an amazing feeling being on stage and having those lights on you and knowing that people are watching. It's fun to get to show off what Mr. Damron has taught us. Performing is my favorite thing about high school," Schuck said.

Junior Maddie McGuire performs with senior Josh Passey and the rest of the Spotlighters at the annual Spotlighter Invitational. McGuire loved the rush that the crowd gave off while Spotlighters performed on stage at the Invitational because the whole gym was packed with students cheering them on. "I love seeing the different show choir rituals and bonds from a different perspective," McGuire said.

AP Art students display their creative imagination on paper.

Senior Morgan Sussman displays her artwork as she gathers the last bits of her semester project all together. Sussman loved to experiment with new styles and different ways to make artwork. When Sussman reflected on her art she really appreciated and admired all her hard work, and loved to put as much detail into a piece as possible. "This piece really caught my eye, when I was browsing on a website I typically use for new ideas. I always love doing animals and especially birds. Animals are my favorite because it takes so much detail and you can really appreciate it when you are finished," Sussman said.

Junior Chris Cannon begins to draw a series of comic book-related art pieces for his semester project. Cannon always liked to play to his strengths and he loved to draw whatever he was most interested in at the time. Cannon was very proud of his work and always tried to achieve his best in every art piece he did. After experimenting with many styles, Cannon found, that his favorite type of artwork was the unrealistic-comic book style. "I think I did a great job on this piece," Cannon said. "This is more typically my style; you see this isn't realistic, but it leans more towards a 'sci-fi' style and/or comic book related," Cannon said.

Senior Mikayla Rusie and senior Lindsay Wittell corner their opponent from Pike. The Pioneers worked their hardest when it came to defense. "We had a lock down on defense all year that carried over to Regionals," Rusie said.

Sophomore Mackenzie Johnson guards her opponent while her teammates look for a chance to steal the ball. The Lady Pioneers fought a hard game, but unfortunately lost to Pike. "We gave our best effort as a team but fell short in overtime. This will motivate us to get better for next season and bring home that Regionals trophy," Johnson said.

The Fight to the Finish

Girls Regionals

After winning their sixth straight Sectional title, the Lady Pioneers were determined to dominate Regionals. The girls started the game off strong with an indestructible defense against Pike.

"Having experienced regionals four years in a row is something to be proud of and I am honored to have been apart of it," senior Kayla Karr said.

The Pioneers left the court for halftime beating Pike 26 to 18.

"I'm glad my first year of varsity basketball was as much as a success as it was," sophomore Taylor Baxter said.

Pike made a comeback throughout the game that pushed the Lady Pioneers into overtime. The girls fought hard to the end, but ended up losing 62 to 67.

"I am so honored to coach such a humble and loyal group of girls. Their bond is inseparable," coach Mark Hurt said.

"It was a great experience for three years straight. I'm very proud of the team's effort and I'm looking forward to the season next year," junior Kellie Cavanaugh said.

J.S.A. Travels To D.C.

J.S.A. visits the Lincoln memorial. They visited many different sites while staying in D.C. "It was awesome to be around all of the monuments and to learn about them from Ms. Gilly," junior Oliva Seyerle said.

The members of J.S.A. line up for a picture in the Library of Congress. After a rainy day, they were still all smiles. "Going to D.C. was a life-changing experience," junior Peyton Baker said. "Our group came back more patriotic and definitely better public speakers. The trip makes you feel more connected to the United States and it helps build better friendships with the people around you."

Turn Down For What

On a Friday night the boys basketball team heads to Columbus North to play the most important game of their season. Columbus North was ranked number four in their tourney, and Mooresville was ranked number five. With four seconds left in the fourth quarter the game was tied and Mooresville had the ball. They chose to let senior Carter VanWanzele take a three that could allow them to win the game. VanWanzele didn't let anyone stand in his way. Swoosh. "I get the ball. There's like four seconds left. I don't have time to be messing around. I take a couple dribbles, pull up, bucket. All money from there," VanWanzele said. "It was the number one basketball experience of my life."

Junior JT Sanborn stands as the Pioneers warm up for a game. Sanborn was one of a few juniors to play varsity this year. This was not Sanborn's first year on varsity though. He also dressed for them his sophomore year. "You have to risk it, to get the biscuit," Sanborn said.

Junior Clay Hibler jumps up for a block against Plainfield. The Curry Center was packed with fans that cheered on the boys to a victory over one of Mooresville's biggest rivals. The boys dominated Winter Homecoming, beating Plainfield 68-44. "It was one thing to win homecoming against Plainfield, but even better to win with my favorite team," Hibler said.

The boys varsity team huddles together before warming up for a home game against Center Grove. The boys had a team huddle that ended with a chant before each game, which kept them upbeat and ready to play their hardest. Each game the boys went out and warmed up with the rest of their teammates to get ready for another great game. This home game ended with a joy-filled victory, "It felt great to warm up with my team before each game," junior Lane Weaver said. "It gets me more pumped to play each time."

JV Basketball Ends As Undefeated Champions

JV boys basketball plays a long and very successful season. The boys put in hours of work and came out with great results. Every game was just another chance to prove how hard they had worked for their wins. "We knew that if we played as a team then no one could stop us," junior Kendrick Underhill said. JV ended their season undefeated, 19-0.

Freshman boys basketball end the season with a tough loss. The team went 3-18, with losses against some 4A teams.

The Varsity teams success steams from their hard work and dedication. Senior Jacob Johnson was honored with becoming a member of the 1,000 points club for his high school career. Johnson and the rest of the varsity team never stopped fighting until the end during every game. They ended their season with a tough fought battle verse Brownsburg high school, finishing the season with a record of 18-5.

The senior boys' tip off the ball at the beginning of their senior night game against Tri-West. The seniors left all they had on the court for their last game at the Curry Center, and came out with another win. This game was extra special to the senior boys because it was the first time head coach Bobby Carter let all the seniors on the team start. "It was a great experience to be honored with all the other seniors before the game, and then go out with them and get the victory that night," senior Keith Kassen said.

Sophomore Taylor Baxter pulls up for a three pointer during homecoming. The pioneers had no trouble getting past Plainfield with the 73-32 win. "It was my first homecoming. Seeing the gym full and our whole town cheering us on was a really good feeling. I just wish it could have been a better game," Baxter said.

A 6 Year Tradition

The Lady Pioneers kept their tradition alive by becoming the sixth team in a row to win the sectional title. Their 19-4 record earned them a conference title and a spot in the top ten for Indiana girls basketball.

"To Mooresville, winning sectionals is expected of us now since we're on a winning streak. Everyone in our sectional is out to get our team," senior Kayla Karr said. "We took that as a compliment."

The varsity team started off its season with a big road win at North Central. Sophomore Lauren McBryar added 17 points to the Pioneers 42-39 victory. In their first home game, the girls took on defending 2013 state champions, Bedford North Lawrence. Unfortunately, they could not keep them in their sights and fell 49-35.

The next 10 games were a breeze to the Pioneers. In the Holiday Classic, held at Brownsburg High School, the pioneers got by the Bulldogs with ease in the first round. Their second round, against Franklin Central proved to be a more difficult task than expected. The flashes were wake up call to the pioneers in the 47-33 loss.

The Pioneers were forced to reschedule their senior night and instead of playing their intended opponent, they picked up #5 Homestead. Without hesitation, Homestead delivered a nerve racking first quarter to the Pioneers. They quickly overcame and outscored Homestead in the remaining three quarters. As hard as they worked, the girls went into overtime and went down without a fight, ending the game 64-74.

"The gym was packed," sophomore Morgan Matt said, "I was really nervous about what was going to happen since it was 7-20 after the first quarter. We had the game in the last minute, but we threw it away with free throws and couldn't recover."

In their final season game, the Pioneers traveled to Southport and took an easy win 69-37.

The time to enter the state tournament had come and the girls were ready to bring home another sectional title. They took Martinsville 57-34. In the championship, they earned their title by defeating Brownsburg 61-45.

"I think we were more eager to play Martinsville than Brownsburg," senior Mikayla Rusie said. "We've grown up playing them and they always give us a good game."

Entering regionals, the Pioneers knew they had been unsuccessful in the past. But they never let that affect their game. The game never lost its momentum; however, the Pike Red Devils proved to be too much for the young Pioneer team. The girls fell short 62-67, putting an end to their tournament run.

Sophomore Mackenzie Johnson locks down on her Pike opponent during regionals. Johnson was unstoppable in the regional game as she scored 15 points. Although Johnson's contribution was greatly appreciated the Lady Pioneers fell short to the Red Devils in the first round of regionals. "It was hard ending the game that way because we started off so well. I'm really proud of how hard our team worked to stay with them during the game," Johnson said.

Junior Kellie Cavanaugh drives into the lane during their matchup against Plainfield. The pioneers dominated the entire game and celebrated winter homecoming with a win. "The crowd got us hyped and we played our game like it was our last. It's always fun beating rival schools too," Cavanaugh said.

Freshman Jordan Bullington goes up in attempt to block the outside shot. The freshman team was made up of several girls who had never played before. "They did a lot better than I expected. I think they can only get better," freshman head coach Chris DuBois said.

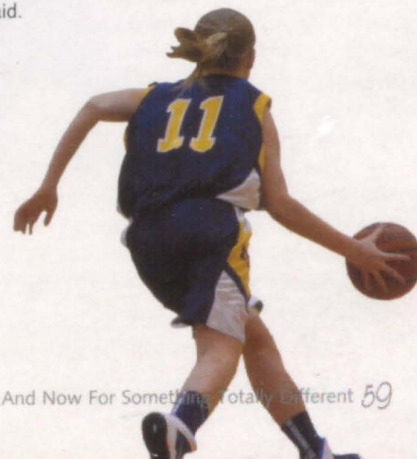

Freshman Kristie Cavanaugh works her way past a Plainfield defender. Cavanaugh was forced to sit out for a majority of her season due to a concussion in the beginning of the season. "I was so excited that I got to play during homecoming. Sitting out all season was hard because all I wanted to do was be on the floor with my team," Cavanaugh said.

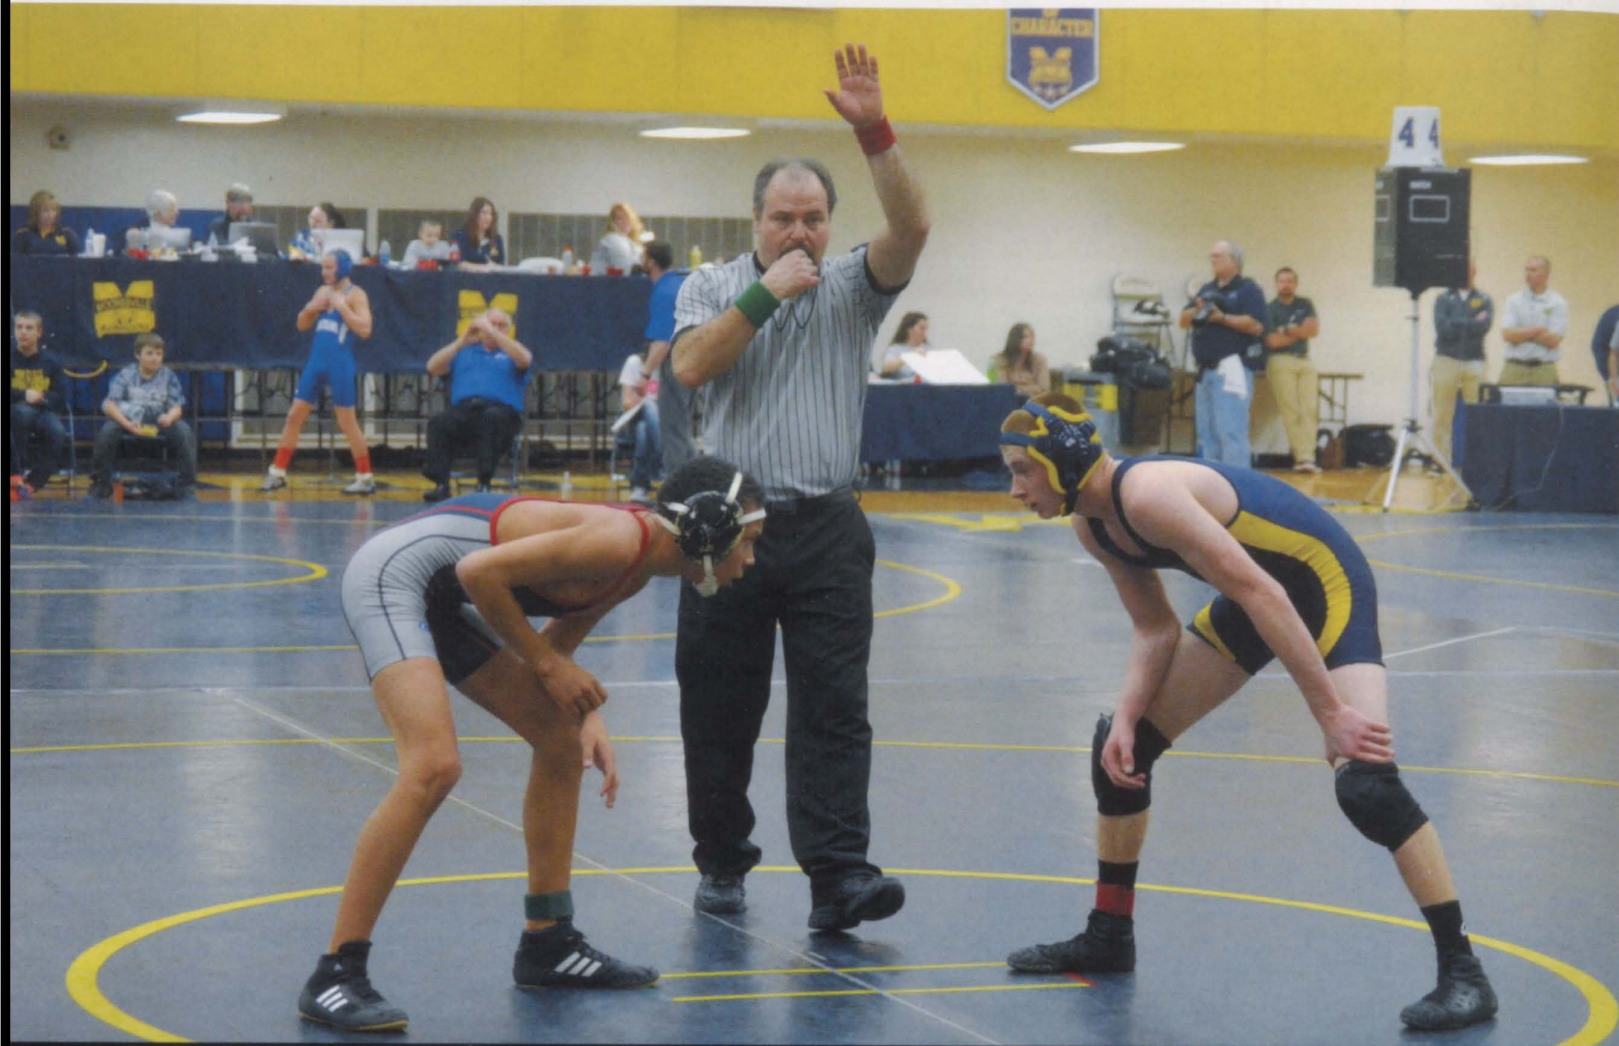

Freshman Shelby Fink looks for an open teammate. Fink was one of three freshman brought up to the JV team. "High school was a lot more intense than middle school was. I realized I had to work a lot harder if I wanted to play," Fink said.

The Pioneers hoist up their 6th sectional trophy. The Pioneers earned the honor after defeating Martinsville and Brownsburg all in one day. "It was a long day, but I had a fun time with my teammates. And as tradition goes, on the bus ride home we circled McDonald's and yelled at the people in the drive thru line," junior Kia Hreno said.

Team Savage

"Well you just have to whoop his butt, you know? It is what it is."

Randy Scott

The way of the wrestler was a lifestyle all on its own. The boys started working hard over the summer and didn't rest until they shook hands after their final match.

Watching what they ate and drank was the reality of making weight classes every week. It was a mystery why they willingly subjected themselves to that. When they stepped on the mat the mysteries were solved: they were savages.

The team dynamic changed when Coach Zach Errett left the head coaching position to takeover as Athletic Director. A former MHS wrestler who went on to wrestle at Indiana University, Alex Warren, became the new coach.

"The first season went very well," Warren said. "Instructing technique, running practices and coaching mat-side is second nature to me."

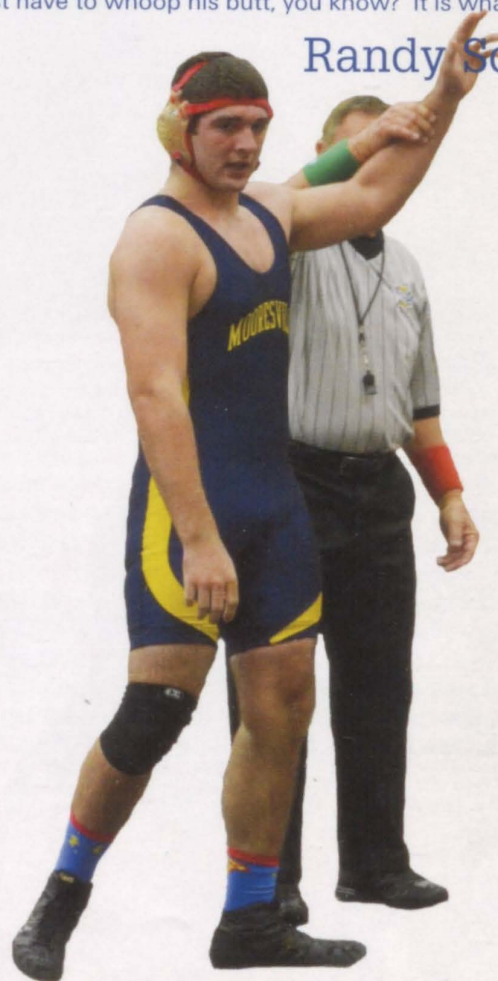

Seniors Blake Davis and Trace Rooks were the team captains and led by example.

"I was honored that my teammates picked me to be their captain," Rooks said. "It was a privilege to be able to lead them throughout the season with Blake by my side."

Davis achieved the fastest pin in the state of Indiana at seven seconds.

The boys supported everyone and pushed one another to exert themselves to the next level and not give an inch until their hands were held up in victory at the end of the matches. With much support, junior Randy Scott made it all the way to semi-finals in the state tournament.

"I wrestled a lot over the summer and participated in the tournament in Fargo, North Dakota, which was the most challenging tournament in the nation at the time," Scott said. "I went away with the title of Double all-American. I was able to break my previous record for most falls from thirty to thirty-two, and set a new record for most wins in a season (went from forty to forty-two)."

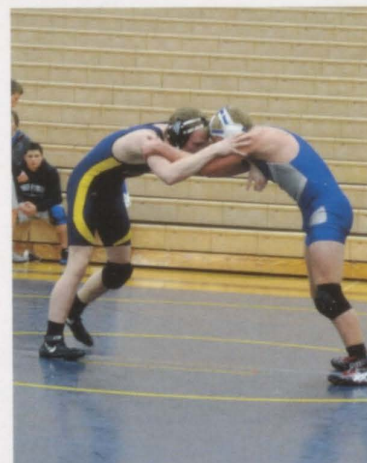

Sophomore Jake Hawkins focuses on his competition before the start of his sectional match. Hawkins wrestled the 120 pound weight class on varsity. "Before matches I think of my opponent and think he hasn't worked as hard as I have," Hawkins said.

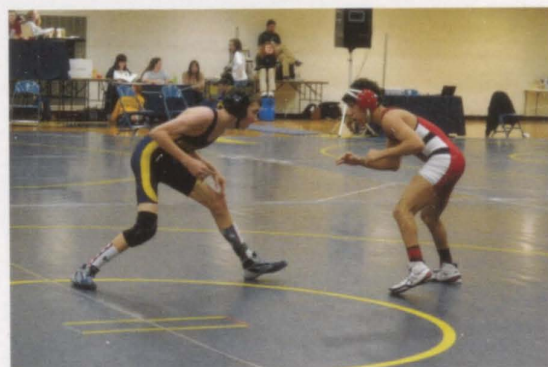

Senior Blake Davis ties up with a head-inside-collar attack during the 113 pounds weight class match at sectionals. Davis advanced and made it to regionals. "I took it one match at a time. I didn't dwell on the parts that didn't go my way. I realized opportunities when they presented themselves, and created opportunities when there were none," Davis said. "The lessons I've learned from wrestling have helped shape who I am and will assist me in every aspect of my life."

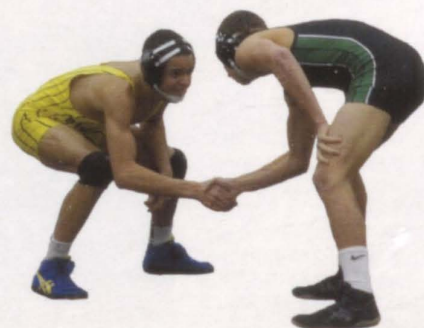

Holding off his opponent in the scramble position, junior Brody Boles defeats Franklin's 126 weight class. This was the position that Boles felt benefited him the most. "I'm fast at moving around and know where I'm at in that position because I've worked in that position for practice," Boles said.

Senior Draven McIntyre ties up with determination in the 145 weight class against Franklin. McIntyre always went out of his way to support and cheer on his teammates. "I was constantly mat side during matches," McIntyre said. "We all felt bonded as a team because we spent time together and constantly motivated each other to stay in top shape."

Sophomore Darien Hamilton takes a low stance as he competes in the 106 pound weight class. Hamilton had a big challenge in cutting weight before weigh-ins. "The hardest part was cheese stick Tuesday at lunch," Hamilton said. "I would come in the lunch room with my cute little salad and everyone else was chowing down on their cheese stick. It was really hard to just eat mine, but I remembered that I had a team that was counting on me to make weight."

Freshman Christian Warren shakes hands with his competitor from Monrovia. The boys all wore retro singlets in honor of senior night. "The seniors were supportive and would compliment me after matches," Warren said. "I learned that I had to adjust quickly to mistakes made in matches and practice."

Junior Mitch Anderson hits a fireman's carry on an opponent from Center Grove. This move brought him much success throughout the season. He advanced to the first round of the state meet at Banker's Life Fieldhouse. "I would definitely say this was my signature move for the season," Anderson said.

Members of the varsity team listen as the weight classes are announced. Senior Braxton Croley got pumped up for a meet by listening to his music and stayed light on his feet. Unfortunately, Croley's season ended sooner than most after he broke his elbow during a tough match at the Holiday Classic. "My elbow breaking was the worst pain I have ever felt in my life. I had people tell me they could hear my elbow break from across the gym," Croley said. "It was disappointing having my senior season cut short; however, I believe everything happens for a reason."

Just Keep Swimming

Sophomore Grant West swims his event at a home meet at the Mooresville High School Natatorium. West swam his first year with Mooresville. "I've never swam before and it was definitely a work out for me, but I had a lot of fun," West said.

by Breanna Bates, Paige McGraw, and Sarah Ray

The swim team breaks out of its huddle with a team chant before starting their swim meet against South Putnam. The meet was held at the Mooresville High School natatorium. Sophomore Josiah Morning finished off his second season beating his own personal records and achieved the goals he had set for himself. "The season was great because I got closer with more people than last year," Morning said.

Seniors Levi Jennings and Sydney Kanouse were the only two seniors on the swim team. Jennings was very happy with the turn out of his season. Jennings and Kanouse finished their season off on a happy note and couldn't have asked for anything better. Jennings was part of the diving team all four of his high school years, and was the first and only person who advanced all the way to state. "It was so awesome to know that I now hold two records for the school," Jennings said.

The Mooresville Swimming and Diving team raise their arms above their heads before a meet against the Plainfield Quakers. Mooresville students raised their arms and made a 'whoosh' sound before each event started. "When the swimmers hit the water we all yelled whoosh together and threw our hands down," sophomore Kylan Williamson said.

Senior Levi Jennings begins his dive at a home meet. Jennings broke two of Mooresville's diving records, including the six dive record and the eleven dive record. He was a big asset to the diving team. "Breaking the records for the school and then breaking my own records was the best part of this season," Jennings said.

Junior Macy Sutkowski and her team mates cheer on their swimmer. The Mooresville coaches always gave a pep talk before the races. Junior Macy Sutkowski took the pep talks that the coaches gave them before every meet and kept them in her mind. The pep talks made her swim harder every race. "Just knowing that you're not racing against any other person and or yourself was intense. We only had to beat the clock," Sutkowski said.

New Fish in the Sea

The 2014 swimming and diving season was a very different season from past seasons. This season both teams gained more swimmers from other sports, like football, cross country, and track.

"It was my first year swimming. I normally play football and the change was nice," sophomore Grant West said.

"We don't usually get the crossover most of the time and it was nice to have new people come in and try the sport," Coach Amanda Miller said. The girls sectional was a big deal to the team.

All of the girls that competed in the events all had beaten their own personal best. The girls all had to swim four events and broke some sort of best.

"It didn't matter if I won I had beaten my personal best and that was all that mattered," junior Macy Sutkowski said.

Sophomore Haley Wilson prepares to start the race. Since this was her second year swimming she had expectations for the season. Wilson worked diligently for the team and reached her own goals. "My personal goal for the season was to break the 500 meter record and I accomplished that this season," Wilson said.

Freshman Renee Majeski waits her turn to compete. As a freshman she made the transition from middle school swimming to high school swimming. Majeski was content with the outcome of the season and the relationships she made with new people. "I think that high school swimming is a lot different because there are longer, more intense workouts, even though it was harder it was still really fun," Majeski said.

Senior Sydney Kanouse, junior Macy Sutkowski, sophomore Haley Wilson and freshman Renee Majeski take their places before a race. The four girls swam their best all season long. The four girls gave their all in every race that they swam. They all felt that the practices that they went through really payed off and helped them to be successful this season. "All I focus on before a race is trying to find a calm place on the block, clearing my mind, and relaxing," Wilson said.

Flying

By the time March rolled around, the girls began try outs for the following years cheerleading squads. There was no off season in the cheerleading world, as soon as one year was over, the next year began.

Several young ladies nervously went over the dance and cheer they learned several times before heading in to try out. Everyone from the freshmen to seniors got nervous during this time.

"I was super nervous because it was my first year trying out for cheerleading," sophomore Tiarra Delph said.

Once the squads were chosen, the girls got busy learning and increasing their ability to be the best cheerleader they can be. They practiced all summer, went to UCA cheer camp, and continued to practice throughout the year.

"Each year that I coach is a little easier than the one before. I can honestly say that this has been the best one so far. The seniors and I started off our journey together four years ago when I first started coaching. I have learned so much from them in the past four years and I can only hope that they've learned something from me as well," coach Katie Tutterow said.

The first season to kick off for the squads was competition. The squad constantly pushed themselves to be the best they could be.

"We practiced often in order to better ourselves in the long run," senior Taryn Rooks said, "It was the majority of the squad's senior year and we wanted it to be a great end to our high school cheerleading careers."

The total number of seniors on all the squads was 10 girls. This was the largest number of seniors that has been through the cheerleading program in quite a while and the group had a huge impact on the program overall.

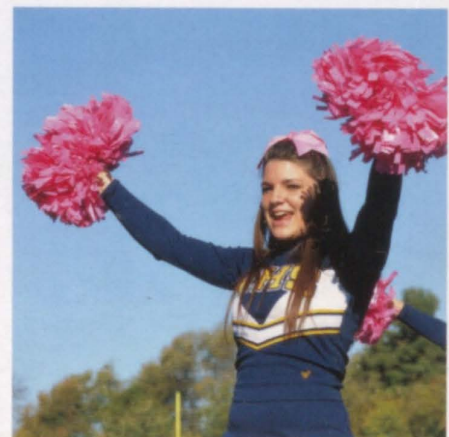

The freshman squad talks to varsity coach Katie Tutterow before the Homecoming pep rally. This was an exciting day for the freshmen squad since they got the privilege to cheer in front of the whole school for the first time. "I was excited to finally cheer at Homecoming and also with the upperclassmen," freshman Hannah Fulkerson said.

by Emily Warfield and Sarah Ray

The varsity cheerleaders stand in "ready position" during a football game. The girls dressed up for every game for whatever the theme was that week. "Dressing up made us even more excited for Friday nights," senior Brittany Summers said.

The JV cheerleaders use pink pom poms for Breast Cancer "I loved cheering in the Breast cancer game because we got pink pom poms and its for a good cause," sophomore Cassie Cannon said.

High and Smiling Bright

The varsity cheerleaders hit a pyramid during halftime of a football game against Franklin Community. The squad would prepare what they were going to do during practice that week. "Each week we would stunt, tumble, and make new cheers for the game at the end of the week," senior Shawna Marino said. "Even though we worked hard we always made practice fun."

During halftime the JV cheerleaders entertain the crowd. Cheerleaders had the option to cheer for two different sports. "I love getting to cheer for football and basketball because each season is different," sophomore Chloe Murphy said.

Business Classes Go To Chicago

3.2.14 -
3.15.14

by: Blake and Alex Langford

Business Classes Head to the Windy City

Every year at the beginning of March Dana Dillman and Tracie Ball took BPA and some of their business classes students to Chicago for the day.

"I really enjoy going to Chicago every year with the business students. They get to see how our banking system works and how money is made and destroyed. It's also a great experience for them to visit the city of Chicago and all it has to offer. The kids have such a great time," Miss Traci Ball said.

Dillman and Ball took their students to many places in Chicago. Though as tradition goes, they always went to the Federal Reserve Bank of Chicago. There they got to watch a video on what the Federal Reserve Bank did for the country. Then afterwards they got to ask any questions and visit the museum part of the bank. There, students could see a million dollars, tried and guessed which bills are counterfeit or not, and got a bag of shredded money.

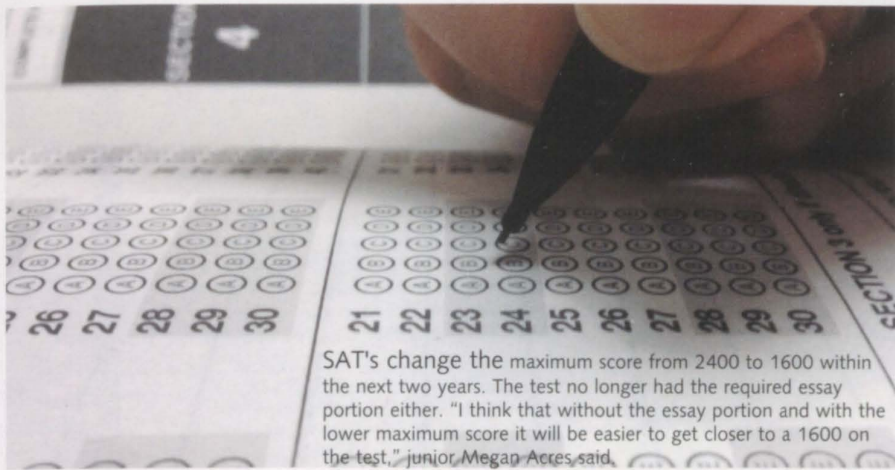

"It was really cool to be able to touch a million dollars and to be able to take home 364 dollars of shredded money," junior Caroline Mauck said.

Students also got to go to the Navy Pier. There they got to do a maze and eat lunch.

"It took us a long time to get out of the maze, but it was fun and we all had a good time," senior Sarah Shorter said.

The rest of the trip students got to shop on the Magnificent Mile. The Magnificent Mile is a mile long stretch on Michigan Avenue where there are three malls and several stores on the street. Students get to shop at stores that aren't in Indiana.

The Crystal Gardens at the Navy Pier in Chicago. Students from the business classes and BPA went to Navy Pier to have lunch and go through a maze. "It was a lot of fun walking through the Crystal Gardens at the Navy Pier. I was also skeptical about the maze, but once we did it, it was probably the most fun thing we did that day," junior Heather Harris said.

SAT's change the maximum score from 2400 to 1600 within the next two years. The test no longer had the required essay portion either. "I think that without the essay portion and with the lower maximum score it will be easier to get closer to a 1600 on the test," junior Megan Acres said.

New Policies in Action

The government decided to implement new laws in the summer of 2014 towards tanning and firearms and the College Board changed rules in the SAT.

The tanning companies implement the new law about teens and tanning. The government decided to issue a new law that teens under the age of sixteen were no longer allowed to tan and had to be older than sixteen with a parent signature to tan. "I agree that people under 16 should not be allowed to tan, I also agree that if you're over 16 you should be able to go by yourself because by then you can drive and I like that the parent has to sign a paper saying that they know they are tanning," freshman Kristie Cavanaugh said.

Indiana House and Senate pass a new firearm bill. In the past no one on school property could have a gun, but with the new bill it would allow teachers and visitors to have firearms in their vehicles. "I agree with the new law because if you're a legal adult and have a gun permit then you should be able to take advantage of your constitutional rights as long as it's safely stored," senior Cody Cannon said.

A Day in the Life of...

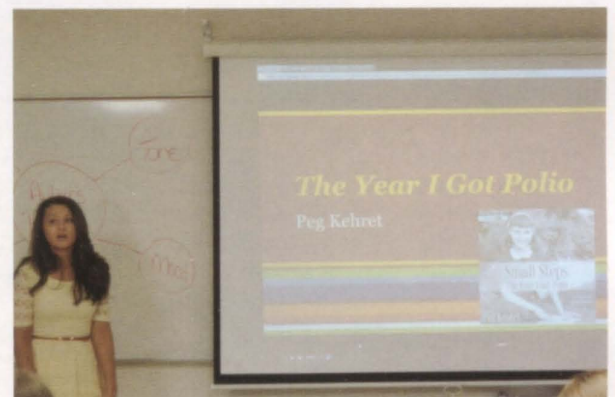

In each of the sophomore English classes students were allowed to pick autobiographies, biographies, or non-fiction books to present over. They also had the choice of how they would present, they could do power point, dress as the person, do a scrapbook, or a diorama.

Sophomore James Fox III decides to do something a little different with his presentation. He used his launch pad on his computer to make a song about his book "DJ Culture in the Mix," Fox played different sounds on his computer and an electronic voice said the words. "The initial bit was really awful in terms of keeping calm, but once you got going, it was really all about the presentation," Fox said.

Cassie Cannon presents her scrapbook idea to her English class. Cannon took a week to make her scrapbook just right. "There was so much work that went into this book," Cannon said.

Sophomore Jessica Langley presents her project on Peg Kehrer about her life with polio. Langley dressed for the part as she went through the slide show. "I enjoy presenting in front of a class, especially if it's something I am passionate about," Langley said.

Mackenzie Spears presents her autobiography project on Elizabeth Smart while a student asks her questions. Spears had a lot of interest in her presentation. "I wanted to do something to spark an interest in the rest of the kids," Spears said.

BPA Finalists

Seniors Shelby Bailey, Kayla Karr, Trevor Chew, and junior Carson Mulvehill present their awards after the BPA State Competition Awards Ceremony. Bailey was awarded in the area of Advanced Word Processing Skills, while Karr received awards for Advanced Office Systems and Procedures and Advanced Word Processing. Chew won Fundamental Desktop Publishing and Mulvehill dominated the competition for Interview Skills. The students had to present their work to a panel of three judges. "I was shocked but overly excited as it was my first time placing at state," Karr said. "My overall experience at the competition was wonderful!"

New York, New York

Choirs Take a Bite Out of the Big Apple

The annual choir outing took place on the East Coast in New York City. Students were able to explore Chinatown, experience Broadway, and enjoy the sight-seeing in only three days.

"My favorite part about New York was going to the top of the Rockefeller Center," junior Alyson LaPlante said. "Going 70 stories up and seeing all of the city was beautiful! I liked both of the Broadway shows equally. Wicked was uniquely funny, and I really enjoyed the music in Newsies."

The choir family attended "Newsies" and "Wicked" on Broadway. They also had the opportunity to sharpen and expand their skills in a clinic taught by a cast member from "Newsies."

"My absolute favorite part was getting to dance with Iain Young from Newsies," sophomore Corey Spaulding said. "New York was so much fun and I wouldn't trade the trip for anything."

While strolling through Central Park, Madrigals was asked to sing right there in front of everyone in the park. They sang "Elijah Rock."

"Singing in Central Park was a surprise," Choir Director Jason Damron said. "I had no idea we would be singing that day. It was cool to perform in that environment."

Students get their "15 seconds of fame" on the big screen in Time Square. American Eagle Outfitters displayed their picture after they purchased an item from their store. "So long New York, we will miss you, love your Indiana friends," the message that the group submitted to be displayed next to their picture.

From the view of the 9/11 Memorial, the choirs take on New York City, many for the first time. The city lived up to the hype in all its forms. "New York was a blast and a great trip to add to my senior year," senior Kyle Hurt said. "I really enjoyed seeing the Broadway musicals and hope to be able to go back in future years."

Lilly Scholarships

The Lilly Endowment Scholarship was awarded to students based on academic excellence, financial need, activities within school and throughout the community, and jobs.

The 75 applicants were required to answer short essay questions and go through a personal interview.

Seniors Jessica McDaniel, Ryan Crafts, Jaclyn Harris, and Logan Mills were among the nine finalists for the scholarship. Being a finalist was an honor all its own.

McDaniel and Crafts rose above the rest and received the scholarships for Morgan County.

"I was surprised and so happy because I initially did not think I had a chance to win," McDaniel said.

The scholarship provides the recipients with a full-ride scholarship to any Indiana college of their choice, public or private, plus a $900 yearly credit to go toward books.

"I have to say, I was pretty stoked when I found out I got the scholarship," Crafts said.

This is the highest awarded scholarship through the Community Foundation of Morgan County.

"Being recognized as a Lilly Finalist is awesome in itself," guidance counselor Mrs. Ericka Gayle said. "To have two winners in our school says a lot about not only the students but also their teachers, family, and friends."

Senior Jessica McDaniel signs in acceptance of the Lilly Endowment Scholarship. McDaniel was planning to attend Purdue University in the fall with a major in pharmacy. "My goal is to do volunteer in the community and enjoy my experiences at Purdue," McDaniel said.

Senior Ryan Crafts relishes in the moment of congratulatory praises from his family and Principal Mr. Brian Disney. Crafts was excited to be able to major in mechanical engineering at Rose-Hulman. This particular scholarship gave him the means to attend any college in the state of Indiana. "I decided that there was no way I could pass up the high-quality institution and difficult challenges that come with attending Rose," Crafts said. "I plan to get my degree, work for a little while in a high-tech industry, then start my own company."

When You Wish Upon A Star

The band marches through Main Street in Magic Kingdom as part of the parade. The group went to Disney World for Spring Break to gain experience and have a good time in the warm weather of Orlando, Florida. "It was nice to see so many people coming to get us perform in the parade. It was such an exciting moment to get to perform in Disney World," senior Lauren Austermler said.

Beach Bums

Senior students pose together for a picture during their last spring break of their high school years. The students were all in the same area of Florida and tended to hang out on the beach throughout the week. "The winter was so awful in Indiana, the Florida sun felt amazing and I never wanted to go inside," senior Reggie Stubbs said.

When arriving in Puerto Maya, students eagerly posed by the sign before starting their day in Mexico. A group of kids chose to go on a week long cruise together for Spring Break and Puerto Maya, also known as Cozumel, was their first destination. "I loved getting to take one final trip with my lifelong friends before we all head off to college and split ways," senior Haley Chitwood said.

Junior Abby Crump pauses to take a picture with three little girls she met while on a mission trip to Lebanon. While most other students chose to go to the beach or stay home for spring break, Crump chose differently. She offered to give up her week off of school to fly across the world to help people that needed it badly. "Being there was probably one of the best experiences in my life. I got to see another culture and another part of the world. It meant so much to me to be able to go and work with the Syrian refugees and see what they are going through. It was also amazing to get to spend time in the middle eastern culture and see landmarks that were there during bible times!" Crump said.

Dancing For Those Who Can't

Students at the Dance Marathon proudly stands with signs that show the total raised for Riley's Children's Hospital. Student Council prepared for months leading up to the dance marathon to have the best turn out possible for the children. There was music played, bounce houses, and plenty of activities happening throughout the event. The group hit the goal that was set of $4,000 and then a little extra on top of that. The total, as shown to the left, was $4,006.38 that was raised by the students that participated in the dance marathon with the help of Student Council and National Honor Society. "This year we raised more money than any years prior and hopefully the event will continue to grow every year," senior Madison Grimes said.

Don't Sink The Boat

Juniors Coleson Sharp and Lance Lawyer battle against other classmates during the boat races for physics. The pairs were only allowed to use cardboard and duct tape to create a boat that the two would ride in across the pool and back in. There were three separate heats of races between the classes. Unfortunately, Sharp and Lawyer's boat did not hold up too well and collapsed shortly after the whistle was blown. "I put in a lot of hard work. It really stunk that it went down as fast as it did," Sharp said.

Cali Lovin'

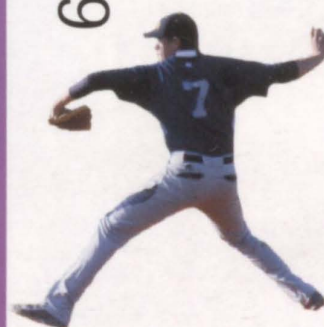

Selected students from the yearbook and broadcast staff enjoy the sunshine of California during their short trip after spring break. The students participated in the JEA/NSPA National Journalism Convention in San Diego, California. While in San Diego, the group had the opportunity to do several different outings such as go to Sea World, a Padres game, bike around the town, go shopping, and out to eat while they had down time. Also while the group was there, they all competed in competitions in their desired category. Out of all the students participating senior Lindsay Wittell received Honorable Mention in Yearbook Copy/Caption: Student Life, Emily Warfield also received an Honorable Mention award in Sports Writing, and Tara Davis brought home an Excellent award in Yearbook Copy/Caption: Academics. "It was a really neat experience because everyone at the convention was interested in journalism. There were so many classes to choose from and I got several ideas to help me for my senior year in yearbook," junior Hannah Shelton said.

Going Out With a Bang

by Tori Lindsay and Blake Ross

The Last Dance

Senior Ariel Halstead sings her last solo of her high school career at Spring Spectacular. Halstead has been a member of the Mooresville High School Choir for three years, two of them being in Spotlights. Halstead sang Part of Your World from The Little Mermaid. Halstead was one of 6 soloists to sing at Spring Spectacular. "It's bittersweet because it's my last performance, but it was such a great experience," Halstead said.

Finesse girls begin their last song while putting on a show at Spring Spectacular. Spring Spec was the last performance put on by the choirs for the 2013-2014 school year. Not only did each choir put on a performance, but there were also many soloists and groups singing a song of their choice. Each group or soloist had to try out for their spot in the program. As well as trying out, each individual with a solo or part of a group spent many hours preparing and making sure their song was ready to perform. Each choir went out with a bang, performing many songs for parents and the community. "The season was really successful, we had a lot of fun and I personally enjoyed being able to be in the front rows of many performances," junior Alyson LaPlante said.

Seniors Say Goodbye

"It was amazing to have played at the concert. It was a great way to complete my band experience," senior Peyton Niederer said about his last concert as a band member.

For their last concert of the year, seven seniors and the remaining members of the band performed, "The Best of Chicago," "Ask Not," a tribute to JFK, "Disney's Magical Marches," and "Illinois Loyalty," the Mooresville High School song.

"The pieces we performed were some of my favorites and it was great way to end my four years of being in band throughout high school," Brandon Wagoner senior said.

Mr. Jason Freeman had a memorable year with the seniors. He was able to watch them become who they are today, along with watch them grow as band members.

"The contributions from the seniors are many and great and they will be sorely missed," Mr. Jason Freeman said.

The percussion ensemble playing at their last concert of the year. They performed this at the IPA (Indiana Percussion Association) in March of 2014. "After months of hard work and dedication, the percussion nailed this piece to the wall," senior Addison Yeager said.

Prom Ready?

"I'm excited to go to two proms. I think I will have just as much fun at both of them, but I'm excited to go to Mooresville's prom with my DQ crew."

- junior Ashley Toczylowski

"With it being my senior prom, it's bittersweet but I'm excited for everything. I think I'm most excited to just be with my friends for my last prom."

- senior Taryn Rooks

"I'm excited to get all fancied up and dance my heart out. I've spent a lot of time watching dance tutorials on YouTube to impress all the ladies."

- senior Nick Schmutte

"This is my first prom and I think I am most excited for the dancing."

- junior Clay Hibler

"I'm ready to get down with my best friends one last time before it's time for the real world."

- senior Damien Mills

"I think seeing everyone all dressed up is what I'm looking forward to the most."

- sophomore Avery Selch

Dancing Gives Disney the Blues

Custodian Bill Thompson shows off his new hair after his hair is dyed blue. He was not just the only person to have his hair colored. Principal Brian Disney made the decision as well. The reasoning behind dying the pair's hair was Mooresville High School raising more money than needed in the dance marathon that was hosted for Riley Hospital for Children. The dance marathon was put together by the student council. All student council members encouraged students to sign up or donate money for the cause. The end result was worth the time and effort put into the activity. "I did it to show just how awesome the students are here at Mooresville High School," he said.

Principal Mr. Brian Disney sits patiently as secretary Mrs. Dawn Blake colors his hair blue. Being Mr. Disney's first year here at Mooresville High School, the new principal volunteered for this after the annual dance marathon to raise money for Riley, raised over the goal amount. The total came to $4006.38. "It was great to see the school come together for a good cause," Mr. Disney said. "What was even better was that they raised more than what their goal amount was."

Mrs. Dawn Blake concentrates on dying her boss' hair blue. Mrs. Blake agreed to dye both staff member's hair after hearing about the accomplishments of the students. This event took place in the South gym where all participants of the dance marathon were able to watch. "It was a fun idea and a creative reward to the students for their hard work and generosity," Blake said.

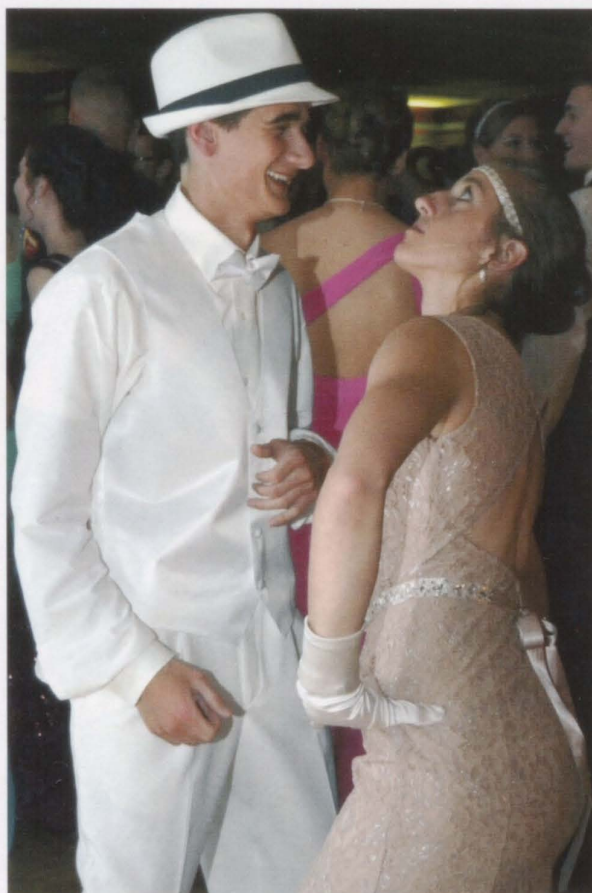

While the music is playing, students dance in a large group to end out the school year, and for some, their high school career. Prom is the final major event in the school year, other than graduation; therefore, the majority of the junior and senior class chose to participate. "I really appreciate Mrs. Chain's fresh perspective on prom. It also really helped that she teaches juniors most of the day, so that improved communications," Mrs. Kimberly Zook said. When arriving at prom, most were hesitant to be the first on the dance floor, but once a few people got out there, the place filled up quick. "Once the DJ started playing music people actually knew and liked, the dance floor became a lot less awkward and everyone started dancing," senior Morganne Belton said.

Seniors McKenzie Utley and Cameron Meador dance together at prom. This was the second year the two went together, and their final one for high school. The couple decided to just eat at Meador's house with a group of friends before prom to save money to be able to rent a limo to take the group downtown to the Marriot for prom. "The limousine ride was a lot of fun with our big group and it got us all super pumped up the dance," Utley said.

While at prom, seniors Amelia Phillips and Bailey Robinson are dancing the night away together. The couple took the Gatsby theme and ran with it when it came to their dress and tuxedo choice. This theme was extremely popular and a huge hit among the students because of the movie "The Great Gatsby" being released in 2013. Many students really enjoyed the movie due to having to read the book for the American Studies class at the beginning of each year. "This was my favorite dress I tried on because I fell in love with the sequins and the old time elegance of it. The food was excellent as well Robinson said.

Seniors Tristan Becker and Cayla Clinger laugh while slowing down at prom to a slow song. The two went in a large group of friends to the event, which is what several students tend to do. "I went to prom in a big group all three years that I went and I wouldn't have wanted it any other way. We were all able to split up if we wanted to once we got to prom, but it made it fun while getting ready because we all got to help each other and take lots of pictures," Clinger said.

Seniors Jacob Delk, and Ariel Halstead and juniors Quinn Cavin and Abby Crump are all smiles after the prom court crowning. The court included members that have all been a part of the choir program, which was an exciting accomplishment for the group that they all won together. The dances following the crowning were much more elegant as well due to the court actually knowing how to dance well. "Jacob and I have been dance partners since freshman year, so getting King and Queen made it perfect," Halstead said.

Seniors Alan Berry and Trace Rooks laugh while putting in their requests for songs. Students were able to put in their requests for the DJ to play, but there were several songs that were considered not appropriate and were not played. Several students were upset by the small amount of songs that were approved to be played, but still managed to make the best out of the night and have plenty of fun. "I can not believe my senior prom came and went so fast. It was a blast, but that DJ definitely needed our help," Rooks said.

5.3.14 A Night to Remember...

Little Women

5.4.14 - 5.30.14

The Spring Musical

Senior Jacob Delk acts as a young man who falls in love with one of Jo's sisters. Sophomore Olivia Carlton played the role of the sister who Delk's character fell in love with while they were at a ball. They were characters who fell in love the moment they met, eventually got married, and at the end were expecting a child. "I loved being in the musical," Delk said. "Not because of acting or singing, but because I was with my friends having fun."

Junior Abby Crump acts as the lead Jo in Little Women. Her character was known for wanting to be independent, and do many tasks that other people would find unnatural for women to do, like chop down their neighbor's tree for Christmas. "The musical was so much fun this year because our cast was so close and we all loved to just be goofy and have fun," Crump said. "I loved playing a character who was crazy and outgoing. It really was a successful show all in all."

Junior Maryssa Small plays the mother in Little Women for the spring musical. Small was involved all of Mooresville's plays and musicals throughout the year. "The musical is such a wonderful experience," Small said. "Theater draws the whole cast together and creates true bonds between us. The March family really felt like a family backstage because there was so much love, and the other girls actually started calling me mom."

The Chair Project

The students in Mrs. Diana Evan's fifth period class are given an assignment to build chairs out of cardboard, glue, and tape. The chairs had to be able to hold 150 pounds. Freshman Robert Taulia worked hard to make a chair that met the requirements for the class. "[This project was created to] build self confidence in their own vision. They start with a fun idea and build something that works," Evans said. "They create something that they become excited about, that functions because they have to achieve functionality."

Sophomore Megan Phillips and freshman partner Taylor Gruver work delicately to make edits to their cardboard chairs during class time. They had a week to complete their chairs, and make them meet the requirements. This was the final project they did for the year. "The chair project itself wasn't hard to do, but it was hard to make the structure sturdy enough to hold our own weight," Phillips said.

The grump older neighbor in Little Women is portrayed by senior Josh Passey. Passey's character was one that in the beginning was bitter and harsh, but towards the end his heart changed to a sympathetic, loving one. "It was hard to be mean to Ariel [who played Beth] because she's so sweet and I had to be dreadful. It was awful," Passey said. "It was a lot of fun once I made that connect and I was like the grandfather figure to the family. It was a lot of fun."

American Studies Final Presentations

Juniors Kellie Cavanaugh and Jackie Falin perform their final in front of the American studies classes during first period. Cavanaugh drew the actor Channing Tatum to act as for their project, and made sure to flex her muscles multiple times to present her character well. "It was a lot of fun getting to dress up and think like someone else for a day," Cavanaugh said.

Junior Peyton Lindley dresses up as Ghandi for the final project in American Studies. Lindley tried to fully portray her character by speaking in an accent. "I really enjoyed the final project because I got to dress up as Ghandi," Lindley said. "At first I was kind of disappointed I didn't get somebody popular in the media today, but the more I read, the more I appreciated Ghandi. I hope my interpretation did him the justice he deserved as well as entertain the class."

Junior Hannah Shelton

"I was really excited to be Kenny Chesney because anyone who knows me knows I love country music. It was kind of a stretch to relate Ghandi, Chesney, and Arther Miller, but that's what made it so fun in the end."

An A for Academics

The interdisciplinary academic team including Seniors Ryan Crafts, Caitlin Lowe, Molly Tieman, and Junior Olivia Seyerle places third at the state contest. No academic team has ever placed this high. "Definitely surprised [about receiving third]," Seyerle said. "There was a lot of competition."

Together We Made It

The highly anticipated moment for all seniors had finally arrived: graduation day. The class of 2014 was a part of the one hundred thirtieth commencement ceremony at Mooresville High School.

Student body presidents Jesse Cordray and Rachel Wathen started the ceremony with a prayer.

"Whether its the people I tell everything to or those I just exchange a smile with in the halls, everyone in the senior class has impacted my life," Wathen said. "Bless everyone on our beautifully unique futures."

Principal Mr. Brian Disney went on to announce the many achievements of the students and the impressive $1.7 million the class accumulated through community scholarships.

"For the last time of your high school career, a few words of wisdom," Disney said.

With this, the realization of moving on from high school became apparent to the seniors. "Words of Wisdom" was a daily tradition that Disney had delivered every day of the school year.

Disney's last advice to the seniors was a quote from Mother Teresa,

"To keep a lamp burning you have to keep adding oil."

He reminded to students that their greatness in life did not end once they had their diplomas in hand. Greatness was something to strive for everyday in life by maintaining the illumination from everyone's personal light.

Salutatorian, Ryan Crafts, followed Disney with his advice to the people he had grown up with.

"I have never spoken to a crowd this big before, in fact, you all have the choice to listen to me or not. Choices are why we are all here today," Crafts said. "Graduation is not the end, it's only the beginning. Now is the time you can become that person you have always dreamed of being."

Valedictorian, Jaclyn Harris, reminded everyone that graduation marked 2,160 days of not only schooling from kindergarten to senior year, but of days spent together. Commencement marked 2,160 days of growing and making memories with classmates.

"Wisdom is a product of character," Harris said. "Be brave and take chances knowing that the trials of the past have prepared you for the road ahead."

Since the 1860s students had walked across the stage to receive their diplomas at Mooresville High School. The 308 graduates of the class of 2014 added to the historic alumni when they made their way across the stage.

Class president Kayla Harpold led everyone in the turning of the tassels and Tara Davis led the graduates and alumni in the singing of the alma mater.

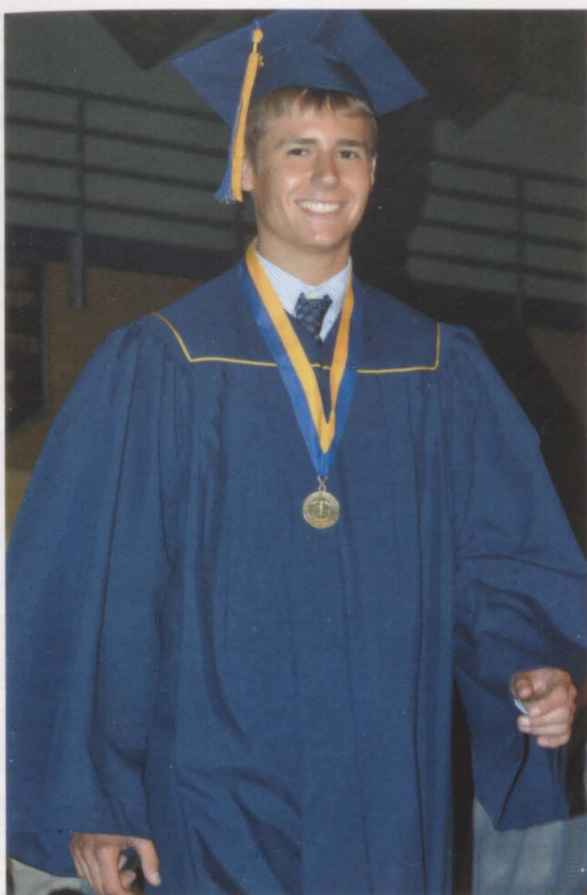

People who had spent 2,160 days together had experienced their final class gathering. Memories were made that will never be forgotten. The class of 2014 made it.

by Jordan Childers and Hannah Shelton

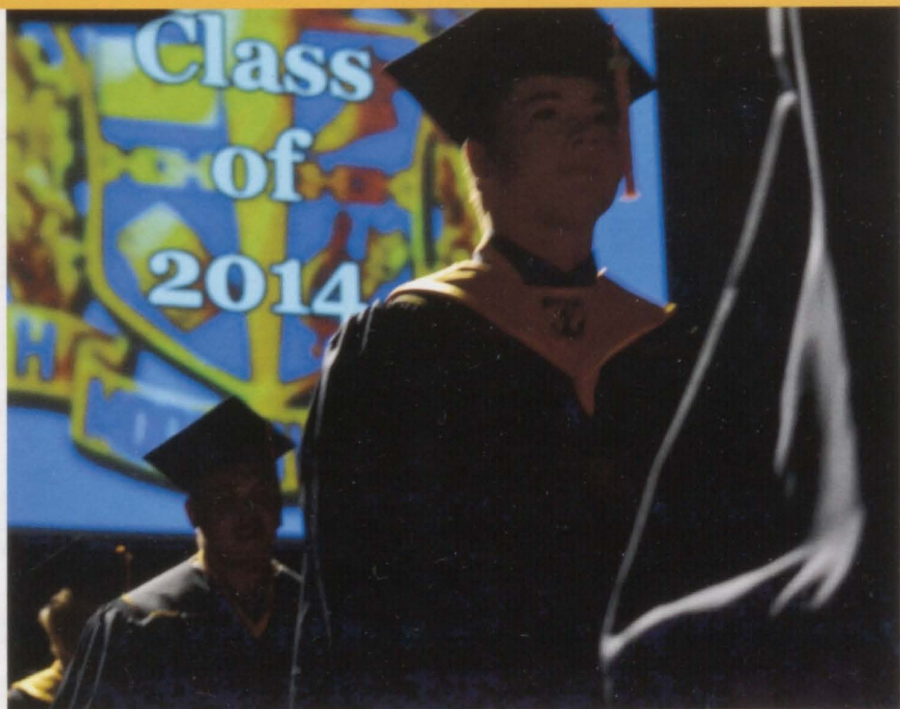

Senior Ashley Halbert officially graduates and becomes an alumni of MHS. Halbert graduated with an Academic Honors Diploma and as a member of NHS. Halbert planned to commute to IUPUI her freshman year to receive her prerequisite credits. "It was a real bittersweet moment for both me and my family," Halbert said.

Senior Parker Roark is all smiles as he makes his way to his seat before receiving his diploma. The gym was filled with emotions as the seniors walked in. "The biggest surprise about graduation was realizing how fast high school went by," Roark said.

Senior Julie Callahan shakes hands with Superintendent Mr. David Marcotte after receiving her diploma from Principal Mr. Brian Disney. Callahan planned to attend Indiana University in Bloomington to study public health. "It was a huge accomplishment to walk across the stage and receive my diploma, but I'm going to miss laughing and making jokes with my friends," Callahan said.

Graduates from the class of 2014 walk out of commencement with their tassels turned. For the last time, they reunited in the courtyard to celebrate all that they had accomplished while reminiscing on past memories. They gathered with friends and family to take pictures and to say goodbye to their classmates. "This is a truly tremendous class," Principal Mr. Brian Disney said.

Senior Mackenzie Masters lays down a bunt against Bloomington North. The Pioneers used bunting to their advantage in many of their games, especially against Bloomington North. The Lady Pioneers defeated Bloomington North in both games of the double header. "Our whole purpose of bunting is not to be safe, but to move the runner. Even though it's always a plus when we score someone, and get on base," Masters said.

Freshman Ashley Cox pulls back to slap for a hit. Cox ended up being walked during the game. The Lady Pioneers JV team went on to win against the Franklin Community Grizzly Cubs 3-1. "Our season was great because we all had fun and we won a lot of games," Cox said. "The JV program had a new coach this year, but us freshman had already played with him. So we knew his strategy."

Senior Sarah Shorter hits a base hit for the Lady Pioneers against the Lady Cougars. Shorter had a walk off single to win the game. "I told myself that I was going to hit the first pitch and I did," Shorter said.

Junior Elizabeth Brock teases the catcher as she leads off of third base against Bloomington North. Brock scored the first run of the 2-1 win over their opponent. "It was a relief for me and the whole team to get on the board first," Brock said.

Sophomore Morgan Wilson delivers a pitch to a batter during an away game. Wilson started varsity her sophomore year as the starting pitcher. "If I'm struggling at the plate, I know I have a job to do on the mound," Wilson said.

Mooresville's Varsity Softball team huddles before a win against Brownsburg. Mooresville prayed together with coach Sam Ball and busted out with a hoo-ray before defeating the Bulldogs 3-1. "Our meetings before games are the best because we laugh and make jokes about how salty Coach Dad is," sophomore Anee Frechette-Houchens said.

Practice Makes Perfect

Senior Haley Chitwood "wears" a pitch during a home game against Bloomington North. Chitwood got a free base and was later hit four times that same game. "I just hope you can't see the bruise for prom," Chitwood said.

Exceeding Expectations

The Lady Pioneers were unstoppable in their 2014 season. The two teams went further than anyone had expected, with records of 13-10-1 for JV and 17-12 for varsity.

With two young teams, the junior varsity and varsity teams were made up of a total of five sophomores and ten freshmen, out of twenty-four players.

"We played very well this season. We surprised a lot of people and it is encouraging because the majority of the team is sophomores and freshman. I think that the future is bright these next few years," Coach Traci Ball said.

In the Lady Pioneers' 11th game their center-fielder, junior Jackie Falin, fractured her wrist in two places while making a diving catch to end the inning. Falin was told she would be out for the rest of the season until August. The varsity team lost a valuable player but made sure that they pulled together and worked harder than ever.

"Being injured in the middle of the season is rough. It's hard not being able to play, but all I can do is use this as motivation to come back stronger next year. This is a talented group of girls and I can't wait until next season to play with them all again," Falin said.

The Varsity and JV teams were not looking forward to the end of the season and having to say goodbye to so many seniors. The girls had all built a long lasting relationship with each other. Each senior received a blanket, their number, a ball signed with the all of the girls' signatures, and a picture frame with a collage for their Senior Night gifts.

"It was bittersweet. I'm sad to see them go, but happy that they're moving on," junior Laurin Short said.

"After I graduate I am gonna really miss the close relationships that I've developed with my team and the coaches."

-Maddie Grimes

"I'm gonna miss messing with Coach Ball, warming up with Liz, screaming my butt off to cheer everyone on, and peeing in the creek."

-Haley Chitwood

"I'm just really going to miss all of these girls and definitely our long bus rides home when we sing together."

-Mackenzie Masters

Senior Thoughts

"I'll miss all of my friends that I've made this season and practicing everyday. I'll really miss practice with everyone and the all the jokes we have."

-Sarah Shorter

Junior Jake Stinson follows his putt, as his ball rolls down the line. Stinson put in countless hours fine tuning his short game, into tournament ready material. "With the help of some new putting techniques, I've really been able to make more putts," Stinson said. "All my confidence has returned to me and I'm now able to play my best."

Sophomore Landon Harder intently watches his golf shot advance towards the hole. Harder set high goals and expectations for this season, and worked hard to achieve everyone of them. "I really love to go out there and play my best," Harder said. "Sometimes I don't, but when I do, it always makes up for it."

Junior Justin Speedy hits the ball towards the cups, as he hopes to make a good score on the hole. Speedy underwent many swing adjustments in preparation for the year. "I definitely have a lot more control and confidence with my new swing, and I'm able to hit it more consistently solid," Speedy said.

Make It A Good Finish

When the weather turns ugly, confidence and composure remain.

The Pioneers step out onto Hillview Country Club in Franklin, IN. It was 45 degrees out, pouring down rain, with estimated 35 mph winds.

The Mooresville Boy's Golf Team was looking for a win, and expected to play their best despite the conditions.

"We were fully capable of going out there and winning. I was fully confident in my team and our abilities. I expect nothing less, we're are just that good," senior Brady Sappenfield said.

The match was on a Tuesday, and even though the team was worn out, they still showed up ready to perform to their potential. Eight holes through the round, the Franklin coach and the Mooresville coach, Ernie Adams, decided to stop play, and resume the next day.

"It just wouldn't be fair, for either teams to continue to play in this. An athlete from Franklin, his umbrella broke, and that is when you know the wind it too brutal to continue playing," coach Ernie Adams said.

On Wednesday, as the day progressed, the team members were pumped for the night's match.

"When the match got postponed, I knew we would be more confident and prepared to play well, despite the conditions. Every player gave it all they got; win or lose," junior Justin Speedy said.

From when the team stepped on the course, until they stepped off, the Mooresville Boy's Golf team kept confidence and composure.

At the end of the day, Franklin won, but the team took their defeat with humility and grace.

Sophomore Sam Wells, the number eight golfer, shot the low of 79. Despite the conditions, Wells held on, carding a 39 front with a 40 back nine.

"I gave it my all, and that's all that matters to me. Despite what happened team-wise, I'm happy I shot so well and was able to put up a number for my team," Wells said.

Senior Brady Sappenfield watches, as he crushes a drive down the middle of the fairway. Sappenfield spent all pre-season preparing for his final year and was determined to make the most of it. He ended his season strong, and made it to the state finals for the second year in a row. "I knew this was my last year on the golf team, so I always played every match like it was my last. I made sure I left it all out there," Sappenfield said.

Senior Rachel Wathen plays number two doubles on Greenwood. Junior Kaley Huddleston for the first half of the season. They went into mid state undefeated in conference. The second half of the season Wathen played number two singles. "I enjoyed playing with Kaley and playing doubles because I could encourage my teammates on a bigger scale," Wathen said. "Coach said switching the line up was best for the team, which is all I cared about in the end. I always told him I would do the best I could at any position he needed me."

Seniors Justine Christian and Jackie Farand high five in between every point in their tennis match. Coach Michael Teders cared a lot about making sure doubles partners encouraged each other during and between every point. "Coach Teders realizes the importance of encouragement on the court," Christian said. "He helps us make it a habit to life up our teammates, especially with high fives after every point."

Junior Lauren Bennett plays on the JV tennis team for most of the tennis season. However, Bennett also received some opportunities to be an alternate for varsity, and was able to step up when she was needed. When Mooresville hosted an Invitational a varsity player was unable to make it and Bennett was able to be there and help out the team. Bennett competed with Senior Kelly Kubischta at number one doubles versus Bishop-Chatard and then against Pike High School. Mooresville finished placing third at their own second annual tennis tournament. "Being able to play some varsity matches this year was a great experience, and makes me look forward to and want to work harder for next year," Bennett said.

The girls tennis team competes at Mid State May fifth through the seventh. Junior Molly Fitzpatrick competed for the championship versus Greenwood. Junior Kaley Huddleston and senior Rachel Wathen also advanced to the championship and played Greenwood. The girls team overall received the title of runner up at mid state. They were beat by the number seventh ranked team in the state, who the number one girl in the state also played for. Second place was a huge accomplishment for the girls. It was the best the team had done at mid state. In about thirteen years they decided they were too fierce for first. "Although I didn't play it was fun to watch all the girls try their hardest," sophomore Jessica Langley said. "They earned second place."

It's nice to have a team that is so close. It was also great to have such a fantastic season, and having our hard work pay off.

Not Defeated

Varsity Team Makes Big Strides

Tuesday, April 15, 2014 junior Molly Fitzpatrick and seniors Jackie Farrand, Michelle Majeski, and Rachel Wathen took part in a captains meeting for spring sports before the start of school.

Mr. Steve Hilligoss talked about a former Mooresville football player who died unexpectedly, but how instead of it tearing the team apart, it brought them together. That same night the tennis team had an away match versus Decatur.

Majeski prepared the whole off season for the Spring. She was ready to play varsity number two singles. However, Majeski went for a ball and her knee didn't react how she wanted it to. That one wrong bend created a torn ACL, and put her out for the rest of the season.

Instead of letting the torn ACL set the team back and allow herself to be defeated, Majeski and the rest of the captains stepped up and allowed it to bring the team together. They took the advice they got that morning and used the incident to push the team to step up even more than they already had.

"When I first got the news it was one of the most devastating things I had to go through, but the best thing I could do was surround myself with my team," Majeski said.

"My ACL caused the team dynamic to change, but the team adapted. I'm so proud of them. No one complained and that is something the team should be admired for."

"We are a group unit and are really like a family always supporting and encouraging each other through everything. I owe it all to my teammates for getting me through this with a positive attitude."

The unity Majeski's knee brought to the team helped them make it to the Sectional Championship match.

"The support and enthusiasm on the team has grown through the season and we all really support each other."

Junior Charlee Dewbrew and sophomore Taylor Baxter try to push ahead in the 100 meter dash. They were two important members of the sprinting team throughout the season. "Since this is my first year running track I really look up to Charlee for advice and help with sprinting," Baxter said.

Running Towards Success

With an entire new coaching staff and almost completely new team, the track team faced a rebuilding year. Different athletes from all sports came together to run and participate in field events.

"Coach Dockery encouraged me to come and throw this year and it turned out to be a really fun and exciting season," sophomore Grant West said.

The returning members set the example for the new members of the team.

"I always tried to answer any questions new teammates had about how things work at practice and meets," senior Amelia Phillips said. "I always did my best to lead by example."

Together they overcame their obstacles of rebuilding their team and had success throughout the season.

The 4x8 team broke the school record three times throughout the season with a time of 9:55.

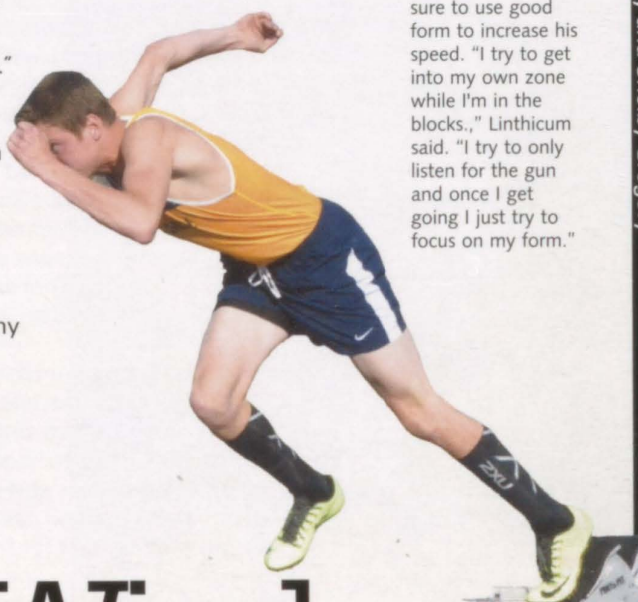

"We work together as a team at practice and we always try to better each other," senior Hannah Outcalt said. "We always try to stay positive."

The girls track team won four meets and many advanced from sectionals to regionals. Junior Sarah Corbin would be the only member from the team to advance to state.

"It's feels good to be the new coach this year. We have a very young, competitive team this year and the season went really well in my opinion,"

Coach Chad Dockery said.

Freshman Noah Linthicum bursts off the starting blocks. He made sure to use good form to increase his speed. "I try to get into my own zone while I'm in the blocks," Linthicum said. "I try to only listen for the gun and once I get going I just try to focus on my form."

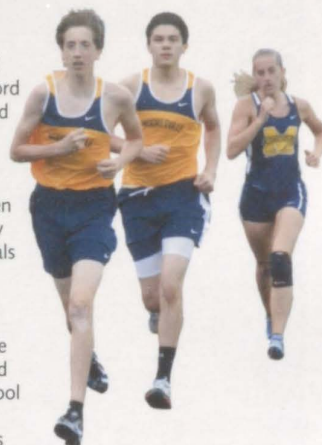

Run Like the Wind

Sophomore Austin Arthur makes his clearance height on pole vault. He was the only returning pole vaulter and led his fellow teammates. "I have always enjoyed pole vaulting because it's relatable to life," Arthur said. "No matter how many times you don't get over the bar, you have to keep trying until you do."

Junior Sarah Corbin prepares to throw the discus. Corbin was the sectional champion and broke the record in shot put and discus at sectionals. "I hope to push my record even further and try to win regionals someday," Corbin said. Corbin would advance to the state meet and break the school record three different times for discus.

Sophomore Teylor Ellis into the long jump pit. She was constantly improving her personal record during the season. "Long jump is my favorite event and it's a struggle, but it's worth it," Ellis said.

Sophomore Ben Sharp clears the last hurdle in the 100 meter dash. He finished the race in third place. "Running hurdles is hard because it takes a lot of effort to get over the hurdles fast," Sharp said.

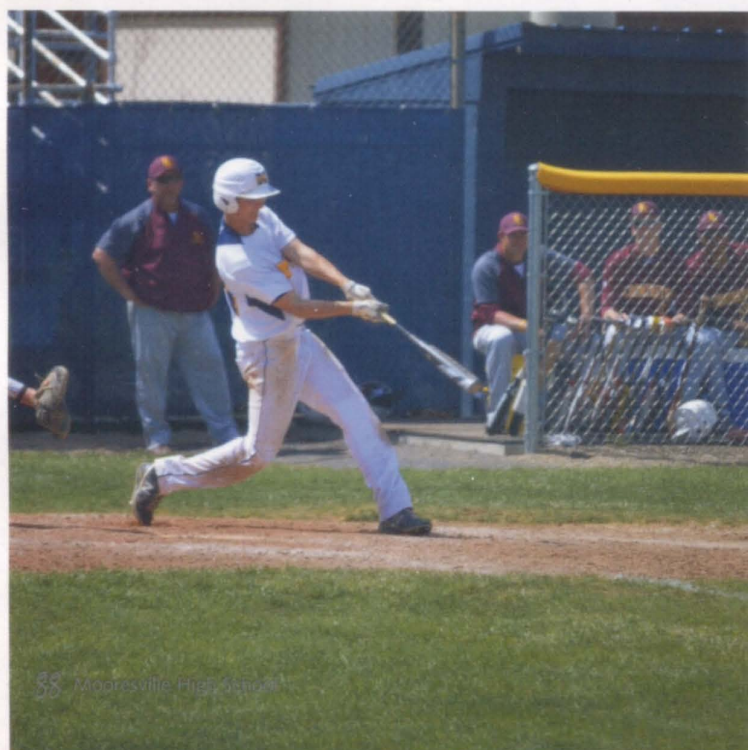

Alex Fabert attempts to increase his personal record on high jump at Terre Haute South. He improved a large amount from freshman year. "I started doing high jump in middle school and I have done it ever since then because it's such a fun event," sophomore Fabert said.

Sophomore Tyler Weldon looks to his catcher to decide which pitch he will throw during the varsity game against Monrovia. Weldon had the opportunity to play varsity in a few games. "Being only a sophomore and getting to play on varsity is definitely a challenge to get used to that level of playing, but it is an honor," Weldon said.

Junior Jacob Archer swings while at bat against Bloomington North. Archer played first base and pitcher during their games. Archer used what he knows about pitching to his advantage while he was at bat. "By the way the pitcher moves the ball around in his glove, I can usually tell if it is going to be a change up or not. I try to not do that when I am pitching so the opposing team's line up doesn't know what I'm going to throw," Archer said.

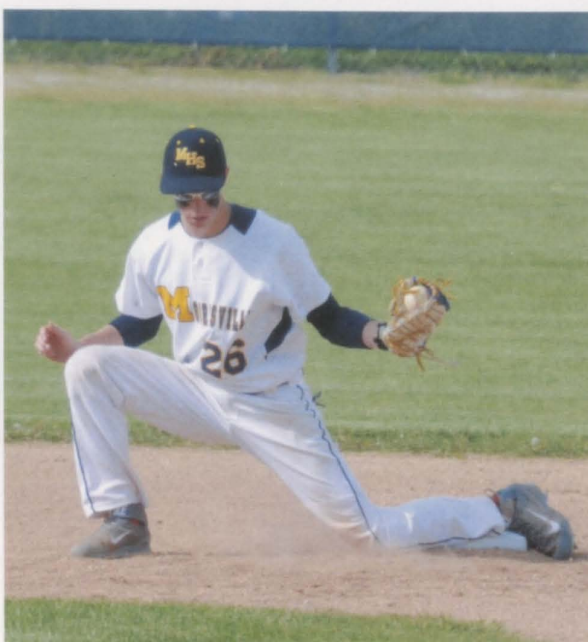

Thre

Sophomore Brady Bain catches the ball as he warms up the pitcher before the game. Being the only returning varsity player, Bain was held to a higher position on the team. "Being the only returning player is tough because the first year for a new team is always difficult," Bain said.

Junior Zach Grider stops a ball from going past him at short stop. Grider played short stop and pitcher during the season for the team. "Everyone knows the best player always plays shortstop so that's why I play that position. I've always loved playing the field," Grider said.

As sophomore Stevie Hoffman watches from the plate, fellow sophomore Travis Wildridge slides into third base as he stole the base while Hoffman was up to bat. Wildridge successfully made it to third before he got tagged; therefore, he was safe. "I love when my teammates steal while I'm up to bat. It messes with the pitcher's head," Hoffman said.

Sophomore Tyler Early contemplates stealing while the pitcher is not paying attention to him. The team as a whole stole plenty of bases throughout the season that lead to several runs throughout the duration of the season on multiple occasions. "This year is hard for now, but in a few years, the team will be stronger than ever," Early said.

As the season approached, the players were eager to start playing outside due to the terrible winter that was now in the rear view. Having to deal with the unpredictable weather was always a factor in Indiana baseball.

The team started out their season with long, hard practices, which the boys dreaded, but all agreed made them more prepared for their first game against Greenwood.

The majority of the varsity team was new to playing at the varsity level; therefore, they had plenty to learn throughout the season.

"We tend to rotate positions a lot to figure out who works where the best," junior Traver Harper said.

By being such a young team with only two seniors, it was a learning and growing experience for the boys. Consisting of mainly sophomores and juniors, the team worked hard every day to build up for the remaining season.

The few seniors on the team led by example in hopes to encourage their teammates for the future.

"It's a whole different feeling and I just have to help them get to where they need to be for the future of the team," senior Cody Bray said.

The coaches of the team worked hard with the boys to prepare them for what's ahead in their futures.

"The mentality of the team as a whole will grow with the game experience, assistant coach Kyle Davis said.

Sophomore Austin Long lays down his bat as he takes off to first base after he successfully hit the ball to left field. Long got playing time on both JV and varsity throughout his sophomore year which gave him an advantage of having plenty of playing time.

What was your first impression of high school?

40 random freshmen were asked...

"It was hard at first because it's so big and crowded with a lot of people," Stacy Handlon said.
"I was excited at first, but then I noticed how big it was and I was worried I'd never find my way around, so it was hard," Renee Majeski said.

- It's hard
- It's easy
- It's okay

"It was hard at first. Once I got to know my teachers and learned my schedule, I was fine," Amanda Shorney said.

"It was easy, but the added drama that comes with high school made it more difficult," Jordan Williams said.

"It was crazy hard because of the crowded hallways, moving classrooms, and the construction," Emma Wilson said.

Dear Freshmen,

"Be yourself and don't worry about what others think. Get your work done and focus on getting ready for college and your future. After graduation none of the drama will even matter so avoid it and work hard."

- Cassy Clark

"Stay out of trouble and avoid temptations! Focus on what you need to do to get out of school; be a good student and have fun."

- Madison Cummings

"Get your work done in the classroom and don't fall behind. Get involved, try different sports, join clubs, or take part in a new school activity, and most importantly, just have fun."

- Mark Williams

"High school goes quicker than you think, don't blink or you might miss it."

- Sloan Schafer

"Don't be shy, don't be afraid to be who you want to be, try new things, and make the most of your time here by having fun, but also working hard because in the long run it will pay off."

- Ashley Halbert

"I think it's stupid they won't allow you to smile in your permit photo, but whatever, I'm just ready to get my license and drive!" sophomore Anee Ferchette-Houchens said.

Mean Muggin'

Due to new facial recognition security system, state officials no longer allowed for people to smile in their IDs. This is what fellow sophomores Michael Ronan, and Anee Ferchette-Houchens thought:

"I mean it does seem dumb that they won't let you smile or anything, but I honestly don't really care what I have to do. I just want to go out and drive!" sophomore Michael Ronan said.

When I ride my bike it's just me and the bike. I don't have to worry about anything else and when you're flying, just one bump can make a huge jump. Plus, it's more of a lifestyle than something you just do.

Preparing for the Future

Throughout the day at Mooresville High School 210 students went to internships or Ben Davis, while the rest of the student body was left at the school. It allowed students to try and get a head start for college.

Some students received an internship with a local business. One senior, Jackie Farrand applied to intern at St. Francis Hospital. There, she was put through tasks that allowed her to see what a day was like at the hospital.

"I think it's such a cool thing. It reminds me of how cool medicine is, and that it's not going to be a repetitive job," Farrand said.

Other students that attended Ben Davis had the chance to study fields such as, Law Enforcement, Dental Assisting, Machine Tool Technology, and Pharmacy Technology. They learned everything they could while they attended Ben Davis to help them get prepared for college to see if that was what they wanted to major in. The programs were designed to help students narrow down what they were really interested in.

Senior Drew Postlewaite works while in Machine Tool Technology. Postlewaite learned on a daily basis how to work with metals and machinery. "I go to Area 31 because I love learning how machines work," Postlewaite said.

Allison McQueen works on a patient's teeth at Area 31. McQueen has been interested in the medical field for a long time. "Ever since I job shadowed at my dentist I've thought dental technology was for me," McQueen said.

Students in Area 31 Pharmacy Tech program fill capsules with kool-aid. They routinely learned aspects of pharmacy all year. "It really benefited me by taking this because now I know more about the program," senior Brittany Ridner said.

Serving Our Country

Good-bye jeans and t-shirts, hello uniforms and combat boots below are some military-bound seniors

Brandon Wagoner
Marines
"I'm excited and ready to go and serve my country in the Marines."

Addison Yeager
National Guard
"I feel like it was a good choice for my life. They will help pay for college and will give me better opportunities for me when looking for a job and when I retire."

Levi Jennings
Air Force
"I'm super excited actually. I have grown with a lot of my family being in the military so it just seems normal to me. Other kids go to college and it's just another step in life and I'm ready to see where it all takes me!"

Alex Teders
Marine Corp.
"I enlisted to serve my country and to gain field experience in whatever field I am put in."

Kolin Rottner
Navy

"I wanted to start on my life right out of high school and I've always thought the military would be a good experience for me. I chose the Navy because I like to travel and be on the water and it seems like a more suitable branch for me. I've started working out and running every night, plus eating healthier to prepare for it."

Ian Milligan
U.S. Coast Guard
"I'm very excited, a little nervous, and I can't wait for the experiences I'm going to have while serving or the feeling of saving a life."

Brittany Cornett
Navy
"It's exciting. I am so nervous obviously because of all the changes, but I've always been intrigued by the Military."

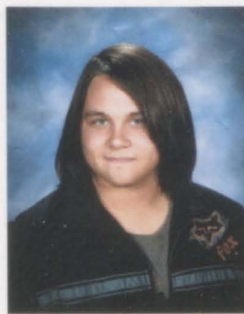

Kerstan Hill

Elizabeth Hoffer

Brett Hoffman
"Same." -Tony Wonder (Arrested Development)

Academic Top 20 Class of 2014

Tanner Atkins

"I am bringing Mrs. Dillman because she inspired me to start a career in entrepreneurship."

Morganne Belton

"I wouldn't be where I am today without Mrs. Patel continually supporting me."

Justine Christian

"I'm very grateful for my parents' unwavering belief in me. I credit them with my developed work ethic."

Ryan Crafts

"I'm thankful that all my teachers helped me keep my grades up and didn't give me detentions when I probably deserved them."

"Back in middle school, it seemed impossible to be in the top 20 but my motivation pushed me to reach that goal."

Ariel Halstead

"It's an honor to be in the top 20. It feels good to have 4 years of effort recognized."

Ben Hammon

"I am really thankful for all of the teachers along the way who helped me succeed."

Kayla Harpold

"I've had Mr. Damron all four years of high school, so it was nice to be able to honor him and his importance during my years in high school."

Jackie Harris

Kelsey Hawkins

"I decided to bring Mrs. Richhart to the top 20 dinner because she's so personable and a great teacher."

Kaitlyn Lowe

"To earn a spot in the top 20 I had to stay extremely motivated and remember the stress eventually ends."

Michelle Majeski

"Having dyslexia was a challenge but Mrs. McGaha helped me learn how to deal with it and still achieve good grades."

Jessica McDaniel

"Being in the top 20 is a huge reward for five years of late night study sessions and all of the stress. It's a, 'You finally made it,' for all of us."

"Even though I skipped a few grades I maintained my grades and developed a great work method."

Cameron Meadows

"This has been a goal of mine for an extremely long time and being in the top 20 is an awesome feeling."

Logan Mills

"The top 20 is the best club to be in, over the years we have all become very close to each other."

Josh Passey

"All through high school I had to study and make sure I got good grades on tests so I could keep my grades up. It's such an honor to be in the top 20."

Morgan Smalling

Morgan Sussman

"It's totally an honor to be in the top 20 and it took a lot of effort to stay in it this year. It was stressful but totally worth it."

Molly Tieman

"Mrs. Zook helped me realize how much I love chemistry which led me to want to become a pharmacist."

Nicole Tipton

"Throughout all my years of high school I had to work really hard to keep my grades up and I also had to study a lot."

Jacob Tooley

"Throughout all 12 years of my education I have found the key to success is dressing like a hobo every day. The less thought I put into clothes the more thought I put into schoolwork!"

New Learning Experience

5.23.14 Virtual Learning Center Under Construction

One of the final stages of construction was the Virtual Learning Center, which would replace the term "library."

Over the years, the area had been a cafeteria, the main office, transition rooms in 2013-14, and finally the VLC. Plans for the space included areas for books, credit recovery, on-line classes, and the new broadcast studio and student publications lab.

"Our school will look nice. It will be a nice facility and things will be in place that will be near for students and we would like for them to take pride and appreciate it," Mr. Tim VanWanzele said.

The 2014 Wagon Trails Yearbook, Volume 69, was put together by a student staff and printed by Herff Jones Publishing Company at its facility at 2424 Midpoint Drive in Edwardsville, Kansas. This was our sixth All-Color Wagon Trails Yearbook. The publishing consultant was Cathy Wolfe, and the customer service representative was Debbie Thomas.

The book was created using the Adobe Master Collection and Herff Jones Internet software eDesign. Students were able to work online and from home to get their pages completed.

The 2014 Wagon Trails Yearbook Staff would like to thank: Cathy Wines, Debbie Thomas, Andy Marine, Susan Haynes, Rick Briar, Peggie Gorman, Kathy Johnson, Becky Bischoff, Marsha Green, Karen Cochran, Dawn Blake, Lisa Gobel, Brian Disney, Jennifer Perkins, and Tim VanWanzele. This yearbook staff would also like to thank the following people for contributing photos used in the book: Dr. Phil Wright, Maddy Cooper, Zach Errett, Marsha Green, Catherine Passey, Kelly Patel, Karla Rollin, and Becky and Bill Williamson. For their much appreciated assistance with the annual variety show, Wagon Trails Revue, we would like to thank Mrs. Sheryl Fyffe, Mr. Jason Damron, Mr. Jerry Weber, and Mr. Jason Freeman.

A photograph of two workers on an orange scissor lift. The lift is extended upwards. The worker on the left is wearing a white shirt and a colorful hard hat, and is operating the controls. The worker on the right is wearing a tan shirt, blue jeans, and a white hard hat, and is standing on the platform. The background is a solid black color.
